THE GOOD PROVIDER — This is a moment that many of us would like to live over again. Although 2-year-old David Thomas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Thomas, 626 S. Fayette St., may not realize the full significance of Thanksgiving Day, he's well aware of his responsibility for that dressed turkey he's towing in his wagon. Not everyone can go home again, but David can — and the anticipation of a big dinner with the family provides a real thrill in a little boy's life.

Kissinger sees Israeli security as prime need

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger has warned there can be no peace if Israel's security is endangered.

Speaking Tuesday night at a dinner for Abba Eban, the Israeli foreign minister, Kissinger said the United States and Israel have finally achieved "the direct negotiations that was their goal."

Kissinger was scheduled to brief senators today on the outlook for peace in the Middle East.

Eban, who sees Kissinger late this afternoon, said "I think we should try very hard to find points of disagreement but I do not think we shall find any." The foreign minister expressed gratitude for arms during the Yom Kippur war for deterring the Russians and for bringing about a cease-fire. He said he was looking forward to negotiations and "the adventure of looking for peace."

Kissinger was not expected to attend the dinner, held at the residence of Ambassador Simcha Dinitz. But in a brief appearance, he told the guests, including Sens. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., and Jacob K. Javits, RN.Y., that "there will be no peace in the world if something happens to endanger the security of Israel."

Kissinger told the Senate Foreign Relations committee Tuesday that prospects are favorable for a start of Arab-Israeli peace talks next month.

His reference to "direct negotiations" at the dinner was a pleasing note for the Israelis. They have insisted for years that a Middle East settlement must be built on face-to-face bargaining with the Arabs. But the Arabs have resisted dealing directly with representatives of the Jewish state.

Senators at Tuesday's closed-door meeting publicly applauded Kissinger's Middle East mediation effort, but were convinced that difficult problems remain to be solved and that progress will at best be slow.

Living costs up sharply

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer prices rose sharply last month following September's slowdown, owing partly to the energy crisis and higher prices for fuel oil and gasoline, the government said today.

The Department of Labor reported that the cost of living climbed eight-tenths of one per cent in October and pushed consumer prices up 7.9 per cent above a year ago. It marked the largest jump in any 12-month period since the 8.7 per cent inflationary rate recorded in the June 1950-51 period at the start of the Korean War.

In addition to sharply higher prices for gasoline and fuel oil, rising costs for clothing, mortgage interest rates and health insurance contributed significantly to the October rise in prices, the government said.

Knows of no more scandals

Nixon plans disclosures

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — President Nixon has promised Republican governors he will dispel the Watergate shadow on their political futures and has apologized for any trouble he has caused them.

The President also told a closed session of the winter meeting of the Republican Governors Association that he knows of no other scandals that could add to their embarrassment.

"The President looked at us around the room and said, 'I'm sorry if I have added to your burden,'" Tennessee Gov. Winfield Dunn said after the governors had listened for almost two hours to Nixon's Watergate defense Tuesday.

Governors said on leaving the closed meeting that Nixon made the strongest promises yet for full disclosure of all the facts he has about the problems that began when burglars were arrested inside Democratic party headquarters on June 17, 1972.

"He indicated a number of papers will be issued clearly responding to the questions which have been raised," Dunn said. He said those questions included the President's personal finances, the ITT affair and the milk-price case.

"Every question we asked was answered in full," Missouri Gov. Christopher S. Bond said. "And he indicated an additional four-or five-point program to continue answering, in the courts, in open news sessions, through documents he expects to release and by fuller answers to the most asked questions."

Nixon also declared that, so far as he knows, no further unpleasant revelations are likely to embarrass those who stand by him.

"He said if there are, he is not aware of them," Dunn said. "If there is any information yet to be revealed, it's information he does not have."

The session, the President's third Southern stop in four days, was similar to a series he held last week at the White House with congressional Republicans to explain his side of the Watergate controversy and ask for support.

Oregon Gov. Tom McCall, who has called for Nixon to save GOP candidates from disaster next year by clearing up Watergate before the elections, said the governors were encouraged by the meeting.

"It was a free-wheeling session of questions and answers," said California Gov. Ronald Reagan. "The President couldn't have been more frank."

The speech and governors' meeting completed a campaign of public appearances which began in Orlando, Fla., Saturday night with a televised news conference before The Associated Press Managing Editors Association and included a stop Sunday in Macon, Ga., to dedicate a law school.

Earlier Tuesday, Republican party chairman George Bush told the governors Nixon's appearances and meetings with GOP office holders and officials had turned the tide on Watergate.

Atom bombers brought home from Far East

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon has pulled more than 100 B52 bombers back from Guam to the United States, restoring most of them to their original nuclear striking force mission after the end of U.S. bombing in Indochina.

Defense sources say the move, which started in July, accelerated sharply last month during the Mideast crisis which brought the threat of a U.S.-Soviet confrontation.

Nothing has been said publicly, but sources report that about 85 of the giant Air Force jet bombers were rushed home from Guam when U.S. military units were placed on alert around the world.

Counting smaller withdrawals earlier, this leaves 25 B52s on Guam and another 50 in Thailand.

American B52 strength in the Pacific-Southeast Asia area now is down to a little more than one-third of the 205 longrange bombers which took part in the last major bombing campaign against North Vietnam.

The final B52 strike was flown against Communist-led insurgents in Cambodia shortly before the congressionally ordered halt in all U.S. military operations in Indochina last Aug. 15.

The Air Force reportedly wanted to fly the B52s back to the United States as rapidly as possible so the heavy bombers could be returned to their strategic nuclear mission.

But the White House has said to have vetoed a rapid reduction of B52 strength in the Pacific-Indochina area.

Senate panel OKs Social Security hike

WASHINGTON (AP) — An 11 per cent cost-of-living increase for 30 million Social Security recipients has moved a step closer to congressional passage with Senate Finance Committee approval of the measure.

The Senate is expected to pass the bill within two weeks. Committee Chairman Russell B. Long, D-La., said there is no doubt the legislation will be sent to President Nixon before the 1973 session ends.

The bill also would boost Social Security taxes to finance the increase. The wage base, the maximum amount of annual earnings subject to the payroll levy, would go up to $13,200 in 1974 compared to the $10,800 ceiling for 1973.

Tax rate of 5.85 per cent, paid each by the worker and employer, would not be changed in 1974.

The committee b[illegible] put the increased benefits [illegible] in two steps — 7 per cent o[illegible]ent and 4 per cent additional next [illegible]ne.

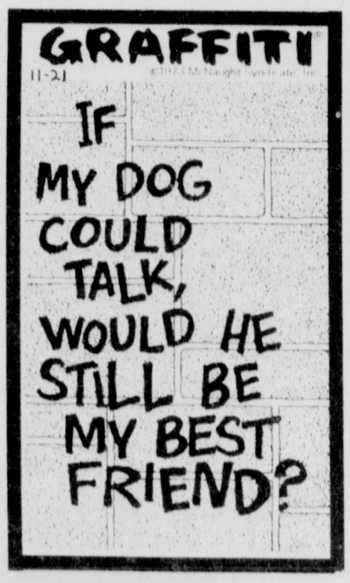
State revenue tops estimates

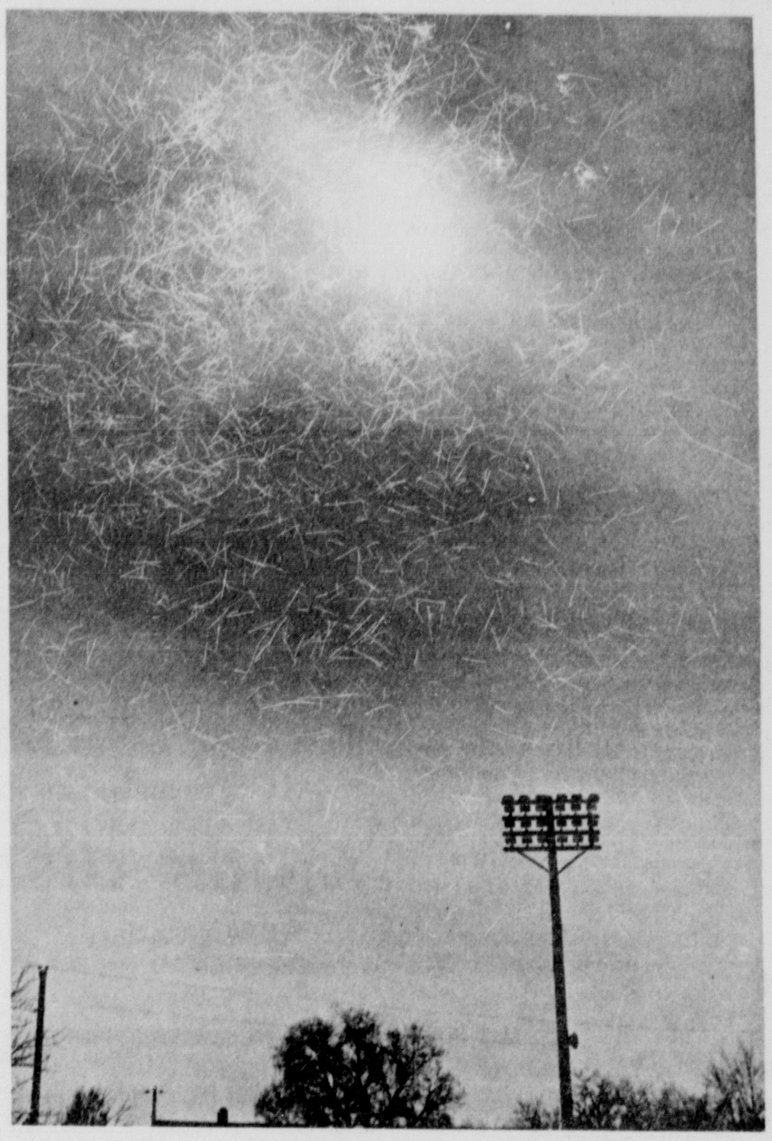
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Ohio's tax commissioner says he's not ready to change his agency's estimate of state income for the current fiscal period, even though actual revenues are running ahead of estimates.

Robert Kosydar said Tuesday an economic boom which his agency had thought would soften about the middle of September actually ran into October.

Then along came the energy crisis, he said, and there's no way to predict its impact.

A comparison of estimates with actual revenues shows income from eight sources about $63 million ahead of predictions.





THE EXPLOSION—Trick photography by Mark Thellmann, of The Record-Herald, provides a realistic scene of a UFO explosion in mid-air over Gardner Park Stadium where 30 Washington Senior High School students were involved in a soccer game.

If disaster should strike...

By MARK THELLMANN

A blinding flash of light burst in the sky and was followed by a static crackling and an exploding thunderclap.

Shrapnel rained down upon the ground making light thuds and then all was quiet until the screams started, the moaning sound of pain, the weeping the begging for help. . .

Thirty Washington Senior High students, who a moment earlier, had been involved in a soccer game, the girls challenging the boys, lay in puddles of their own blood on the playing field.

Shock victims, their faces a pale gray, wandered dreamily, searching for the reality which had just been blown far from their realm of comprehension.

A pretty blond-haired girl crawled around on the ground, whining like a puppy, searching for her right arm. It was nowhere to be seen.

A young boy lay on his side, disembowelled.

FATE HAD BEEN in an ironic mood at 1:45 p.m. Tuesday when the disaster occurred. The boy, who a second earlier, had attempted to kick a goal, now found himself twisted around the horizonal bar of the goal post. He uncoiled, fell to the ground and lost consciousness.

Radiation burns victims, their skin glowing red and raw, could only fix their mouths in a silent scream.

Two of the students lay dead.

Sandy Wisecup, who had driven from her home in Williamsport to see her Aunt Mary in Washington C.H., had been making a right turn off Main Street onto Circle Avenue which runs past the Gardner Park playing field, when the explosion sounded.

She questioned in her mind whether or not a tire had blown, but continued driving - until she caught a glimpse of the mangled bodies.

She stopped her car, took a closer look and ran to a neighboring house to notify police.

At the same time, Mr. Gary Shaffer, physical education instructor who had been watching the game from the stands, was also going for help. He was in shock, but unhurt.

EXACTLY four minutes later, police cars with red lights flashing and sirens blaring, pulled onto the field. Ambulances and the Fire Department were soon to follow.

Police blocked Main Street and Circle Avenue to public use in an effort

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Skylab 3's astronauts are concentrating on medical tests and preparations for a Thanksgiving day space walk.

With their orbiting home shipshape, Gerald P. Carr, William R. Pogue and Edward G. Gibson were able to settle down to research work that will occupy them the remainder of their record space journey.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Allen Sherman, 49, who rocketed to fame as a comedian in the early 1960s, died Tuesday of respiratory failure. A producer-writer, Sherman rose to prominence with his first recording, "Hello Mudder," in which he portrayed the mythical experiences of a youth at summer camp.

to give incoming and outgoing ambulances a clear path.

At the receiving end, sheriff's deputies were directing traffic in front of Fayette Memorial Hospital on Columbus Avenue.

Their instructions were to let no unauthorized persons into the hospital area. Parents were directed to Eastside Elementary School to await verification as to whether or not their children had participated in that fateful soccer game.

As the minutes wore on, the cries and screams diminished. At 2:15 p.m., the last victim, a hysterical blond-haired girl with a torn blouse, was led by two policemen to a waiting ambulance. It sped off and Gardner Park was engulfed in silence.

Reports from all over the surrounding area came in and stated a UFO had been spotted. Many had seen the blinding flash of light and heard the explosion and then the unidentified "blip" on the radar screens at Lockbourne Air Force Base just disappeared.

Although there was almost total disintegration, the few pieces of shrapnel which survived were taken to laboratories for analysis in hopes a clue would be found, explaining the visiting spacecraft which did so much harm.

THE ABOVE was this reporter's rendition of the "MOCK" disaster Tuesday afternoon, set up for the benefit of the Police Department, the Sheriff's Department, the Fire Department, the hospital staff, the media and the public, just in case Washington C.H. is ever confronted with a mass disaster.

Dr. Philip E. Binzel was chairman of the program and Mrs. Roy Coe, director of the school of practical nursing, supervised the make-up and victims at the disaster scene. She was assisted by Mrs. Byron Stinson who husband provided the make-up and props from the 907th tactnical Air Hospital at Lockbourne Air Force Base.

Thirty Washington Senior High School students were cast as victims.

The "UFO explosion theme" was suggested by this reporter of the Record Herald.

Robert L. Kunz, administrator of Fayette Memorial Hospital commented at the end of the drill, "I am considerably pleased with the way it came off. We discovered some "bugs" which was our original purpose in doing this, and now we'll have time to work them out - which is the most important thing."

A critique session will soon be scheduled to discuss the drill.

Lottery law takes effect

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A new law creating a state lottery became effective today, but it will be awhile before the first tickets go on sale.

The measure creates a state Lottery Commission, to be named by Gov. John Gilligan, and empowers the commission to implement and supervise the lottery. Appointments to the commission must be approved by the Senate.

Rep. Thomas Fries, D-35 Dayton, the main sponsor of the constitutional amendment approved by Ohio voters last May, noted that 45 per cent of the lottery's proceeds will be earmarked for prizes.

The remainder, after costs, will go into the state's general fund to help pay for Ohio's new bonus for Vietnam War era veterans.

Estimates of the lottery's gross yield have been placed at more than $100 million a year.

Freezing rain, snow lash U.S.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Snow and freezing rain lashed a wide area today as a Thanksgiving eve storm sweeping the midcontinent brought freezing temperatures as far south as northern Texas.

The snow and ice stretched from north-central Kansas to the Dakotas and Minnesota. Gusty winds and drifting snow blew through the mountains of western Oregon and the Sierras to Montana.

Freeze warnings were issued for parts of central and western Texas and Oklahoma. Six inches of snow piled up at Grand Island, Neb.

Locally heavy rains drenched the lower Mississippi Valley and thundershowers dampened areas from the central Gulf coast to southern Illinois and the lower Ohio Valley.

Almost 2 inches of rain washed Jackson, Tenn., and more than an inch soaked Memphis, Tenn.; Paducah, Ky., and Montgomery, Ala.

Gale warnings were issued for the western Great Lakes.

Tornadoes ripped through De Queen, Ark., Tuesday damaging or destroying 30 mobile homes. Later in the day, numerous twisters were sighted in Arkansas, Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana.

Several persons were treated for minor injuries after the Arkansas tornado. Tornadoes that churned across nine Oklahoma communities Monday night left five dead and 60 injured.

A new storm moving onto the Pacific Northwest coast brought gale warnings from northern California to Washington.

Skies were fair over Southern California and from the southern Plateau to the southern Plains and over most of Florida and the Northeast.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 4 at Dickinson, N.D., to 79 at Key West, Fla.

A cold front moving eastward across Ohio Wednesday afternoon and night will end showers expected to be scattered across the state part of the day. Fair weather is scheduled for the Thanksgiving Day holiday Thursday.

The showers moved eastward across the state Tuesday night and the National Weather Service said they can be expected to continue for a short time, along with fresh southerly breezes, until the cold front takes effect.

The air following the front is drier, but not very cold for this time of year, so mild conditions will continue for the remainder of the week. Temperatures this afternoon will be in the upper 50s and lower 60s, dropping tonight to near 40, with partly cloudy skies by Thursday morning.

The fair weather expected Thursday will have afternoon temperatures in the 50s north, and in the low 60s in southern Ohio, or some 5 to 10 degrees above normal for late November.

Fair and mild Friday. Chance of showers Saturday, clearing and cooler Sunday. Highs Friday from the mid 50s to low 60s, dropping to upper 40s and low 50s Sunday. Lows in the 40s or low 50s.

Recounts fail to overturn vote results

Two members of the Jasper Township Board of Trustees and all New Holland village councilmen held their respective offices following two recounts held Tuesday night by the Fayette County Board of Elections.

No changes were reproted in the New Holland Council race after the recount of votes in the West Holland Precinct of Fayette County.

Miss Vicki L. Sheets, who had lost her bid for a Council seat by only two votes, filed the request for a recount in the West Holland Precinct. No recount was held in Pickaway County for other New Holland precincts since electric voting machines are used in that county.

Russell L. Jacobs, Robert Frazier, Josef Louis and Ivan C. Hyer were elected to the four vacant Council seats. Miss Sheets filed the recount request after receiving 117 votes compared with 119 for Hyer.

Johnny Dale Blair and James Pierson held their seats on the Jasper Township Board of Trustees despite the recount, which was filed by Arnett W. Kelley, of Milledgeville.

Blair edged Kelley by one vote (138-137) in the Nov. 6 general election, but the recount disclosed six more votes for Blair and only one more for Kelley. Blair had 144 votes after the recount and Kelley picked up one. Pierson was the top vote-getter at the election with 247 votes and he also picked up one more vote following the recount.

Blair gained the six votes in two of the four precincts which voted on the board of trustee candidates. He gained one in Milledgeville and five in the Selden precinct. Kelley and Pierson each gained one vote in the Plymouth precinct.

Members of the Fayette County Board of Elections are Milbourne Barney, Richard Kimmet, Mrs. Charlene Cunningham and Dwight Bell.

Economist says U.S. 'land of shortages'

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — A New York economist says the United States is no longer the land of plenty, but "is the developing land of shortages."

Dr. Pierre A. Rinfred told 1,000 northern Ohio industrialists and business leaders Tuesday that Americans can avoid a recession next year only by economizing on energy in every way possible.

"Economy and energy go together," he said, addressing Central National Bank's 12th annual economic forecast luncheon.

"Without an increase of 2 per cent in available energy in 1974, this country is going into a recession."

Rinfret, head of a financial and investment consulting firm, said a recession would be accompanied by an increase in unemployment.

"We have to grow 3½ per cent a year in industrial production to put our increased labor force to work," he continued. "In 1974 our unemployment force could approximate 7 to 8 per cent."

He said the energy crisis had been developing for some time but no one would face it.

"Even before the energy crisis became public, even before the people would believe it, it was apparent that the American economy would weaken in 1974," Rinfret continued.

He said that two years ago President Nixon sent the first message on energy ever sent to Congress, "but for two years Congress has ignored that message."

"There were 68,000 oil wells drilled in this country in 1958 but there will be only 12,000 this year because Congress decided the depletion allowance should be eliminated from oil exploration," he said.

Rinfret said Americans have been wasting 6 per cent of the country's energy resources every year.

"We are blowing energy," he continued. "We are building buildings in which windows can't be opened. They have to have air conditioning or heat all year."

He predicted that revitalized American production would come out of the energy situation.

"The energy crisis is an opportunity for industry to make people understand what it has been saying for 20 years—that economic expansion is necessary to the growth of the country," he added.

Rinfret said at a news conference after the luncheon that industrial expansion had been stopped "because of the environmental consideration.

"I'm all for improving the environment," he continued, "but it should be put more in balance with product expansion."

He said that more coal should be used, pointing out that it is the country's most abundant resource.

"We are facing a no-growth economy because of the energy crisis and with a no-growth economy we will have unemployment," Rinfret said.

He said he did not believe the Nixon administration wanted gasoline rationing and would consider such a move "only as the last resort. It doesn't want any more controls on the system."

Army holds key to Greek power

ATHENS (AP) — President George Papadopoulos' use of tanks and troops to quell student-sparked rioting demonstrated the dominant role the army still plays in the affairs of Greece.

One previous precedent was set in 1967 when the army toppled the parliamentary democracy, bringing the then-Col. Papadopoulos to power. Observers say only a countercoup by the army could dislodge him. And there are no signs of that happening.

"They were scared this time so they called in the troops," said a politican who was prominent before the coup. "It was a sign of panic."

One theory circulating here says Papadopoulos brought in the army during the riots last week partly for fear of losing control of it if he let it stand idle during the disturbances. But other views hold that if the strongman president hadn't moved to crush the protests, the rioters would have had time to marshal more support for bringing down the government.

Students were prominent among the rioters. But George Mavros, an ex-Cabinet minister who was put under house arrest Tuesday night, said it was the additional support the students gained that led to the stiff reaction by the government.

Mavros was arrested along with another former cabinet minister John Zigdis and Panayotis Canellopoulos, 71, the premier of the government that Papadapoulos toppled. The government rounded up 46 more dissidents in the capital, bringing the number in custody to 250, and said all schools of higher learning would be closed until Dec. 10.

Students had staged numerous protests earlier this year, beginning with purely academic grievances, but stood alone and were silenced by arrests and a government decree drafting them into the army.

New outbursts arose after Nov. 4, when clashes took place between police and mourners attending a memorial service for the popular George Papandreou, the former liberal premier. The sentencing of five persons in connection with the disturbances led to a four-day sit-in at the Athens Polytechnic Institute.

Police investigate larceny complaints

A 12-year-old Washington C.H. girl was charged by police Tuesday with "larceny by trick."

The girl had gone door-to-door collecting donations in orders to buy flowers for her deceased aunt," officers said.

One of the donors reported the incident at 3:50 p.m. and the girl was apprehended with $2.79 of the donation money on her person.

A Dayton Power and Light Co. service truck was rifled sometime between 5 p.m. Tuesday and 7:58 a.m. Wednesday while it was parked in the DP&L parking lot at 101 East St.

Police were told a two-way radio microphone, two speakers, a bullhorn, 100 feet of nylon tape and a "dip needle" for locating underground curb boxes had been taken.

Special prosecutor law balked

WASHINGTON (AP) — A closely divided Senate Judiciary Committee is trying to resolve differences over legislation to provide for an independent special Watergate prosecutor.

Some members said they may wind up today by sending rival measures to the Senate without recommendation.

One measure, sponsored by 55 senators, provides for appointment of a special prosecutor by the U.S. District Court here.

Others, differing in details, provide for appointment by the president, subject to Senate confirmation, and would bar dismissal except for specific causes.

The House Judiciary Committee already has approved a bill for a court-appointed prosecutor, but its chances of being passed by the House are regarded as highly uncertain.

Demands for legislation arose after the firing, on President Nixon's orders, of Archibald Cox on Oct. 20 as the special prosecutor.

Since then Leon Jaworski, a Houston, Tex., trial lawyer and a Democrat, has been appointed by Acting Atty. Gen. Robert H. Bork as Cox's successor.

Jaworski told the Senate Judiciary Committee Tuesday that all of the investigations started by Cox have been carried on "without missing a beat."

One of the chief arguments raised against providing for a court-appointed prosecutor is that such legislation is of doubtful constitutionality and would delay and confuse the on-going investigation.

Sponsors of rival measures for Senate confirmation of the prosecutor said they assumed that under such legislation the president would nominate Jaworski.

During Jaworski's testimony before the Judiciary Committee Tuesday, the questions seemed to be based on the assumption that he would be continuing in the job.

"I am acting completely independently," Jaworski said. He testified he would not have accepted appointment without assurances that no restraints would be placed on his independence.

And he said he feels he has a binding charter that the President cannot fire him except with the consensus of the congressional leaders of both parties.

Jaworski also revealed that he has received White House assurances that he can listen to tapes and inspect documents to pass on claims of national security.

Jaworski said that none of his requests to the White House for documents has been turned down. However, none of the material has yet been furnished, he said.

He said Buzhardt and Haig had told him there were staff problems in getting the documents together but had given no indication he would not get them.

However, he said he had written a letter Monday asking for them by a certain date. And if they are not forthcoming, he said, he will not hesitate to take court action to obtain the evidence he wants.

Nuclear energy safeguards

The energy crisis has given impetus to arguments for a hammer-and-tongs effort to greatly increase the production of nuclear power. The idea has appeal at a time when available fossil fuel supplies are dwindling. However, it would be foolish to embark on a big nuclear plant construction program without adequate protection of the public interest.

Much doubt exists as to the adequacy of safeguards under present Atomic Energy Commission rules. It has even been suggested that for the nation to commit itself to heavy reliance on nuclear energy would be potentially disastrous.

The merits of such concerns are hard to assess. Even a layman who has done some reading on the subject may find it hard to form a judgment. Thus it would be helpful to have the benefit of an independent expert study of the AEC's guidelines and performance.

This is the thrust of legislation just introduced by Rep. Hamilton Fish Jr. of New York. He proposes "a comprehensive investigation by the National Academy of Sciences, which would then report its findings and recommendations back to Congress within one year." The bill provides that during this period the AEC would not be allowed to issue any new construction permits.

The scope of the inquiry, Fish told his colleagues in the House, would include the following: licensing procedures, criteria for choosing nuclear plant sites, plant security and design, AEC monitoring of plant operations, the level of "routine radioactive emissions" now permitted, nuclear plants' environmental effects, the risk of accident, public-protection plans in case of accident.

Some might argue that the contemplated one-year delay in issuance of new construction permits would run contrary to the national interest. Our view is that rushing into a massive construction program without a careful review of safety considerations might in the long run do vastly more harm.

A WORD EDGEWISE . . . by John P. Roche

Dante missed one

Dante in his "Inferno" displayed remarkable imagination in describing the various tortures of the damned, but being a man of his time he missed the malevolent delights of what must be the lowest circle in Hell: Accompanying a youngster who is preparing to take the test for a drover's license.

For reasons hidden in her psyche, our daughter never displayed any interest in driving. She would climb on her bike and ride up to 350 miles; she would take a collection of ropes and miscellaneous hardware and go off rock-climbing.

One day on Martha's Vineyard I watched her swim about four miles to vent her aggressions against a sailboat that persisted in overturning. But as far as driving a car — no interest.

SUDDENLY this summer we realized that if — as she wished — she was going to attend the university as a day student, driving was an absolute necessity. She enrolled in a course at a driving school, fulfilled the state requirements, drove around in a special car with dual controls.

Great! However, she needed more practice before taking her test, especially in the car she is going to drive and my wife cheerfully volunteered my services. So, pipe grimly clenched in my mouth, I climbed into the "death seat," attached every belt I could find, and accompanied her on her trial runs. (I secretly inquired whether an air-bag could be installed in a 1968 Valiant, but got only looks of contemptuous disdain.)

Now before we go any further I should say that in objective terms she is a very careful, well-coordinated driver. The problem is my reaction to anybody else's driving. This I inherited from my own basic training back in 1939 when my father was commanded by my mother to prepare me for the test. We went out on back streets in the car and it was perfectly clear that he didn't think I was competent to ride a scooter.

Moreover, on the road he was a complete paranoid. His fundamental conviction was that every other car on the road was out to get you. Thus if you came within four feet of a vehicle coming down the other side of the road, he would yell, "Get over to the right, you dumb cluck." (Or words to that effect.)

Indeed, years later, as we were driving to my wedding with me at the wheel, I realized that he was sitting there next to me with his foot on an imaginary brake. Whenever I came within a hundred yards of the car in front of me, he would start to pump.

He made me so nervous I pulled over to the side and said, "You drive." Getting married was nerve-wracking enough.

DAD WAS, in short, the original "defensive driver" and in fairness it might be noted that his training took: in the subsequent years I have never been at fault in an accident or (and here one should make the sign of the Cross) been ticketed for a moving traffic violation. However, as preparation for riding with a driver in flight-training his instruction was perfectly horrendous.

Well, to make a long story short, we have been out practicing now for about a month. Our daughter, who is quite perceptive, spotted my hang-up early on and goes out of her way to be reassuring.

We haven't had anything resembling a near-miss and my mind tells me "Relax." Yet there I sit, foot on an imaginary pedal, hands clutched to a nonexistent wheel, meditating on Dante and the unavailability of airbags.

Wouldn't "Abandon hope, all ye who enter here" be an appropriate summary of parenthood?

THESE DAYS . . . by John Chamberlain

Puritanical generation coming up?

There's a real generation gap in the making. It's not between the young and the middle-aged; it's between the 17-year-olds and their elder brothers and sisters who are now in college.

At Princeton University, for example, the mood of the Sixties is still dominant; I have had to cancel a Yale game festivity with an old Princeton friend because he can't bear to shuffle past the tattered blue-jeaned co-eds and kick the beer cans out of his way to get to a seat in Princeton's Palmer Stadium.

A publication called Prospect, put out by the Concerned Alumni of Princeton, notes that 37 out of 40 speakers invited to Princeton in 1973 were "left of center." The three speakers representing the conservative side were columnists William Buckley and Ralph de Toledano, obvious "tokenists," and White House staffer Peter Flanigan.

AT THE OTHER extreme were Congressman Father Drinan of Massachusetts, Angela Davis, Alger Hiss, Communist Party leader Gus Hall, Stokely Carmichael, former Congressman Allard Lowenstein, Jill Johnston (billed as a "radical lesbian"), Ralph Abernathy of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, and Gerard Chaliland, speaking on Third World revolutions.

Talk about the Fairness Doctrine! It's something when Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas or Leonard Woodcock of the United Automobile Workers represents the Princeton idea of a middle-of-the-road lecturer.

One can make a rather safe prediction, however, that the current crop of Ivy League juniors and seniors who demand Leftist raw meat and easy sex morals represent a rapidly dwindling minority.

In eavesdropping on my son's junior high school classmates a couple of years ago I was struck by their Puritanism. At first I thought this must be a normal pre-adolescent characteristic that would shortly give way to something different. But now comes the annual survey of high school leaders put out by Who's Who Among American High School Students of Northfield, Ill.

A tabulation of responses from 26,000 "high achievers" among the junior and senior high school classes of 1972-73 would seem to prove that the young are now rejecting all the values — or lack of values — of the rebellious Sixties. Sexual promiscuity is frowned upon; the pot culture is derided; family life is "in" and the urge to cop out by fleeing to a commune is quiescent.

Let's begin with the home life of the 17-year-old. Sixty-five per cent of those questioned say their relations with their parents are "happy and close most of the time." Twenty-nine per cent say their home life is "just satisfactory." Only 5 per cent profess to being "unhappy most of the time," and a mere one per cent declined to answer. Thirty-six per cent said they could communicate "easily" with their parents, and 47 per cent gave an "about average" answer to the communication question.

THE DRUG CULTURE, according to the survey, seems to be vanishing from most places. Seventy-two per cent of the students have never smoked marijuana, 60 per cent do not approve the use of the stuff, and 54 per cent do not even think it should be legalized. As for hard drugs, the disapproval votes are in the 980 per cent area.

Yet 82 per cent said they could easily purchase even the hardest of drugs "in or near your high school." The overwhelming rejection of the drug culture, then, is almost entirely voluntary. Oddly enough, it is in the private schools of the Northeast that the marijuana cult seems to be making its last stand.

In the high schools the vaunted sex revolution just ain't there. Eighty-three per cent of the students favor "traditional marriage as practiced by most people today." Sixty-two per cent are against "legalized trial marriage," 58 per cent do not condemn couples living together but add that they "would not participate" in such a practice themselves.

The high school students don't love Richard Nixon, but even after the Watergate disclosures only 4 per cent want to see the President impeached. An incredible 50 per cent of the students rated Nixon's overall performance in office as "satisfactory." Eighty-eight per cent approve the Nixon foreign policy, as symbolized by the China trip.

Memo to my Princeton friend: let's renew our Yale game reunions in 1975. The "new" young will be taking over the campus by then.

The annual catch of Canada's fishing industry amounts to approximately 2.5 billion pounds, with a market value of more than $340 million.

Ohio Perspective

Election procedure muddled

By ROBERT E. MILLER
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio may elect a 19-day U.S. Senator next year. It depends on a couple of "ifs."

Will state law be changed before election?

Will an interim appointee get his name on the ballot twice and win both a short and a long term?

The situation stems from President Nixon's nomination of incumbent U.S. Sen. William B. Saxbe, R-Ohio, as U.S. Attorney General.

If the Senate confirms Saxbe, Gov. John J. Gilligan will have the job of naming a successor for an interim term that expires by state law on Dec. 15, 1974.

Saxbe's present term expires Jan. 3, 1975. A new six-year term beginning on that date will go to the winner of the November, 1974, general election.

Gilligan's appointee would be out of office Dec. 14, 1974. The newly elected senator wouldn't take office until Jan. 3, 1975, leaving a senatorless gap.

If Saxbe's interim successor also wanted to run for the 19-day term, Dec. 14-Jan. 3, he would have to win nomination in a special primary called by Gilligan prior to the general election, then have his name on the November ballot for both terms and win both.

Brown said it is risky for a candidate to have his name on the ballot two times.

"The voter may say, 'I've already voted for him,' " said Brown. "It could mean that he might win the short term and lose the big one."

If the candidate won both, of course, it would give him the obvious advantage of Senate seniority over other freshmen being sworn into the Senate for the first time in 1975.

The problem has arisen before in recent state history. In 1966 then acting state Auditor Roger Cloud went for and won a full four-year term while former Republican state Rep. Archer Reilly of Columbus won the short term and kept the auditor's office in Republican hands during the interm.

If Brown has his way the problem won't come up next year. He said he planned to offer the legislature a bill that would do away with the short term provision and let the interim appointee serve until Jan. 3.

Brown pointed out that the U.S. Constitution leaves it up to the states to decide how to fill their congressional vancancies.

Jaworski gets boost

WASHINGTON (AP) — Acting Atty. Gen. Robert H. Bork issued a regulation Tuesday designed to strengthen the investigation by special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski.

The regulation orders that Jaworski's jurisdiction will not be limited without the approval of eight congressional leaders.

The Justice Department regulation amends previously issued rules which require a consensus of eight leaders of Congress before President Nixon could fire Jaworski.

The additional regulation says, "The jurisdiction of the special prosecutor will not be limited without the President's first consulting with such members of Congress and ascertaining that their consensus is in accord with his proposed action."

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Son's a wrong number — mother tells him so

DEAR ABBY: My 15-year-old son has built a bedroom in our garage. He asked me if he could install an extension phone out there as a friend of his had done. I told him I thought it was illegal and he should not do it.

I returned from a brief trip to find that he installed a phone in his room. (He bought the instrument from a radio shack store.)

Also, he has two road signs mounted on his wall. He said one was given to him by a friend, and the other he picked out of a gutter after having seen it there for a year. (I believe him.)

I think the phone should be removed from our son's room unless he is willing to have it installed by the phone company and pay monthly charges. I also believe the road signs should be taken down, since they were county property. What do you think?

A MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: The same principle is involved in both instances. Bypassing the phone company is taking a free ride on their monthly service, even though the instrument was purchased elsewhere. Keeping road signs that belong to the county is also dishonest. I'm with you, mother.

DEAR READERS: If you are not accustomed to saying grace before each meal, but would like to offer a thinksgiving prayer at your table on this Thanksgiving Day, mine is yours for the reading. And here it is:

O, heavenly Father,
We thank Thee for the food
And remember the hungry.
We thank Thee for health
And remember the sick.
We thank Thee for friends
And remember the friendless
We thank Thee for freedom
And remember the enslaved.
May these remembrances stir us to service
That Thy gifts to us may be used for others.
Amen.

(Have a wonderful Thanksgiving, Love, Abby)

DEAR ABBY: I work in a hospital, and I wish you would please devote a little space in your column to the way people should conduct themselves when visiting a patient in the hospital. Recently a patient was admitted with a serious heart condition.

The patient's sister entered, hysterical and in tears. She threw herself upon the patient (who was wired and bottled on both sides) and screamed: "Thank God you're alive. I thought you'd be dead by the time I got back!"

Then the patient's husband said to his ailing wife: "When I told So and So you were rushed to the hospital with a heart attack, she said: "She'll never make it!"

This kind of talk at the bedside of a patient is uncalled for, and detrimental to the welfare of the patient. Please ask people to think before they speak, even though they are emotionally upset.

The Church Street United Methodist Church in Knoxville, Tenn., was the setting for the marriage of Miss Cheryl Lynn Loudermilk and Edward George Heath.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Joseph Loudermilk of Knoxville, and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Graham Heath, 6 Royal Court.

The Rev. Robert Wilcox performed the double ring ceremony at 6 p.m. Nov. 10 before an altar enhanced with shrimp flowers, greenery, and candelabra. Mrs. Frank Braden, vocalist, presented several nuptial selections.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of imported organza and peau d'ange lace with high neckline, feminine lace bodice and long fitted sleeves. The full circular silhouette, appliqued with peau d'ange lace completed the traditional look of elegance. Her veil, a camelot cap, held her imported organza chapel length mantilla Alencon lace and English illusion. She carried a cascade of white roses, carnations and ivy.

Miss Donna Sue Jones of Taullahoma, Tenn., was maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Miss Melanie Heath, sister of the groom, and Miss Kim Carroll of Harrogate, Tenn.

The attendants wore long sleeved gowns of mint green crepe with emerald green velvet trimming the lay-back collars and cuffs. Their headpieces were of emerald green velvet. They carried mint green carnations and white carnations with green ivy nosegays.

The bride's mother chose for her daughter's wedding a turquoise gown, and the groom's mother wore a rose colored gown. Both mothers wore white orchid corsages.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents following the wedding.

The couple is now residing at Rt. 1, Lenoir City, Tenn., following a wedding trip to Disneyworld and Miami Beach, Fla. They are spending the Thanksgiving holidays with the groom's parents and other relatives.

Serve tarts Thanksgiving

BY CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

An inexpensive way to entertain during the Thanksgiving weekend, either in the afternoon or evening, is to ask friends to come for coffee and cake. For the "cake" we suggest Holiday Tartlets — a happy combination of pastry, jam and sponge cake. These tartlets have a lot to recommend them. They're made with everyday ingredients. They're ideal finger-good so no forks are needed. They're attractive and satisfying.

To make life easy, you may want to use paper cups and plates for such a party. There are many designs to choose from; one of the newest is an all-over blue and white calico pattern that comes in cups, plates and bowls; it is available in supermarkets and variety stores and is one of the best looking paper-service designs we've seen.

HOLIDAY TARTLETS

Tartlet pastry, recipe follows
1 cup plus 2 tablespoons strawberry or raspberry jam
1-3rd cup sifted cake flour
⅛ teaspoon cream of tartar
1-16th teaspoon salt
2 eggs
1-3rd cup sugar
½ teaspoon vanilla

Prepare pastry; with your hands roll it into eighteen 1¼-inch balls. Press evenly into ungreased muffin-pan cups (each 2½ by 1¼ inches). Chill 10 minutes. Spoon 1 tablespoon jam into each pastry shell.

On wax paper or in a small bowl sift together the flour, cream of tartar and salt.

Separate eggs, putting whites in medium bowl of electric mixer and yolks in small bowl. Beat egg whites until soft peaks form; gradually beat in sugar and continue beating until stiff peaks form. Without washing beater, beat yolks until thick and ivory color; beat in vanilla; fold into egg whites. Gradually sift flour mixture over egg mixture, folding it in as you do so. Spoon a heaping tablespoon of the batter over the jam in each pastry shell.

Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven until lightly browned — 20 to 25 minutes. Cool 5 minutes on wire racks, then remove tartlets by inserting a table knife between pastry and pan and lifting enough to be able to remove with fingers. Cool completely on racks. Store in a tightly covered tin box.

Makes 18.

TARTLET PASTRY

½ cup butter or margarine
¼ cup sugar
1 egg
2 cups flour, stir to aerate before measuring.

Cream butter and sugar; beat in egg. Add flour and stir until blended. Form into a ball with hands.

Club plans to attend 'open house'

The Busy Bee Garden Club of Jeffersonville met in the home of Mrs. Rowena Cummins. Mrs. Ruth Sheeley, president, opened the meeting with the poem, "Regal Autumn."

Several items were brought for the Community Outreach program, and cards were signed for the shut-ins.

The club will go to Duff's at Wilmington Nov. 27 for a luncheon and then to Swindlers 'open house' afterwards.

Roll call was answered by 10 members naming 'formal gardens.' Don Creamer showed slides of Williamsburg and other gardens he visited. The poem "Prayer of Thanksgiving" was read by Mrs. Sheeley for the closing.

Auxiliary plans party

Fifteen were present for the meeting of the Burnett-Ducey VFW Auxiliary 4964 meeting, when the group met in the VFW Hall, W. Elm St. Mrs. Clark Rumer conducted the meeting and Mrs. James Puckett, chaplain, gave the opening prayer.

The group voted to participate in the Christmas parade, and some Auxiliary members and Post members will ride in the parade on Dec. 1.

Plans were made for the annual Christmas party for 6:30 p.m. Dec. 17 for all members and their immediate families. A $1.00 gift exchange will be a feature, and members will bring gifts for their own children. The meat will be provided and members will bring a salad, vegetable or dessert.

The shut-ins will be remembered with flowers, and a Christmas basket will be given to the veterans families who are disabled.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Maurice Farmer and Mrs. Esther Hyer. Mrs. Margaret Clickner was winner of the door prize.

Hostesses for the Dec. 3 meeting will be Mrs. Ambers Conley and Mrs. Walter Wilson.

Stitch and Chat Club adds members

Members of the Stitch and Chat Club of Jeffersonville met in the Lion's Club Room for the monthly carry-in noon luncheon. Following this, Mrs. Joe Ferguson presided at the meeting, when 16 members answered roll call. Mrs. Earl Sweeney read the September minutes, and gave an interesting account of the trip the club enjoyed in October to the Piqua Historic State Memorial Park. She also told of the boat cruise on the Erie Canal, taken by the 41 members and guests.

Members voted to make 'ditty bags' for the project, to be sent to the VA Hospital, Chillicothe.

Thank you notes were read for the lap robes friends had received. Two new members, Mrs. Nathan Ervin and Mrs. M.C. Creamer, were welcomed to the group.

Christmas gifts for the veterans at Chillicothe are to be left with Mrs. Ferguson by Dec. 1.

Hostesses for the luncheon were Mrs. Thelma Cline, Mrs. Lois Campbell and Mrs. Pauline Hoppes.

Mrs. Ferguson will be hostess to the club carry in luncheon Dec. 14 at noon, with a gift exchange. Hostesses assisting her will be Mrs. Agnes Ford and Mrs. Marie Thompson.

PERSONALS

Dr. and Mrs. J.G. Jordan, 170 Carolyn Rd., attended a conference on 'Evangelism' in Taft Auditorium, Cincinnati, this past week. Once again, Mrs. Jordan chatted with Mrs. Helen Steiner Rice, poet and authoress, who resides in the Sheraton-Gibson Hotel, where the Jordans were guests.

Willing Workers announce new officers

The Willing Workers Class of the Madison Mills United Methodist Church met for a meeting in the church annex, which was gaily decorated with a Thanksgiving theme. Mrs. John Melvin gave devotions and John Stamer conducted the business session.

The following officers were presented by the nominating committee: President, Tom Miller; vice president, Roger Dorn; secretary, Mrs. Gary Hidy; treasurer, Mrs. Roger Dorn; and news reporter, Mrs. Melvin. Serving on the devotional committee will be Mrs. Dwight Reid, Mrs. John Stamer and Mrs. Alvin Johnson; flower and card chairman is Mrs. Max Schlichter. These officers will assume their duties Jan. 1, 1974.

The nominating committee consisted of John Melvin, John Delay and Alvin Johnson.

Class members discussed the possibility of providing a Thanksgiving basket for a family in the community. Members voted to aid a family whose need had been presented. Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Stamer will deliver the basket. Members may leave the food items with Mrs. Johnson or Mrs. Stamer. The class also voted to make a cash donation toward the purchase of Christmas decorations for the church.

It was announced that the Christmas meeting at the church will be held Dec. 9 with a carry-in dinner at 6 p.m., and a 50 cent gift exchange for the children. Hosts will be Mr. and Mrs. Reid, Mr. and Mrs. Delay and Mr. and Mrs. Schlichter.

Introducing . . .

By NANCY BENTLEY

This week the Miami Tracer is proud to introduce Mr. William Sowash. Mr. Sowash spent most of his life in Mansfield before he and his wife Mrs. Sandra Sowash (also a teacher at Miami Trace) moved to this community.

He attended and graduated from Mansfield High School. After high school he went to a branch of Ohio State University in Mansfield. In the two years that he was there he was a member of the Circle K Club, the basketball team, and on the student government. While on the student government he helped write the constitution for the university. He also organized a Bicycle and Archery Club. Then he moved to the main campus of Ohio State for two and half more years of study. His major in the four and a half year span was Social Studies Education.

Now Mr. Sowash is teaching World History, World Geography, and Psychology. He enjoys camping, all types of sports, and being an assistant scout master.

When asked of his opinion of Miami Trace he had this to say, "Because of the friendliness of the people and the fact that Miami Trace is similar to the high school I graduated from, I feel quite at home here."

State oil, gas drilling figures are incorrect

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A report issued Oct. 31 announcing drilling of oil and gas wells in the state had increased by nearly 56 per cent was in error, the Ohio Department of Natural Resources says. The agency said 19 per cent is a more accurate figure.

A department spokesman blamed the erroneous report on "incorrect well drilling information provided ...by an independent drilling scout report."

4-H Round-Up

How well do you eat?

By JEANNIE ANDERSON
4-H Assistant

Everyone has to eat to live. How well you eat - not necessarily how much you eat - affects your life.

4-H programs in nutrition begin at an early age when youngsters learn about the basic kinds of food which will help them enjoy life more. . . help them study, work, and play with vim, vigor and vitality.

As in all 4-H projects, youngsters learn by doing to choose the right foods, to plan meals, to cook meats and vegetables, to bake and to serve meals. Both boys and girls often gather at the home of a 4-H leader to bake cookies or biscuits and to learn how you can make food taste better by cooking it porperly.

Malnutrition is not just a problem for people in low incomes. It is a universal problem simply because many people think that having plenty to eat - all rice or all meat is their only concern.

But for people in low income areas, the 4-H expanded nutrition program has special meaning, for often these families have little knowledge about how to use their limited resources for the best interest of the health of their families.

THROUGH THE WORK of nutrition experts with the help of 4-H members, many families are learning for the first time that they can have milk every day by using the powdered variety, that they can stretch a small budget by combining some meat or fish with noodles or rice and provide a delicisou meal for their families.

Another aspect is the home gardens that are becoming popular projects in many urban and suburban areas where 4-H members are growing fresh greens and vegetables.

Campers and hikers must learn not only about the basic foods but how they can pack and cook foods for trips that will be easily cooked or eaten cold, but which will still give them the basic nutrients necessary if they are going to enjoy the out-of-doors.

The 4-H food and nutrition projects are designed to teach girls and boys the know-how of nutrition and cookery in an interesting and real-life way so that each project meeting will be a real value to the members.

Young artisans rejuvenate crafts

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Young artisans will help revive the spirit of '76 when the United States celebrates its 200th birthday.

Their interest in early American crafts — quilting, weaving, silversmithing, pewtering, stencilling and so on — will help make the Centennial an authentic experience, predicts Tom Glennon, president of The Hitchcock Chair Co. of Riverton, Conn., where some youthful artists work and others are to be encouraged to run their own handicraft businesses. The original chair company closed down in 1863 and was revived in 1946.

The hordes of young people interested in crafts should allay fears of antiquarians that other traditional crafts, architectual and the like, are dying out. Youthful craftsmen are interested in everything, he said in an interview here.

"In fact they are helping us do things we haven't been able to do before," Glennon insists. "They are reproducing, freehand and stencil, Currier and Ives scenes, and our limited edition series that depict Mt. Vernon, Monticello, the Adams House and Philadelphia scenes. Their artistic embellishments make manufactures articles look handcrafted."

IN ADDITION to furniture refinishing and decorating, young workers weave rush seats as they were woven more than a century ago. They also steambend wood, paint tavern signs and so on.

"They are happiest doing their thing and we are going to help them run their own business. We've bought a section of town and are putting in eight or ten shops. Our plan is to subsidize young people in various crafts."

Many other chair companies predated the original Hitchcock Company and perhaps some 50 companies were mass-producing fancy chairs between 1810 and 1860 at the height of their popularity, but present-day nostalgia has been built around the revived company because it is turning out chairs in the old way.

The original factory was decaying when Glennon's father-in-law, John Kenney, bought it and the trademark 27 years ago, refurbished it and planned it as a part-time enterprise while he ran his shoe store in Hartford. But it was soon going full steam and now turns out some 3,000 chairs a week and some 100 different items.

Although the original company was among the first to mass-produce Boston-type rocking chairs, it is best known for its dark, gold-striped chairs with decorated rails. Other companies make such chairs using the name generically.

THIS YEAR more than 40,000 tourists visited the company's museum — a former church where Hitchcock was married in 1830 — to view the original chairs that are on display. Only those signed and made between 1926 and 1940 are considered "real Hitchcocks" Glennon insists.

Youthful employes were encouraged even in Hitchcock's day. In 1832 a help wanted advertisement he placed read, "two or three young men, 16 to 20 years of age, of industrious habits who will abstain from the use of ardent spirits can have steady employment."

Today many employes are husband and wife teams — some are Czechoslovakian and Hungarian refugees who established colonies near the factory. One girl, a furniture stripper, has been in slave labor camps under both Germans and Russians, Glennon said. Older workers who have grown with the company assume the supervisory jobs.

Maple and birch used in furniture production have been imported from South America in recent years while the United States was behind in logging, but now woods are available here, says Glennon, himself a former logger.

He joined the company after a five-year stint in the Navy, and after seven years assumed the presidency four years ago, when Kenney retired.

Reclamation costs bared

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — An engineering study of abandoned strip-mined areas in southeastern Ohio has determined it would take 95 years and cost $283 million to reclaim the land.

The report by Skelly & Loy of Columbus for the Ohio Board of Unreclaimed Strip Mine Lands, said more than 368,000 have been strip mined, 24,000 acres of which still are being mined.

The report will be examined by the state agency before any action is recommended.

The energy crisis could affect the time it will take to reclaim the mined lands, the report noted.

But the consultants recommended that efforts begin immediately in portions of Gallia, Jackson, Vinton and Meigs counties.

Also participating in the study were the Batelle Memorial Institute, Arthur Young & Co. of Toledo and the school of landscape architecture at Ohio State University.

Scientists estimated that the river at Niagara Falls has eaten its way upstream about seven miles in 25,000 years.

Rotary seeks youths for study abroad

The Washington C.H. Rotary Club is seeking young men and women in the Fayette County area as candidates for Rotary Foundation educational awards for study abroad in 1975-76.

Phil Grover, Rotary president, said the Foundation offers four types of educational awards including Graduate Fellowships, for those who have received a bachelor's degree or equivalent and are between the ages of 20 and 28; Undergraduate Scholarships, for those with a minimum of two years of university level work and are the ages of 18 to 24; Technical Training Awards, for those with a secondary education and at least two years' working experience and are the ages of 21 to 35; Awards to Teachers of the Handicapped, for those who have been engaged as full-time teachers of the mentally, physically or educationally handicapped for at least two years at the time of application and are the ages of 25 to 50.

Each award includes round-trip transportation, educational and living expenses for one academic year and funds for intensive language training, if necessary, Grover said.

The Foundation started its programs of sending young adults abroad for study in 1947, and since that time, the Foundation has awarded more than $17.5 million for its various programs and more than 6,000 young men and women have gone to countries other than their own for a year of study. As a non-profit organization, the Rotary Foundation is supported by voluntary contributions from Rotarians, Rotary clubs and friends of Rotary in 150 different countries.

Further information about the Foundation programs may be obtained by contacting Dan Wolford, chairman of the Rotary Foundation committee, or Grover.

Redman president announces changes

DALLAS, Tex. — Redman Industries, Inc. announces that it has signed an agreement with Lincoln Property Co. to assume the property management responsibilities for more than 14,000 multi-family garden apartments units. This agreement, effective Jan. 1, 1974, calls for Lincoln company to assume all the property management activities that are presently being performed by Redman Development Corp. Lee Posey, president of Redman Industries said, "This is an additional step in our ultimate disengagement from the real estate development field." Posey also announced that a subsidiary, Redman Building Products, had agreed in principle to sell its kitchen cabinet manufacturing operation to the Triangle Pacific Corp., a New York based company. This agreement is subject to approval by the boards of directors of the respective companies.

The company indicted that October revenues were $26,122,600 which represents an expected 7 per cent decline from the previous October's record high revenues of $28,104,200.

Discussing the mobile home aspect of the company's business, Posey said: "Our mobile home subsidiary has already shipped over 37,000 homes this calendar year compared to 36,937 for all of last year.

The earth's core is made up of molten iron-nickel at a temperature of 3,700 degrees Centigrade.

Miami Trace to continue junior high study

The Fayette County Board of Education Tuesday night reviewed the results of the proposed new junior high school bond issue which appeared on the November ballot and established a date for a follow-up study on the matter.

The board also took care of a number of miscellaneous and routine matters including adopting policies to conserve energy in the county's schools during the crisis. (See separate story).

Members of the board of education will meet with the Miami Trace School Study Committee and those persons who publicly endorsed the proposed bond issue at 8 p.m. Monday, Dec. 3, in the high school cafeteria to consider action since the issue was defeated by school district residents by a 1,736 to 1,531 vote. It was indicated that nearly 200 invitations will be sent out for the meeting.

THE BOARD took care of a number of personnel-related matters. They included the employment of Mrs. Dorothy Newman and Mrs. Eleanor Funk as assistants for child care services in the Adult Basic Education program; Randy Spangler as a custodian for Wayne School effective Nov. 13; Mrs. Lila Engle for extra duty assignment as GAA advisor and intramural advisor; Mrs. Sandra Sowash for high school girls basketball and softball programs; Glen Jacobson as assistant wrestling coach, and Mrs. Molly Gillespie as an assistant cook at MTHS.

In other personnel matters, the board established a procedure for the release of Charles Warner from custodial work at Wayne School; approved a request submitted by Harry Campbell, bus driver, for a leave of absence through November and December while he recuperates from an illness; granted a leave of absence to Mr. and Mrs. William Sowash, high school teachers. Dec. 17-29; granted Assistant Superintendent Steve Yambor the authority to employ additional custodians, if necessary, to replace bus drivers who held dual positions; authorized the administration to make corrections in the salaries of bus drivers where discrepancies have been noted; agreed to seek written authority from employes from those wishing deductions from their pay for membership in professional groups, and granted the superintendent authority to place a high school teacher on a half-day schedule.

IN OTHER matters:

The board agreed to issue a written statement to Ford Motor Co., concerning two new school buses which have not been used since the district has not been able to replace defective parts in the brake systems;

Requested the services of a learning disability consultant from the Highland County Board of Education for the 1973-74 school year at no cost to the district;

Authorized $2,000 for repair of windows in Madison Mills, Wilson and Olive elementary schools;

Heard reports from Curtis E. Fleisher, high school principal, concerning the establishment of a memorial fund for the late Delmar Mowery, and suggested improved security of the high school building;

Reviewed the monthly lunchroom report in addition to the monthly activity accounts and district financial statement and approved routine payment of bills;

Considered candidates for filling the athletic director vacancy at the high school and granted the superintendent authority to appoint a new athletic director before the next board meeting;

Released a Washington Junior High School student from the district on a tuition basis in order that he may continue classes in city schools; and

Granted Superintendent Foster and Yambor permission to attend the Southwest District Superintendents meeting Dec. 5 in Wilmington, and Mrs. Martha Fleming, board clerk, to attend an unemployment compensation seminar Dec. 10 in Columbus.

Fuel conservation policies adopted

Policies for conserving energy during the current fuel crisis were adopted Tuesday night by the Fayette County Board of Education.

Superintendent Guy M. Foster said the position and developments are subject to change, and a guideline that applies in one school building may not necessarily been enforced to the same degree in another.

Presently, Foster said, it appears that with conservation measures adopted uniformly by all, that for the time being each school should make a conscientious effort to review policies and adopt guidelines that could help ease the fuel shortage situation.

The board, in light of the energy crisis, Tuesday night refused a request submitted by Ohio Baptists to rent the cafeteria at Jeffersonville School to hold church services on Sundays, but agreed to consider the request when the weather is warmer. The board issued energy conservation guidelines in three areas:

HEATING

Lower temperature settings (68 degrees in classrooms and 60 degrees in gymnasiums and hallways), lower all thermostat control settings to 60 degrees on weekends and other times when buildings are not in use, effective consideration of outside temperatures and use heating equipment efficiently.

LIGHTING

Turning off lights since the total electrical power used in an average school may be reduced significantly if all lights are turned off when a room is not being occupied, and modifying lighting practices such as eliminating the use of lights in Christmas displays.

TRANSPORTATION

Effective maintenance of school buses; changing transportation policies reducing the number of pickup points, encouraging high school students to ride buses, form car pools or walk to school; reduce or eliminate field trips, consider the use of one bus to the vocational school until the number of riders is increased; eliminate some convenience pickups, stops or shuttle runs and review the driver education program.

Policeman cited; hit school bus

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio (AP)— A Middletown policeman was charged with failure to yield and faces departmental discipline after his cruiser struck a school bus broadside Tuesday.

Pt. Steve Downey, the driver, and Ptl. Ronald Reifsnider were treated for minor injuries afterward. Also injured were the bus driver and one of the 41 students aboard, police said.

Police said Downey drove through a stop sign, hit the bus and knocked its 50-gallon gasoline tank into the street. The gas did not ignite, however.

"It was a human error," said Sgt. Lloyd Bremer. "He didn't see the stop sign."

Gilligan eyes energy power

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. John Gilligan plannned to announce today he will ask the Ohio General Assembly for powers to meet the energy crisis.

Gilligan told a reporter in Zanesville Tuesday night that legislation is needed because he has no constitutional authority to act.

Among the powers he said he will request are authority to allocate scarce fuels, set highway speed limits and close schools.

Gilligan complained that the "governors of this nation can't get any real factual information as to how bad the energy crisis really is.

"Each day we hear conflicting reports coming out of Washington and we don't know who to believe," he said.

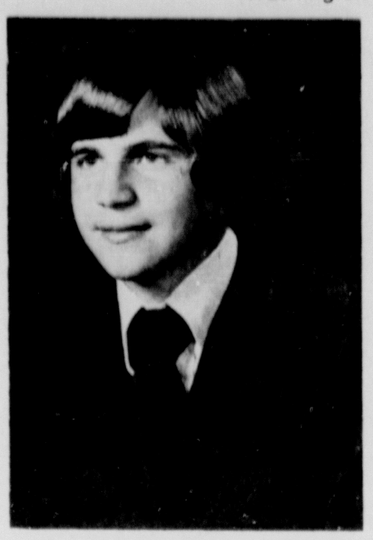
"If we don't get the real story from Washington pretty soon we're going to have an economic catastrophy that you wouldn't believe."

PUCO said weak

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Public Utilities Commission of Ohio has neither the information nor the muscle to deal with the energy crisis, former PUCO Chairman Henry W. Eckart says.

Eckhart said Tuesday the legislature should grant the PUCO subpoena powers and approve a $400,000 emergency appropriation to deal with energy problems.

"At the least we need an inventory of the state's fuel resources.



DISTRICT OFFICER — David Mustine, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mustine, 609 Charlotte Court and a junior at Washington Senior High School, was elected district vice president at the West Virginia-Ohio Leadership Conference for Hi-Y and Tri-Hi-Y Clubs held at Jackson's Mill state 4-H camp near Weston, W. Va. He will assist in the establishment of programs and goals in the West Virginia-Ohio district. Mustine is chairman of the WSHS Hi-Y Club's program committee and a member of the Youth in Government committee. The WSHS club sent 10 delegates to the annual conference.

Metzenbaum has lead ?

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Ohio Democratic Chairman William A. Lavelle believes members of his party prefer Howard Metzenbaum of Cleveland as the successor to GOP Sen. William B. Saxbe.

He told a news conference Tuesday that in his opinion, most would pick the Cleveland millionaire over former astronaut John H. Glenn and "it wouldn't even be close."

Lavelle stressed that this was his personal belief and added that the appointment of a successor, if a vacancy occurs, is "purely" up to Democratic Gov. John J. Gilligan.

But Lavelle said, "If you were to ask 100 Democrats, the name of Howard Metzenbaum would come up most often, I believe, if there were a vacancy today."

Metzenbaum's name has been mentioned along with that of Glenn for Saxbe's unexpired term which runs until January 1975. Gilligan has not commented publicly. He will wait until a vacancy actually exists, he said.

However, some Democratic spokesmen have said they believe Metzenbaum would be Gilligan's choice, especially in the wake of charges by Glenn that the governor and Lavelle "stacked" a 1974 Democratic screening committee in favor of Metzenbaum. They had wanted him to run for lieutenant governor, Glenn said.

Meanwhile, Lavelle reported Tuesday that a total of 27 potential statewide candidates for 1974 have expressed a desire to appear before the special candidates committee which meets Dec. 1-2.

He did not give names or numbers for the various offices.

The state chairman did disclose that State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson, 81, has not requested to appear before the committee, giving credence to reports he plans to retire.

Dear Church Member:

If I were writing this to ask you to sign a petition against smutty films, I am sure I could count on your complete and immediate cooperation.

But I'm not asking for that. I'm asking for the vote for decency that really counts -- your support at the box office of a truly remarkable film, "THE GOSPEL ROAD." It opens TONIGHT at the FAYETTE CINEMA, for one big week.

Jesus, as played by the Academy Award nominee Robert Elfstrom, who also directs the film, is REAL -- a strong, sunburned man with visible emotions. He strides out across Judean hills as if he's going somewhere. He gets down on his knees an the beach and builds sand towers with 4-year olds. He blesses them with a happy hug, not a somber gesture. And, he weeps. . . and laughs.

The surprisingly effective background of Country and Western songs by Johnny Cash, Kris Kristofferson and others blends beautifully into symphonic backgrounds and is perfectly suited to the action. The narration by Johnny Cash gives a reverence that is quite a contrast with other films now showing around the country.

Not only do I personally recommend it, I am urging your church to support it by group participation. You can phone 335-0230 for special group rates.

Unlike some religious films that play in rented theaters for a limited run, this is a regular feature film whose run in our city will depend on its "box office." It deserves the chance to tell its story. It deserves your support.

Sincerely,

Harry P. Chakeres

Foundation program outlined for Rotary

The Rotary International Foundation program, a charitable foundation which offers four types of educational awards, was detailed for members of the Washington C.H. Rotary Club at their noon luncheon Tuesday in the Country Club.

Bob Richards, past president of the Dayton Rotary Club, explained that the Foundation offers scholarships for students to study abroad. The Graduate Fellowships are the most used and 3,569 students study abroad each year under this branch of the program. The second is the Undergraduate Scholarships which involves 365 students per year. The newest is a scholarship for Teachers of Handicapped Children. Twenty-five teachers are involved in the fourth segment.

The Foundation program started in 1917 when one club gave$26.50 as an initial contrubution. In 1947 when Paul Harris, founder of the Rotary Club died, gifts were given in his memory and the program began to bloom. Nearly $4 million were given to the Foundation program last year.

Each member of the Washington C.H. club gives $10 toward the program when he joins. The Washington C.H. Rotary Club is known as a "200 per cent club" since each member has given $20.

IT IS estimated that in the 1973-74 school year more than $11 million will be spent on the Foundation program. Rotarians and their families are not elegible for the program's benefits.

Richards urged local Rotarians to become more involved in terms of contributions to the Foundation program which he termed "one of the most comprehensive scholarship programs in the nation."

Dan Wolford, chairman of the Rotary Foundation committee here, arranged the program. During the business meeting, conducted by President Phil Grover, final plans were made for the club's bus trip to the Dinner Theatre, near London. The trip will be Thursday, Nov. 29.

Mark Johnson, of WSHS, and Alan Fennig, of MTHS, were student guests. Other guests were Carl Bolton, Bill Matheson and Bob Herold, of Cor Tec, Inc., and John Bottom with Bill Williams, Tom Mark with Charles Mustine and Leonard Watts, Roger Hodem and Craig Calhoun with Laurence Dumford.

Visiting Rotarians were Darrell French and Walter Garman, both of Wilmington.

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Hemorrhoids Not Hereditary

It seems as if every member of our family develops hemorrhoids when they get past the age of 40. Some required surgery.

It occurred to me that there might be some plan of action to prevent this from happening to our three teen-age children.

Mrs. H. G., N.H.

Dear Mrs. G.:

Your idea is truly the essence of good preventive medicine. There are some sensible means of preventing the formation and progress of hemorrhoids.

First, let me assure you that there is little likelihood of a hereditary tendency toward this condition. Rather do I believe that the dietary habits and general care of bowel functioning are more significant.

Hemorrhoids are simply enlarged veins that normally surround the rectal opening. They are referred to as "internal hemorrhoidal veins" and "external hemorrhoidal veins."

When there is increased pressure on these veins because of constipation, varicosity develops.

There varicose veins are hemorrhoids. When left untreated, they develop secondary complications. Inflammation, infection, and clots form within them.

When the veins break, bleeding occurs.

Poor bowel habits undoubtedly play a most important role in the cause of hemorrhoids, or "piles," as they are commonly called.

Constant dependence on laxatives may be an added factor.

Diets that do not contain enough bulk, or "roughage," will also contribute to this condition.

Many doctors stress the importance of drinking at least six glasses of water a day as the most effective laxative.

When the earliest evidence of hemorrhoids appear, prompt treatment by your doctor, regulation of diet, avoiding straining at stool, proper exercise, and reduction of weight are important factors in preventing their progress.

Are there any dangers to the use of a sun lamp to keep a summer tan?

Miss R.McM., Ark.

Dear Miss McM.:

There is a great temptation to maintain the healthy tanned look acquired over the summer months.

However, readers should be reminded that many skin experts advise against too much exposure to direct sunlight.

In the light of this warning, special attention must be paid to the concentrated ultra-violet rays that emanate from a sun lamp.

These rays have the same effect as overexposure to the hot midday sun. When used without moderation, severe burns can result, rather than a persistent tan.

For those who do use a sun lamp, it is of special importance that the eyes be protected. It is imperative, too, that the time of exposure should be gradually increased to a safe maximum.

A special warning is essential. Many people tend to fall asleep under the sun lamp. A timing device with a warning bell is an important safety precaution.

Coal safety rules won't be relaxed

WASHINGTON (AP) — United Mine Workers President Arnold Miller says the union will never agree to a relaxation of mine safety standards to increase coal production.

Some mine operators, he said in a statement, "are shamelessly trying to exploit public fears of domestic fuel shortages in order to convince Congress that unless safety standards are relaxed, coal production cannot be increased to meet the present energy crisis."

He said the UMW's answer to claims was "never."

Porno peddler's business mixed

By JAMES STEVENSON
Associated Press Writer

MIDDLEFIELD, Ohio (AP) — The late autumn day was warm, and the visitors to the rural flea market drifted lazily from table to table.

Over in one corner of the grounds, 52-year-old Earl Smith sat glumly on a camp stool beside a table of racy paperbacks. In the van behind the table were more books, magazines and films.

Business wasn't very good. The overall-clad farmers and their wives only glanced at the "Adults Only" sign on their way to other tables of trinkets, produce and antiques.

"I never do very well here," Smith (not his real name) said dourly. He gestured at the crowds, some bearded and black-dressed Amish among them. "What can you expect?"

Smith became a wandering pornography peddler several years ago. He sometimes hits two or three flea markets in northeastern Ohio in a single afternoon. He'd been a salesman, children's apparel and he wanted off the road.

So he started a small shop in Cleveland, but a robbery closed it and a divorce left him flat. "A long, sad story," he said. So he went back on the road.

"I made more money" with children's clothing, he said. But the hours were long and hard, and "there's no pressure here. It's a life where you make a living and that's it."

It's also a business that will last, he said. "Don't believe everything you hear about the Supreme Court. This is a sport that's got a permanent audience."

The best evidence of that, he said, is his clientele — "the better educated, higher class people." And that was the reason business was so bad in Middlefield, he added.

"These people aren't sophisticated enough to appreciate pornography," he said.

Two black-bonneted Amish women walked up to a table of used paperbacks and magazines off to one side of the hard core material. They looked up and saw the "Adults Only" sign, looked away and walked on.

"I sold a couple of books to an Amish woman here once," Smith said. "But it only happened once."

He really hadn't intended to be in Middlefield at all that day. "The bad thing was, I set up this morning along Canal Road in Cleveland," he said. "And I was heading for a $300 day. Maybe my best ever."

Then the police moved in and broke up the flea market. They made the peddlers disperse. "A bomb scare, they said," he added.

"So I came out here." He sighed and lit another cigarette. "I never do very well here."

BOGGED DOWN IN CRANBERRIES — Women workers are knee-deep in a bog of cranberries at harvest time at Sandwich, Mass., on Cape Cod. They wade through the saucy carpet to round up the berries for processing.

Famous works of art to be shown in Detroit

DETROIT (AP) — Some 450 works of art from the final years of the Medici family's reign in Florence will be assembled here for the first time next spring in an exhibition jointly sponsored by the Detroit Institute of Arts and the city of Florence. The exhibition, called "Twilight of the Medici 1670-1743," will open in Detroit March 27 and will move from there to Florence's Palazzo Strozzi where it will open June 25.

The Detroit museum is gathering paintings, sculptures, drawings, tapestries and pieces of furniture and jewelry from more than 100 locations in Western Europe, India and North America. Some 150 pieces will come from such famous Florentine museums as the Uffizi, Bargello and Palazzo Pitti. Most of the works of art will be making their first appearances in the U.S.

Paintings by G.A. Pellegrini and sculptures by G.B. Foggini and Massimiliano Soldani have been committed for the exhibition. A feature of the show will be the first display in this country of the gem-studded figurines called "the jewels of the Electress Palantine" which were created for Anna Maria Luisa de'Medici whose death in 1743 marked the end of the Medici dynasty.

Opening lead - jack of spades.

In duplicate bridge, an overtrick that would be insignificant in rubber bridge will often make the difference between an excellent score and a poor one. In this deal from a sectional tournament, declarer, by very good play, made five spades while others were making only four with the same cards.

South won the trump lead with the ace and cashed the king. There was some danger of going down in four if the diamonds were divided 4-1 and the ace of hearts was offside, but when South played the A-K of diamonds and both opponents followed suit, ten tricks became certain.

Declarer's next problem — with the contract now assured — was to look for a safe way of making eleven tricks. Leading a club to the jack could not be countenanced because East might win with the king and return a heart to put the contract in jeopardy.

The safer method of playing a club to the ace and returning the queen — planning to discard a heart if East followed low — obviously would not guarantee eleven tricks, though it would of course preserve ten.

Declarer found a third and far better method of play when he cashed the ace of clubs at trick five, played a diamond to the queen and then put West on lead with a trump. Now it did not matter where the ace of hearts or king of clubs were located.

West was on lead and had to return a heart or a club, either of which would hand declarer his eleventh trick. So South, in this highly ingenious manner, achieved a top score by being the only declarer to make an overtrick.

MT cage season starts on Friday

Determination and ability main assets of MT Panthers

The Miami Trace varsity basketball teams opens its season this weekend with two games on tap. Friday the Panthers host Columbus Watterson and Saturday Miami Trace travels to Springfield Northeastern. Both games have a starting time of 8 p.m.

Miami Trace would certainly like to start out the 1973-74 varsity basketball schedule like it finished last year.

AFTER A lackluster beginning the Panthers ended the season in a flourish by winning 11 games in a row. The Panthers tied for the top spot in the South Central Ohio League with Circleville, won the Class AAA Southeastern District tournament only to lose in the regionals to powerhouse Columbus South.

New head coach Dale Creamer, who coached the Miami Trace reserve team for the last three years, has five letterman returning with two being starters last year.

Both guard spots were left open due to graduation, but Creamer feels that the players this year can fill the empty shoes.

Senior pivotman Dave Persinger, 6-foot-4, and Randy Reiber, 6-foot-2, are the two returning starters from last year's SCOL co-champion team. Other returning letterman are Steve Mowery, Jeff King and hot shot Dave Steinhauser.

Steinhauser, who stands 6-foot-1, should fill one of the missing links in the guard positions. The talented sharpshooter has good quickness and handles the ball with smoothness.

Mowery and King didn't see much action last year, but are expected to contribute a substantial amount of support this season.

Creamer also has Phil Skinner and Mark Spears to help fill in at the vacated guard positions.

The forward spots will be manned by Reiber, Jim Glass, hustling Jay Mossbarger and Robin Zurface.

Junior Randy Rhonemus will backup Persinger at the pivot position. Rhonemus played six reserve games last year before he became ill and sat out the remainder of the season. The lanky 6-foot-6 center should be a strong replacement for Creamer's Panthers.

THE PANTHERS possess only average quickness and height but have a good cast of shooters to start defending their SCOL co-championship.

Creamer feels that the varsity must out block its opponents [illegible] to stay in the SCOL race. With only average height and speed, the Panthers, must rely on determination and ability to keep with the winning ways made famous by Miami Trace basketball teams.

Miami Trace's offense should work off the fast break with intermittent offensive sets being employed by the Panthers.

Creamer said that the Panthers should become known as a pressing defensive team around the SCOL. Miami Trace has always been known to utilize the press, but Creamer says that this year's team will employ it much more.

Both games this weekend will be preceded by a Miami Trace reserve game starting at 6:30 p.m.

Rose 'Most Valuable'

NEW YORK (AP) — Pete Rose, the Cincinnati Reds' irrepressible left fielder, was named the National League's Most Valuable Player for 1973 today by the Baseball Writers Association of America.

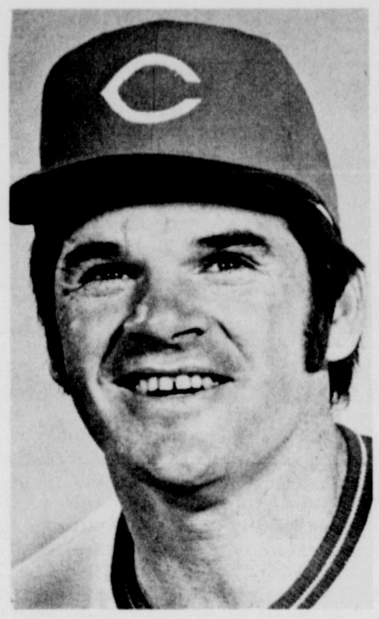
Nicknamed "Charley Hustle" for his all-out, aggressive baseball style, the Reds' dynamic player won the MVP prize in a close battle with Pittsburgh Pirates slugger Willie Stargell.

Rose, who hit .338 this year in leading the National League in batting for the third time in his career, received 12 votes for first place and a total of 274 points.

Stargell, the league leader in home runs with 44 and runs batted in with 119, collected 10 first-place votes and 250 points.

It was the tightest MVP NL race since 1969, when Willie McCovey of the San Francisco Giants edged Tom Seaver of the New York Mets by 22 points.

Rose and Stargell were the only players named on all 24 ballots cast by the BBWAA committee, which consisted of two writers from each league city.



PETE ROSE

Two other players who each received one first-place vote finished third and fourth in the balloting—San Francisco outfielder Bobby Bonds and Cincinnati second baseman Joe Morgan. Bonds collected 174 points, and Morgan, one of four Reds in the top 10, collected 102 points.

Montreal relief ace Mike Marshall who finished second to Seaver in this year's Cy Young Award voting, completed the top five with 93 points.

Others in the top 10 were Lou Brock of the St. Louis Cardinals, with 65 points; Cincinnati's Tony Perez, 59; Seaver, 57; Ken Singleton of the Montreal Expos, 52, and Cincinnati's Johnny Bench, 41, last year's MVP.

For Rose, the glossy MVP award is the culmination of a long-time ambition.

"It's great to be No. 1," Rose said. "It's the biggest honor yet. I'm thrilled and happy."

Rose wasn't completely surprised, though.

"I thought I had a shot at it, although I wouldn't have felt bad if Stargell had won it. Homers always talk," said Rose. "But I had a great year. It's the most consistent year I've had. And I'm very appreciative to my teammates for it."

Forecaster says:

Michigan over Bucks!

NEW YORK (AP) — Call Ohio State-Michigan "a hammer and anvil type of game," as Ohio State assistant coach Esco Sarkkinen does.

Call Alabama-Louisiana State "the next step in our plans for a national championship," like 'Bama's Bear Bryant.

Call Nebraska-Oklahoma "the big shootout," like Oklahoma's Barry Switzer, or "a head knocker," like Nebraska's Tom Osborne.

Call them what you will, but those three classic games are just part of a wild and wonderful three-day Thanksgiving feast with all the trimmings that will complete the college football bowl lineup and knock at least two teams out of the national championship picture.

They'll all be seen on national television, along with Air Force-Notre Dame and UCLA Southern California. That's nine of the nation's Top Ten — sorry about that Air Force — and the 10 TV teams have a combined 84-6-3 record for a .919 percentage.

On Thursday, it's Air Force at fifth-ranked Notre Dame, followed by second-ranked Alabama at No. 7 LSU. Friday, it's Nebraska at Oklahoma. Saturday, it's Ohio State at Michigan and UCLA-USC. Sunday, it's something to soothe those bloodshot TV eyes.

Ohio State at Michigan: "There's a lot of bananas hanging on this one for both teams," says Sarkkinen, who has been a coach or player in this series almost every year since 1937. "There are no favorites, no underdogs in this one."

Ohio State Head Coach Woody Hayes says, "You can check the statistics and still come up with some questions."

The biggest question is — how can either team lose? But the winner has gone to the Rose Bowl five straight years, and five straight years the winner has been the home team. The pick ... Michigan 16-14.

Alabama at Louisiana State: By winning, Alabama can become the eighth team in history to record 500 victories. That's just one reason why this game, according to Bryant, "is more important to us than bowls are, right now. It's the next step in our plans for a Southeastern Conference championship and a national championship."

Alabama also can become the second team ever — Oklahoma in 1971 was the other — to rank in the all-time top 10 in both production (i.e., rushing, total offense and scoring) and explosiveness (i.e., yards per play). "On paper, I don't know why we're even going to play them," says LSU's Charlie McClendon. "But," he adds, "games aren't decided on paper." Upset Special of the Week ... LSU 24-21.

Nebraska at Oklahoma: Kansas State's Vince Gibson says flatly that Oklahoma will win. Missouri's Al Onofrio says, "probably Oklahoma."

Gibson is calling Oklahoma "a super football team." Says Osborne: "Vince uses that adjective rather loosely at times. He says we are not super and Oklahoma is super, so we have thought seriously about not going to the game." Good thinking, Tom. Oklahoma 28-21.

UCLA vs. Southern California: If you think sports writers are experts, be advised that at Monday's Southern California Football Writers' luncheon, 25 picked UCLA and 11 chose USC. "My gosh! You guys don't serve whisky out there, do you?" wondered UCLA's Pepper Rodgers. Southern Cal 31-28.

Air Force at Notre Dame: The Irish wouldn't mind seeing all those other games wind up in ties and this one end in a triumph for ... Notre Dame 35-7.

Pitt at Penn State: This one's for the bragging and recruiting rights in western Pennsylvania. It also matches sensational senior John Cappelletti of Penn State against fabulous freshman Tony Dorsett of Pitt. Penn State 31-10.

Texas at Texas A&M: "Their defense is just like their offense — there are no weak points," says A&M's Emory Bellard, for many years an aide to Darrell Royal at ... Texas 28-14.

Texas Tech at Arkansas: Red Raiders haven't beaten Arkansas since 1967. Tech that, Arkansas. Texas Tech 24-14.

Arizona at Arizona State: Winner gets the Fiesta Bowl. Loser gets a siesta. Arizona ... State 38-21.

Missouri at Kansas: These Big Eight rivals are tied for 19th in The Associated Press ratings. Something's gotta give. Missouri 20-14.

West Virginia at Syracuse: Old Ben Schwartzwalder's last game as Syracuse coach. Second Upset Special ... Syracuse 17-13.

Purdue at Indiana: Lee Corso has had "Beat Purdue" signs up since last spring. Putting our foot in the Old Oaken Bucket, here's a Third Upset Special ... Indiana 21-20.

Harvard at Yale: THE Game! THE winner? Harvard 21-14.

Miami again

Pro football picks

NEW YORK (AP) — America's football widows may stage their own special Thanksgiving celebration next Tuesday after the holiday weekend menu on television that begins Thursday with two National Football League games — plus two college battles — and ends Monday night.

It may take some dial-switching, but football fanatics can watch the Washington Redskins at Detroit starting at 12:15 p.m., EST, Thursday, then see as many as eight more games through Monday night.

It won't leave much time to carve the turkey, however.

Miami (9-1) at Dallas (7-3) — A tough one to figure particularly since Dallas is playing better than originally forecast. The Dolphins could have a slight letdown after clinching their third straight division title, but Miami has blanked its last two foes. So shall we say ... DOLPHINS 24, COWBOYS 20.

Washington (7-3) at Detroit (4-5-1) — Washington certainly hasn't been brilliant this season, but George Allen and his Over-The-Hill Gang know this is a crucial game. And they also know that the Lions basically are a better team than their record indicates. Would you believe ... REDSKINS 21, LIONS 17.

Pittsburgh (8-2) at Cleveland (6-3-1) — The first game this season between these AFC Central rivals ended with Pittsburgh ahead 30-6. The Browns would like to reverse the outcome this time and, in this week's Upset Special, let's say Coach Nick Skorich's wish will come true ... BROWNS 17, STEELERS 14.

St. Louis (3-6-1) at Cincinnati (6-4) — With some assistance from the team that bears his name, Paul Brown's Bengals, with a victory Sunday, could make it a dogfight in the AFC Central. The Cardinals should be most cooperative. BENGALS 31, CARDINALS 17.

Atlanta (7-3) at New York Jets (3-7) — General Grant took Richmond in the 19th century and Atlanta's field general, Robert M. Lee, will capture New York in the 20th, even if Joe Namath goes all the way. FALCONS 31, JETS 24.

Buffalo (5-5) at Baltimore (28) — Another interdivisional rematch, and there's no reason to expect the outcome won't be the same. In case you've forgotten, Buffalo won the first time 31-13. So ... O.J. 100-plus (yards, that is), and ... BILLS 31, COLTS 13.

Kansas City (6-3-1) at Denver (5-3-2) — The Chiefs barely squeaked by Denver 16-14 in Kansas City earlier this season. It's a key game for both teams, and Jan Stenerud's toe could make the difference, but Denver upset Pittsburgh last week and are spoiling to make it ... BRONCOS 21, CHIEFS 20.

Los Angeles (8-2) at New Orleans (4-6) — The Saints lost two in a row on the road, including 29-7 at Los Angeles. They pulled off four upsets earlier before the home fans but that's way over their quota of surprises for the year, so ... RAMS 31, SAINTS 21.

Southwest All-Stars selected

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Second-ranked Cincinnati Moeller dominated The Associated Press Ohio Southwestern District high school all-star football selections announced today.

Gerald Faust, who led Moeller to a 10-0-0 regular season record and the state's No. 2 rating, was named the area Class AAA Coach of the Year by a district panel of sports writers.

Joe Ertel, a 6-foot-1, 210-pound senior defensive tackle, was named the Southwestern District Class AAA Lineman of the Year and Tim McVay, Kettering Alter quarterback and son of University of Dayton Athletic Director John McVay, the No. 1 back.

The Class AA honors went to Jerry Daugherty, Cincinnati Reading's gravely ill coach; halfback Leon Murray of North College Hill and Doug Testerman, a Kings Mills linebacker. Reading was 10-0-0 during the season.

In Class A, Bob Hardley of Yellow Springs and Larrie Tisdale of Covington, who led their squads to unbeaten seasons, shared the coaching title. Marcus Johnson of Yellow Springs was the No. 1 back and Tom Staley, a Sidney Lehman tackle, the leading lineman among the small schools.

Bulls stop Trail Blazers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Although the season has only reached the one-quarter point, predictions in the Western Conference in the National Basketball Association are pointing to a torrid winter out west.

—"Anyone who says that the Los Angeles Lakers are a shoo-in, doesn't know what's going on in the NBA," said Chicago Coach Dick Motta after his Bulls outlasted the Trail Blazers Tuesday night 106-101.

—"This was a big game because this is the start of a make or break road trip for us," said Jeff Mullins, whose feed to Nate Thurmond helped Golden State squeeze by Milwaukee 108-105.

—"This is a reconstruction period for us," said Los Angeles Coach Bill Sharman after the Lakers were whipped by the Knicks 105-89.

In the rest of the NBA, Buffalo trounced Phoenix 127-100 and Philadelphia downed Kansas City-Omaha 109-103.

In the American Basketball Association, Indiana edged Utah 102-98 and Carolina tripped Denver 113-107.

Tangerine Bowl pits Florida, Miami

Vacation cottage prices rise

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

It isn't too soon to consider next year's vacation cottage. In fact it may be your only chance to get one in your favorite area. At the old price, that is. Or even something approximating it.

Time is running out for vacation cottage renters at many resorts. They are renting in a demand market that has orbited prices. Some owners do not even want to discuss next year's rentals. Many are waiting to see whether the traffic will bear another hike. Others want to rent now.

Even then one owner has a proviso in a lease for next year that gives her the opportunity to raise the rent even before you are in the cottage.

Many cottages are owned by second-home owners who are paying off the mortgage by renting the cottage until they retire to it. They need to get as much as they can out of their investment.

Others are owned by people who have brought up little places adjacent to their own homes, making them easier to supervise.

These places may have cost so little that the profits may quickly be put to use in updating the cottages with expensive decorating and modern appliances which will insure rent hikes as time goes on.

And they winterize them anticipating further income during cold weather.

WHAT CAN be done about the trend? Many families see only a gloomy outlook. They have been able to rough it for a pittance at a particular resort. But now such shacks are being turned into cottages and the cottages are becoming winter homes.

As one woman commented, "It isn't like a meat boycott with an entire neighborhood banding together to bring prices down. If you decide not to rent a particular place because it is too high, someone else will grab it."

Many people will invest in campers, turning them into vacation "shacks" that can be transported at will. There are still great expenses of open space with trees and water and other inducements to help make a vacation experience. But some members of the family might not enjoy it.

The vacation, after all, should appeal to all. Hiking, fishing, swimming might be fun — "But what do you do after that?" may be the complaint of teen-agers. They've got a point.

Another alternative to the expensive cottage might be a boat rental. Or one might buy a boat with the idea of selling it the following spring. A lucky investor might even make a profit on the sale or at least get his money plus vacation expenses out of it.

ONE PARENT tried the boat vacation this year, bringing the boat into little spots that interested the family. He had a built-in crew of his three teenage boys, so the boat looked great and salable when it was brought back to home port.

One must know how to handle a boat before one invests in one, and one should know the price is right if one must plan immediate resale. Then, too, some members of the family might not enjoy life on a boat.

But that might also have a pleasant solution. The poor sailors could join the family after they had anchored at an attractive vacation area.

It is something to think about this winter if you want to have a family vacation next summer.

It may be the only way.

Still good licks in fishing

By JIM DAUBEL
Written for Associated Press

Most fishermen have stowed their gear till next spring, and that is good enough reason to get in a few more licks before freeze-up.

The worst thing about November fishing is the inclement weather. The best thing about it may be the lack of pressure on those lakes that seem jammed with shore-to-shore boats when it's warmer.

In fall, warm clothing will beat the cold. Persistence and a few fishing tricks will overcome the apparent reluctance of fish to bite as water temperatures drop.

Actually, from October into November—depending on how cold it gets and when—most fish feed more than at any other time of year except spring.

That's when bass, pike and panfish gorge themselves to fatten up for the long winter ahead.

The secret of successful fall fishing is twofold: fish slow and, if possible, with live bait.

As waters cool, fish slow down. Bass that might chase a plug as far as you can case in warm weather are lazy now. They won't move far to feed and they won't move fast.

To coax them into hitting, cast a light spinner or plug that can be retrieved slowly without snagging on the bottom. Fish the shallows or around brush piles but don't hurry.

For variety, let a spinner or leadhead jig sink then twitch it off the bottom and repeat the action, making sure to jerk the lure only slightly and slowly.

Northern pike are more eager eaters in cold water than many other species. You'll find them in shallow water this time of year, especially around weeds or grass in the lake.

Large creek chubs are hard to beat as pike bait. Impale them through the back with a large hook tied to a heavy monofilament leader and float the weighted rig from a bobber. Let the baitfish explore the weeds, grass or other likely looking submerged cover.

A pike will often kill the minnow or mouth it momentarily before swallowing it so let him play with it for a time before setting the hook.

Fishing for crappie and other panfish can be rewarding this late. Lake Erie gives up some of its gattest jumbo perch in November and bluegills are hungry in inland lakes and farm ponds that are now easier to fish than in summer when choked with vegetation.

The best panfish baits are small minnows or ice flies tipped with maggots. Fish brush piles, vacant boat docks and other woody cover.

Ohio GM plants may be struck

DETROIT (AP) — Two Ohio plants could be struck if agreement isn't reached by Monday on a new contract between the General Motors Corp. and the International Union of Electrical Workers.

The IUE announced its contract with GM for more than 25,000 workers in four plants will be terminated Monday. The union has been working under an extension of a contract that expired Sept. 14.

The IUE negotiations involve workers at the Packard Electric plant in Warren, Ohio, and Delco plants in Dayton, Ohio; New Brunswick, N.J., and Rochester, N.Y.

Saxbe eligible, professor says

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — The bill proposed by the Nixon administration to make U.S. Sen. William B. Saxbe, R-Ohio, eligible for appointment as attorney general is permissable under the constitution, constitutional scholar Alexander Bickel said Tuesday.

The Yale law professor also said the constitutional provision which has become a controversy in Saxbe's nomination is not "really one of the foundation stones of the Republic."

The Senate Judiciary Committee turned over to the full Senate Tuesday the administration bill, effectively laying the constitutional decision at the feet of all the senators instead of just a committee.

Filmed warning of heart attacks available here

Three fictional characters each had a very real heart problem. None of them had ever had a sudden heart attack, but all had experienced "early warning sings".

That's what the new film, "Heart Attack: Early Warning Signs," is all about. The film emphasizes that the early symptoms may mean a heart attack and are a warning to get medical care as soon as possible.

Dr. Louis A. Black, a Kenton physician, narrates the film. He also reviews the symptoms of heart trouble and explains what a person should do if they are experienced.

A copy of the film has been purchased by the Fayette County Branch of the Heart Association and is available for showing at civic association meetings here in conjunction with a speaker—a physician, nurse or trained volunteer. Arrangements for showing the film to local groups may be made with Mrs. Thomas Rankin (335-0858), Ohio 41-N.

EACH YEAR during the holiday season thousands of people tour our store recalling the nostalgia and warmth of Christmases years ago. Here you may browse through layers of artificial snow and two floors of thousands of old time, made-with-care and pride, country store products. Pottery, earthenware, jewelry, china, sweet tooth candies, and lollypops, "Ribtickling" jokes, hand-dipped candles—rings— and things, rich fragrant soaps, stocking "stuffins," rafters of Early American woodenware and hand forged iron accessories, very new and very old beautiful furniture, famous wood and brass cleaners or finishes, authentic furniture hardware, 1974 calendar towels in scenes of Currier and Ives, beautiful old-fashion children's wheeled toys and bisque dolls, hand-crafted colonial pattern glassware, and lamps plus one of the largest selection to be found of restoration glass lamp shades, chimneys, electric, oil and any replacement parts. (Bring your lamps along for fitting. . .a perfect gift idea, too.)

If you have never been here before, we suggest you plan your visit early, before the Christmas rush begins. Weekdays are best. Plan on two hours — you can rest your weary feet on our potbelly stove. We hope you and your family find our old store that pleasant, comfortable, friendly, experience of a by-gone day. The season's best to you and yours from all of the store-keepers here at Peddler — The General Store. At the crossroads of Marysville, Ohio, 117 Main Street, N. (look for our rain barrel). Holiday hours: 9:00 to 9:00 weekdays, Sundays 12:30 to 9:00. Easy Old-Time no interest payment plans or use your modern charge cards. We also wholesale to other peddlers, dealers, and flea marketeers who have a vendors license. Discounts to employers or to organizations buying groups of merchandise. See you soon? It's easy to get here on St. Rt. 38, 28 miles north of London. Two fine restaurants within a block of store.

Snake in the grass worse than fierce dog

PORTALES, N.M. (AP) — Mailman Aubrey (Slick) Imoe of Portales was attacked by a snake as he made his rounds in the University Heights area.

The letter carrier said he spotted a snake in the grass. Imoe grabbed a rake and pinned down the snake until it was killed by the householder in whose lawn the snake was found.

Jim Scott, who reported the incident, said the snake was a rattler and about three feet long.

SEASONAL HOPES — Mrs. Jane Mossbarger's third grade class at Eastside Elementary School decorated this bulletin board with the underlying theme of a "Thanksgiving Wish." Some of the wishes listed by the students were: a bike, a Honda, a gun holster, a new car for the family, a mini bike, a wish that my brother could come home from the Army, a wish to join the Navy, a wish for "100" in spelling (which was achieved). And one boy actually wished for a turkey on Thanksgiving Day!

Brown plans energy crisis proposals

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Lt. Gov. John W. Brown says a special task force he appointed last spring to study the energy problem will make "hard recommendations" by Dec. 15 instead of a previously-planned target date of Jan. 15.

As interim energy-saving steps, Brown recommended that Christmas Eve and New Year's Eve be designated holidays for state employes this year and all Ohioans voluntarily lower their automobile speeds.

Brown told newsmen Tuesday it is "apparent that the conservation of energy is the most immediate way to provide temporary relief in this critical energy situation."

He said his 32-member task force will conduct a special energy seminar in Columbus Dec. 11-12 and participants will include an official of the Office of Energy Planning of the U.S. Commerce Department.

Brown said the official will advise how to bring "substantial reductions" in energy use without having to lay off employes or cut production.

As for the immediate steps, Brown said state offices should be closed on the Mondays before Christmas and New Years', giving state emloyes two consecutive four-day-day weekend.

This would help save energy, he said, "by providing eight days of non-energy use within state office buildings and by setting a pattern for other governmental agencies to follow on a voluntary basis."

Brown noted that Gov. John Gilligan had ordered all state vehicles to reduce highway speeds to 60 miles per hour and suggested that all Ohioans drive 10 m.p.h. below posted limits to help save energy.

Ohio parochial aid statute faces legal test

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — A three-judge federal panel today was to hear opening arguments in a suit challenging the constitutionality of an Ohio statute that allows aid to parochial and private schools.

The suit was filed by the Ohio chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) against Martin Essex, state superintendent of public instruction.

The statute under attack allows the state to funnel about $86 million each year to private and parochial schools, according to the ACLU.

Hearing the arguments will be Judge John W. Peck of the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals; and U.S. District Court Judges Carl Rubin and Joseph Kinnery, both of Columbus.

Judge facing court charges

NEWARK, Ohio (AP)—A municipal court judge in Newark has agreed to step down pending the outcome of a criminal case against him.

Judge Robert Weaver pleaded innocent Tuesday to charges of embezzlement and larceny by trick.

A grand jury in Licking County indicted Weaver for allegedly stealing money from the estate of Laura Redman in 1971. He was a private attorney at the time.

Nation's harvest moving rapidly

WASHINGTON (AP) — Field work on the nation's farms has progressed rapidly in recent weeks as earlier rainy weather gave way to almost ideal conditions for harvesting the 1973 crop, the Agriculture Department says.

By Nov. 18, about 87 per cent of the nation's corn was harvested, compared with 55 per cent a year ago, the department said Tuesday in a weekly weather report.

In Iowa, about 86 per cent of the corn was harvested by Nov. 18, compared with 46 per cent in 1972 and a normal completion of 71 per cent on the date, the report said.

"Winter wheat planting was virtually over in Kansas and Oklahoma, and 97 per cent done in Texas," the report said. "Many areas in Nebraska, Kansas and the Texas panhandle need topsoil moisture."

Officials said surveys indicated the condition of the Kansas and Nebraska winter wheat crop was "mostly fair to good" by mid-November, although much of it was below normal in growth because of late planting this season.

"Heavy rains that again fell on much of the Northwest helped replenish surface and soil moisture lowered by months of drought," the report said.

"Rain or snow benefited most of Montana and Idaho. Most fields in Washington absorbed the moisture well with no runoff or erosion," the report said.

The soybean harvest was 89 per cent done by Nov. 18, compared with 68 per cent at the same time last year.

"Farmers in all of the Corn Belt states except Missouri and Kansas practically finished combining soybeans last week, about a week ahead of normal," the report said.

If milk costs too much, you might drink vinegar

RACINE, Wis. (AP) — If you think you are paying too much for milk, consider the alternative: vinegar.

According to a recent report in Wisconsin Agriculturist, a rural publication, vinegar is the only food that sells for less per gallon than milk.

Dick Halbach, a Wisconsin Agriculturist, a rural publication, vinegar is the only food that sells for less per gallon than milk.

Dick Halbach, a Wisconsin county agent, came to this conclusion after converting retail drink prices to gallons. Milk costs 94 cents a gallon; beer, $1.65; Coke, $1.48; orange drink, $1.16; tomato juice, $1.56, and prune juice, $2.

Jeffersonville Masons to observe centennial

JEFFERSONVILLE — Jeffersonville Masonic Lodge No. 468, F&AM, will mark its 100th anniversary at reconsecration ceremonies at 7:30 p.m. Saturday.

Royal C. Scofield, Jr., grand master of Ohio Masons, will be the featured speaker for the reconsecration rites. Dinner will be served at 6:30 p.m.

A dispensation for the Jeffersonville lodge was issued Dec. 5, 1872. Twenty petitioners, recommended and vouched for by Fayette Lodge No. 107 and Jamestown Lodge No. 352, held a meeting Jan. 31, 1873 and a uniform code of bylaws was adopted. The charter for the lodge was granted Oct. 21, 1873.

The first election, under the charter, was held Nov. 27, 1884, and James Straley was elected worshipful master. The first Masonic trial was held Nov. 19, 1875 in which J.P. Popejoy, the lodge's first secretary, was charged with wrongfully retaining for his own use lodge funds of $43.21. He was found guilty and expelled.

ROYAL C. SCOFIELD

AT THE FIRST meeting the time of each meeting was set to be on the first Friday on or after the full moon in each month at 6:30 p.m. It was changed to the second and fourth Tuesday of each month June 28, 1880, and has continued on these days to the present time.

The first public installation was Dec. 14, 1880, and the first salaries approved for the secretary and tyler were for the sum of 50 cents per meeting. The salaries were changed Oct. 27, 1885 to $6 per year.

The lodge has held quarters in the following places: Jan. 31, 1873, to May 5, 1884, over O.K. Corbett's store; May 5, 1884, to April 24, 1894, over W.C. Fent's store; April 24, 1884, to Feb. 27, 1900, in the attic over the old church on Main Street; Feb. 27, 1900, to the present time in the present quarters.

A movement began in the early 1920s to lease or purchase the second floor for a club room, dining room and kitchen. This dream was realized Feb. 13, 1951, after 30 years of deliberation. Since the purchase, much alteration, improvement and beautification has taken place.

In the 100 years since the Jeffersonville lodge was founded, 479 men have been inducted into membership. Of that number, 29 have been admitted by dimit. Nine petitioners received the Entered Apprentice degree and never proceeded further. Two brothers, Johnson W. Wright and Richard Faucks, received the Entered Apprentice and Fellow Craft degrees, but were never raised to the sublime degree of Master Mason.

THERE HAVE BEEN 65 different trades of professions represented of which the 10 highest are 182 farmers, 37 teachers, 22 merchants, 16 railroaders, 14 students, 14 clerks, 11 physicians, 10 ministers, 10 grocers and 8 lawyers.

There have been 75 different worshipful masters, 17 having served more than one year. Forty-five have died, according to lodge historian Harry R. Allen.

Colin P. Campbell is the present worshipful master and other officers are Douglas Sears, senior warden; Eldon McBee, junior warden; Kenneth Spahr, treasurer; M.C. Creamer, secretary; Charles G. Morgan, chaplain; Dale J. Evans, senior deacon; Brian Bartlett, junior deacon; Dewey Williams, senior steward; Thomas Dane, junior steward, and John W. Morgan, tyler.

Scofield, who is sales manager of the Morgan Engineering Co., Alliance, was elected junior grand warden in 1970, senior grand warden in 1971 and deputy grand master the following year. On Oct. 12, 1973, he was elected most worshipful grand master of Masons in Ohio and was installed into that office Oct. 13.

Urge retaliation for oil embargo

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Four Nobel prize-winning economists urged today that nations affected by the Arab oil embargo should consider starting a similar embargo themselves.

Nations deprived of Arab oil because of the Mideast war "can refuse to supply food and manufactured goods to nations committing the hostile act of embargo," the economists said. They said, however, that the United States should not alter its policy toward Israel because of the embargo.

They added that the fuel shortage in the United States is due principally to lack of refining facilities, and predicted production would not meet demand even if unlimited amounts of crude oil became available.

Issuing the statement were Nobel laureates Paul A. Samuelson, of Massachusetts Institute of Technology; Kenneth Arrow, Simon Kuznets and Wassily Leontief, all of Harvard.

Fayette Countians to take active roles

State Farm Bureau meet starts Monday

Six members of the Fayette County Farm Bureau will join Farm Bureau representatives from throughout Ohio at the organization's 55th annual meeting in Columbus Monday through Wednesday to plan the coming year's course for Ohio's largest farm organization.

Wayne Hidy, president of the Fayette County Farm Bureau, and Richard Davidson, are the county's appointed delegates. Mrs. Wayne Hidy, Mr. and Mrs. John Peterson and Mr. and Mrs. James Hobbs will also be attending.

Fayette County's Farm Bureau organization will receive six awards at the meeting for membership, youth, marketing, public information, the women's committee and public affairs awards.

A focal point of the meeting will be the adoption of resolutions which will gear the Farm Bureau's activities toward increased service to members in particular and to Ohio agriculture in general.

A TOTAL of 500 resolutions will be considered in numerous areas of importance to agriculture including environmental regulations concerning farms and farmers, legislation for following the approval of State Issue 1 at the Nov. 6 election, the energy crisis and its impact on farmers and food production, and farm labor and marketing.

Hidy and Davidson will be two of the 343 delegates considering the resolutions.

With this year's harvest progressing well ahead of past seasons, Farm Bureau officials are predicting attendance will surpass last years's 1,200 mark.

DURING the three-day event some 350 county leaders will be recognized for outstanding contributions. Mrs. Hidy will receive the women's committee award; the Hobbs' will receive the youth award, and Peterson will receive the public affairs award. The Hobbs' form the county's advisory council to young farm couples.

Featured speakers will include Ohio Gov. John J. Gilligan; Lance Marston, director of the U.S. Department of Interior's Office of Land Use and Water Planning; and Farm Bureau President Leonard Schnell and Executive Vice President C. William Swank.

A first-day event will be a special day-long Farm Bureau Youth Session to be held at the Rhodes Center, on the Ohio Exposition Center grounds. Attending from Fayette County will be Cindy Davis, Maggie Campstra, DeDe Lange, Tom Hawk, Dave Ritenour, Gary, Bret and Bart Taylor, Steve Paisley, Mike Sollars and David Hiser. The three girls will be singing in the Youth Choir.

San Quentin 'saved'

SAN QUENTIN, Calif. (AP) — Hopes of closing grim old San Quentin Prison have been abandoned, and its apple-green gas chamber is being kept in working order.

Less than two years ago, Gov. Ronald Reagan announced the infamous penitentiary overlooking San Francisco Bay would be shut by the end of 1974. In subsequent months, inmate population fell from 2,200 to 1,400.

But now the birds that found nests in the deserted five-story south cell block have been chased by a new wave of inmates. The population is approaching 3,000 and rising by 100 a week.

"Other places were getting overcrowded and here was a prison with a lot of empty beds," prison information officer Robert Nyberg said in an interview.

Nyberg said the number of inmates in California prisons is growing because the state parole board has adopted "a more rigorous policy" in refusing paroles and the courts are imposing more prison sentences on convicted criminals.

"There might be a few oldtimers here who are glad we're staying open," Nyberg said. "But most people—prisoners and guards—would like to see the place closed."

He said the 122-year-old prison has very small cells, many of which will have to be shared by two inmates when the prison reaches its expected 3,800-man capacity early next year.

He said the two-seat octagonal gas chamber has been kept in working condition. It has been idle since 1967 while courts pondered the death penalty. The California Supreme Court ruled executions unconstitutional last year, but a new state law will reinstate them as of Jan. 1 for 11 crimes.

The former Death Row is being used to segregate troublemakers. Of the 107 men who awaited death there, many—including cult leader Charles Manson—have been transferred to other prisons. The rest, like Robert F. Kennedy's assassin, Sirhan B. Sirhan, remain in other areas of San Quentin.

San Quentin already has a long, bloody history, including the Aug. 21, 1971, violence in which three guards and three prisoners died, including black militant George Jackson.

White mountain of salt is tourist attraction

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — At Slanic in the Carpathian Mountains north of here, a sparkling white mountain of salt rises among the other peaks.

The mountain was pushed up in a convulsion after receding seas left deposits of salt millions of years ago. The Carpathians are lined with underground salt deposits.

The salt mountain has been mined since the 17th century and is now visited by tourists. Rain has eroded the sides into fantastic shapes and patterns. A lake by the mountain is enclosed in salt walls which resemble colored glass or marble.

How to conserve home fuel

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Operation Fuel Shortage is under way in most homes.

Wood-burning stoves are making a comeback — one city reported a 700 per cent increase in sales this year — as people acquire them against the day. Chimneys are being cleaned and firewood is being ordered in the interest of fuel pre-paredness.

Fuel watchers in the government are monitoring the weather to see its effect on fuel, and it is explained that the amount of fuel burned in the house depends on how much the temperature outdoors goes below 65 degrees.

Even then, body heat, stove use, good insulation and air tightness may keep the furnace from chugging away even though the temperature goes below.

President Riochard Nixon has suggested turning down the thermostat four degrees at night to save fuel, and one woman is convinced it does.

In addition to lowering the family thermostate, she pulled the draperies over a large drafty picture window each night last winter, and it helped ease the fuel consumption, she said.

THAT SMALL but useful tip had been offered by a spokesman for the petroleum industry along with some others which included these worthwhile reminders for conserving fuel.

House Temperature. . . Keep thermostat at 70 degrees or less. Every degree over that increases the cost of fuel by 3 per cent. . . In addition to lowering the thermostat at night, turn it down if the house is vacant over a weekend. . . If one plans a cold weather vacation, turn the thermostat to 55. . . a thermostat in a cold or drafty place can increase the fuel used. . . If it is on a wall exposed to a window used for airing a room, it is also misplaced. Old thermostats can monitor heating requirements irregularly.

Furnaces should be cleaned regularly. Dirty filters in warm air systems can cause poor distribution of heat. Ditto dust on radiator base boards.

ROOM POINTERS: close off unused rooms in the house. Open bedroom windows only from the bottom: opening from the top will let warm air escape.

Very drafty windows only from the bottom: opening from the top will let warm air escape.

Very drafty windows should be given a weatherstripping treatment or cover windows and unused doors completely with heavy plastic which might be taped on. Keep furniture and other objects away from heating units where they might block the flow of heat. . .

A sheet of aluminum or aluminum foil can be put behind a radiator to reflect heat into a room. Keep fireplace damper closed to avoid heat escaping.

Repair faucet drip — if hot water drips at the rate of one drop a second, 700 gallons of water and a considerable amount of energy will be wasted each year.

APPLIANCE USE — Avoid using heavy appliances — floor sanders, and the like — during peak energy periods when schools, stores, factories are making high energy demands. In those peak hours do one big wash rather than several small ones, but better to use a washing machine at night or on weekends.

. . .Keep air-conditioning filters clean or air will get to places where it is not needed.

. . .Appliances should not be turned on and off constantly. Television requires a bit power thrust. Vacuum cleaners should be kept running while furniture is moved. . . Remove everything you need from a refrigerator at once instead of opening and closing the door several times for one meal.

For example, in the morning, remove juice, coffee, bacon, eggs, milk, butter and anything else needed. (Anyone trying to sleep can provide a perfect count on the number of times the refrigerator door bangs shut in the morning, if you need corroboration.)

. . .In cooking try to get mileage out of a hot burner. Electric stoves take a while to heat so after using a hot burner use it for something else that will be needed in a short time. (Bacon cooked on the coffee burner?)

Canadian exhibitions enherited their character mainly from the Old World agricultural fairs.

Dallas - and the people - haven't forgotten !

By ROBERT E. FORD
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Still they come. Two or three at a time, sometimes a half dozen. Hundreds daily.

They stop on the narrow street and point upward. They know the window.

It's six floors up the Texas School Book Depository Building. Ten years ago, by Warren Commission account, Lee Harvey Oswald perched up there and murderously aimed a $12.78 rifle at President John F. Kennedy.

On the outside, the reddish brick building shows little change. Some windows yawn open, their blinds hanging every which way. Inside there's nothing. The Texas School Book Depository Co. is long gone.

But the old bricks will never lose the name.

Not far away is the grassy knoll. It's very important to doubters of the Warren Commission's verdict that Oswald acted alone. They say another assassin, maybe more, could have crouched there.

The grass of the knoll is bright green this time of year.

About 200 yards away from the Dealy Plaza area is the John F. Kennedy Museum. Crowds form there often. It's a commercial enterprise, but owners are very conscious of taste. Another 200 yards to the southeast is the city's Kennedy Memorial: four walls of pale white concrete, the top open to the sky. The grounds are well kept.

At the center of the memorial is a small platform bearing Kennedy's name. Along the approach is a granite insert in the concrete. It reads in part:

"...It is not a memorial to the pain and sorrow of death but stands as a permanent tribute to the joy and excitement of one man's life..."

These are the landmarks and this is Dallas, the Big D, the town fate picked for Kennedy's death.

Dallas had been battered by national criticism in the months before Kennedy's arrival in the city on Nov. 22, 1963.

A few militant ultraconservatives had set off some distressing events — jostling of Lyndon B. Johnson and Lady Bird during a campaign appearance, a "National Indignation Convention" which turned into an anti-Kennedy movement, and a physical assault on the late United Nations Ambassador Adlai Stevenson — he was spat upon and struck with a picket sign after a United Nations Day speech.

The events hardly touched the mainstream of Dallas, however. Residents considered them freak outbreaks, the work of a few extremists. But they happened and when the rifle bullets ripped into Kennedy, Dallas for many became a "city of hate."

It became a common theme in those days, even though many wondered how Oswald, a self-styled Marxist, could be equated with the right-wing frenzy. Yet the words were spoken, even in Dallas.

Sarah T. Hughes, the federal judge who in Dallas swore in Lyndon B. Johnson as Kennedy's successor, made a speech not long after the killing.

"There was a climate of hate in Dallas that was not evident in any other place. I definitely think that the feeling in Dallas contributed to the fact that Oswald would do this deed here rather than in some other city," she declared.

Today, however, Judge Hughes believes that the "climate of hate" has to a large degree disappeared. And it is hard to find anger heard among tourists who come to view the street where Kennedy died.

The National Indignation Convention, born as a protest against military aid to Yugoslavia, has disappeared. Its founder, Frank McGehee, a garage owner, is no longer listed in area directories.

In the wake of the assassination, professors and some others at Dallas' Southern Methodist University formed a committee to discuss the issues raised by the murder. Its main object was to change the attitude of Dallas, namely the conservative bent of its politics.

The committee met about three times, but no longer convenes. "I don't know what they accomplished, if anything," an SMU spokesman said.

Dallas today can still be called a conservative city. It's no New York or San Francisco. But the term has lost a lot of meaning in 10 years. There have been a lot of terms and movements since.

To Felix McKnight, vice chairman of the Dallas Times Herald, there has been a shift in attitude in the city.

To him Dallas always has been a tolerant city, but now more than ever before.

The Dallas leadership today, he said, is composed of younger men and women with a high degree of tolerance. The city was "once run by four or five senior heads. No more," he added.

Marina Porter remains silent

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer

ROCKWALL, Tex. (AP) — The sign says "Beware of Dog" and a barbed-wire gate suggests that one is not always welcome at the country home of Marina Oswald Porter.

"No, no," she says when a telephone caller requests an interview. "I have talked to Life magazine, and I cannot talk with you, even if I wanted to. They could sue me if I talked to anyone or permitted pictures."

And so it goes with the Russian-born widow of Lee Harvey Oswald, the surly, wispy man accused of the ambush assassination of President John F. Kennedy 10 years ago in Dallas.

Now Mrs. Kenneth Jess Porter, the dark blonde Marina and her three children abandoned city life recently and settled in the rolling farmlands of Rockwall County east of, and adjacent to, Dallas.

Porter, an electronics technician at the time of their marriage in 1964, is now an agent for a Dallas-based sewing company.

The blue-eyed Marina, 32, described by neighbors as still slim and attractive, surfaces occasionally at one of two country stores within minutes of her home.

The house is unfinished but would appear to be in the $30,000 range. A muddy pond lies between the front entrance and the farm road, and a wire fence runs along the highway.

A recent visitor found no one at home and, despite the black and white "Beware" sign, no dog in sight.

In the brief telephone conversation, Marina said, "No pictures, no interviews, no anything."

She explained that Life magazine, although folded, planned a special edition marking the 10th anniversary of Kennedy's death and she was contractually bound to silence until next spring.

"I am fine now, everything's fine," she said, with only a trace of the Russian accent so distinct in the days and months after the assassination.

Her two children by Oswald — June, 12, and Rachel, 10 — and her son by Porter, Mark, 7, attend school in nearby Rockwall, traveling the nine miles by bus. Marina does not drive a car.

Major assassination figures scattered

DALLAS, Tex.(AP) — Change has affected all walks of life in the 10 years since the assassination of President John F. Kennedy. Here is a look at what has happened to some of the characters in the tragedy of Nov. 22, 1963 in Dallas:

Lyndon B. Johnson, Kennedy successor, died of a heart attack on Jan. 22, 1973.

Marina Oswald, Russian-born wife of Lee Harvey Oswald, married Kenneth J. Porter, a sewing machine company employe, in 1964. They have a 7-year-old son and live in Rockwall, a rural area near Dallas, with Oswald's two daughters, June, 12, and Rachel, 10.

Marguerite Oswald, Lee Harvey's mother, lives in Fort Worth, Tex., and still asserts that her son was innocent of the Kennedy murder.

John B. Connally, then the Texas governor who was wounded in the assassination, became secretary of the Treasury and special adviser to President Nixon. He has switched to the Republican party and is considered a contender for the 1976 nomination.

Mrs. J.D. Tippit, widow of the Dallas policeman slain shortly after the assassination, married Harry D. Thomas, a Dallas police lieutenant, in 1967. People from around the world donated money to the Tippit family after the assassination and in 1964 the Dallas Police Department reported the total at $656,391.58. There has been no further public accounting.

Sarah T. Hughes, the District Court judge who administered the oath of office to Johnson, is 76 and holds the same federal judgeship.

Dr. Malcolm O. Perry, the surgeon who attended the dying president, still practices at Parkland Hospital and is now a full professor of surgery at the University of Texas Southwestern Medical School.

William Wayne Whaley, who drove the taxicab carrying Oswald from downtown to his rooming house after the assassination, was killed in a traffic accident Dec. 18, 1965.

Earlene Roberts, Oswald's landlady, died of a heart attack Jan. 9, 1966.

Police Chief Jesse Curry retired from the department after 30 years and is a vice president and the security chief of a downtown bank.

J. Gordon Shanklin remains as FBI agent in charge in Dallas.

Forrest V. Sorrels, agent in charge of the Dallas Secret Service office, retired about three years ago.

Police Capt. Will Fritz, chief interrogator of Oswald, is retired.

William Greer, driver of the Kennedy car on Nov. 22, received disability retirement from the Secret Service in 1966 because of an ulcer condition.

Patrolman M.N. McDonald, who grappled with Oswald in the Texas theater and, with help of others arrested him, was promoted to detective and is still with the department.

Abraham Zapruder, the Dallas manufacturer who made the dramatic home movies of the assassination, died in August 1970, after a lingering illness.

Joe B. Brown Sr., presiding judge at the murder trial of night club owner Jack Ruby, died of a heart attack in 1968.

Melvin Belli, Ruby's chief counsel, practices law in San Francisco.

Bill Alexander, chief prosecutor of Ruby, is in private law practice.

A.D. "Jim" Bowie, a Ruby prosecutor, died of cancer in 1968. He had been serving as a federal judge.

Surgeon recalls tragedy in 1963

By JAMES MANGAN
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP) — Dr. Malcolm O. Perry, the surgeon who tried to save President John F. Kennedy 10 years ago, wishes now he could reclaim a few words he spoke shortly after Kennedy died.

"I was pretty naive," Perry said recently of his statement about the neck bullet wound at a tumultuous press conference at Parkland Hospital. His words have led to endless speculation about how the President was killed and whether there was more than one assassin.

In a recent interview in his office at the University of Texas Southwestern Medical School, which adjoins Parkland, Perry recalled the events of Nov. 22, 1963.

"I was in the hospital cafeteria preparing to make bedside rounds when we heard an emergency room page for Dr. Tom Shires, the chief surgeon. This was unusual, so we made a call to check. We were told that the President was being brought in. Dr. Shires was in Galveston giving a paper, so we rushed to the emergency room."

At that point, Perry said, the President was gasping as he lay on his back on a stretcher, and Dr. James Carrico, on duty in the emergency room, was inserting a tube in his throat.

"It was clear that an airway was needed," Dr. Perry recalled. "I made an incision through the bullet wound in the front of the neck and performed a tracheostomy."

The incision through the wound deformed the original bullet hole, which was about at the point where a tie is knotted. The Warren Commission, later ruling that Lee Harvey Oswald was the lone assassin, termed this an "exit wound." Oswald was positioned in a building to the rear of the Kennedy motorcade.

However, in speaking to newsmen shortly after the President had died, Perry recalled, he said the wound in the front of the neck "appeared to be an entrance wound."

"Did you say 'entrance wound?'" a reporter asked.

"Yes, entrance wound," Dr. Perry said.

This latter statement appeared definitive when it was not intended to be, and has led to suspicions about why an entrance wound later became an official exit wound.

"I never had time to really look at the wound," Perry said in the recent interview. "The procedures were automatic. I never thought about the legal aspects when I made the cut."

"Now I wish I didn't say anything," he said with a rueful smile. "I know better now. Everybody there (at the hospital) should have gotten together on a statement.

"But I still wouldn't change anything. I could only report what I saw. I just tried to answer as honestly as I could. I don't know how many bullets struck Mr. Kennedy. I don't know any more about it now than I did then."

Perry, now a full professor of surgery, avoids reading or talking about the events of Nov. 22, 1963. "I have stayed away from it," he said. "Frankly, it depresses me. I don't care to go over it. I don't read the books." —

Ohio State rules out artificial snow use

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio State University students who want to ski this winter had better hope for snow. Officials have ruled the snow-making machines won't be used this year, because they use too much fuel.

"Making snow for the season would burn an amount of fuel that would run the university's entire bus system for a month," the school said in a fact sheet about its conservation efforts.

Is the Appalachian Highway snarled in politics?

By DEAN SCHOTT
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Appalachian Highway promised to push a four-lane pavement over the hills of southern Ohio and bring a better life to the region's one million residents.

Eight years after conception, the 294-mile system between Belpre and Batavia has been called a failure by an Ohio State University geography professor who conducted a study for three years.

Dr. Howard L. Gauthier said construction of the highway has suffered because of political decisions made by the Democratic administration of Gov. John J. Gilligan.

State officials said lack of money and not politics has blocked completion of the highway, which was to spawn development of the 28-county region.

"The highway was to be the backbone for delivery of social services, particularly vocational education and health care," Gauthier said. "It's more than a failure to build roads. It's a failure to meet the needs of the people."

He noted that the Government Accounting Office found the system to be a "patchwork of isolated highway segments which provide no regional basis for coordinated development."

Despite the promise of development, he said, many of the region's people remain isolated from better employment, improved health facilities and more educational opportunities.

During his study, Gauthier said he discovered that construction of the system lagged because highway money was used "to complete the state's obligation in northeastern Ohio."

He said, "as long as the votes come out of the northeast that's where the money will go. Traditionally, the north has been Democratic and the south Republican."

Besides not getting any money, Gauthier said the system is not being emphasized by the Ohio Departments of Transportation and Economic and community Development.

State Transportation Chief J. Phillip Richley and Ohio Development Director David C. Sweet dismissed Gauthier's political proposition. They said the problem has been lack of federal money, which forces the state to use the funds to benefit the largest number of Ohioans.

Richley said completion of the system "may be as much as eight, nine or even 10 years away" because federal purse strings have been tight.

So far, the system has cost more than $98 million. The projected total cost surpasses $200 million, and with inflation, the amount could go higher.

As of October, the state has more than 75 miles of the system not scheduled for construction. The largest single stretch is about 30 miles from Williamsburg in Clermont County to Peebles in Adams County.

Meanwhile 82 miles has been open to traffic and another 15 miles is under construction. The remainder of the total 294 miles was existing highways tied into the system when first conceived.

David Kienzle of the state's Bureau of Appalachia said the highway system ranked seventh among nine projects last year. He said the Department of Transportation gave higher priority to interstates, urban highways, and primary and secondary roads.

Richley said the Appalachian Highway ranked low because of the prevailing ratio of federal and state matching funds on highway construction.

He said interstate highways received 90 per cent federal funding, primary and secondary roads 70 per cent and the Appalachian Highway 50 per cent.

Richley said the Appalachian Highway "had to compete with other projects" for federal money and lost out.

Sweet said, "It's a matter of getting the biggest bang for your buck."

Richley and Sweet said it makes good sense to get more highway for your dollars and serve more people at the same time.

The Gilligan administration hopes the game rules for federal highway construction money will change in favor of Ohio.

Gov. John J. Gilligan has pushed a proposal to expedite the highway system by changing the funding formula. He has suggested the ratio be altered from 50-50 to 70 per cent federal funds and 30 per cent state money.

The plan has been approved by the 13-member states of the Appalachian Regional Commission. The proposal now needs the okay of commission's federal chairman, Don Whitehead.

The new formula will be a major item when representatives of the 13 states and Whitehead meet in Columbus next month.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Gary Owens, known to millions as the hand-to-ear announcer on "Laugh-In," is a man of many parts. The author part was in town the other day to discuss literary matters.

The matter was his third book. It concerns what to do while holding the One suggestion: "Write a 10,000 word essay on why Vincent Van Gogh would not have enjoyed stereo."

The 119-page volume also has many historical facts about phones, but Owens forgot to talk about them. In fact, he forgot to talk about the book because other matters came up.

Most people think of Owens — a slender, vaguely professorial native of Mitchell, S.D. — as America's weirdest announcer because of "Laugh-In," which NBC cancelled this year after six seasons.

But he insists: "I'm not really an announcer. It's a misnomer."

Finding the right nomer is hard. He's an actor, with some 50 other TV shows in his logbook. He's a voice on TV cartoons and on the 400 or so radio and TV commercials he estimates he does in a year. He also writes and has made five comedy albums.

On top of all that, he's a toprated disc jockey at KMPC in Los Angeles, a city where he and deejays like him emit the wildest, funniest brand of humor heard anywhere in the United States.

Owens said he got his "Laugh-In" job in a strange way.

He and George Schlatter, then head of the show, were lunching one day at a Burbank restaurant near the "Laugh-In" headquarters.

They went into the bathroom to wash up. Owens, noticing how their voices bounced off the tiles, cupped a hand to his ear like an old-style radio announcer and intoned: "My, the acoustics are good in here."

Whereupon, he said, "Schlatter says, 'Oh, hey, keep that in.' And I said, 'What, you want me to wash my hands on the show?'

"I retained that one character throughout the show," he said, cupping a hand to his ear. "I came on like a 1930s announcer and said things like: 'The Eiffel Tower in Paris, France, is not really made of Eiffel after all.'"

Owens, who began as a disc jockey in Omaha, disclosed that his career also has included a brief stint as a TV newscaster, a stint that laid an egg because of a chicken suit.

He wore the chicken suit as host of a daytime kiddie show on TV back in 1957. Thirty minutes later, he'd show up again on the air in a business suit, doing five minuts of news.

After the kiddie show one day, he stopped to talk and lost track of time. Suddenly, he had only three minutes before his news show and there he was, still in his chicken suit.

WI-CA-KA-KO-KI

The Wo Ca Ka Ko Ki Horizon Club has started its eighth year as a group. Meetings are held twice a month in the home of Mrs. Gerald Wheat, the adviser. During October the girls participated in the Council Fire by singing the responses to the lighting of the Whoelo candles.

One Saturday a trip was made to points of interest in Chillicothe. Those participating in the tour enjoyed a picnic lunch at Mound City and an afternoon visit to Adena, home of Thomas Worthington.

At a group ceremonial, a number of awards were presented, including the Hotose Award for service, Project Handclasp, and individual Torch Bearer awards in Games and Sports and Cookery. Eight members of the group received charms for seven years of membership in Camp Fire Girls.

Officers are Teri Cox, president; Christa Creamer, vice president; and Debbie Highfield, treasurer. Other members of the group are Toni Conley, Kathy Ginn, Beth Harris, Sandy Harris, Pam Johnson, Sally Robinson, Marilyn Seifried, and Becky Wheat. FAIR EXCHANGE — Randy D. Bock exchanges the check for $1,300, which he found, with Don R. Jones, administrative manager of the Mead Container Corporation, who is handing him one for $25 as a reward for his good deed.

Good deed wins a reward

Randy D. Bock, a ninth grader at Washington Junior High School and a Record-Herald carrier boy, found out that good deeds have a way of coming back to you.

Randy, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Bock, 223 East St., picked up an envelope out of curiosity. To his surprise he found a check for $1,300 inside.

He had found the envelope in front of the sheriff's office-on the steps, in a pile of leaves.

Randy contacted the Mead Container Corp., to whom the check was drawn, and wound up talking to Don R. Jones, administrative manager, who presented Randy a check for $25 as a reward for his good deed.

Randy is going to bank the money because he is saving for a car.

GERALD REID

MTHS grad named in 'Who's Who'

Gerald Reid, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Reid, Rt. 1, Mount Sterling, has been notified that he is included in the seventh annual edition of "Who's Who Among American High School Students, 1972-1973," the largest student award publication in the country.

A 1973 Miami Trace High School graduate, he is now enrolled at Ohio State University.

Outstanding students from more than 18,000 public, private and parochial high schools are recognized in the Who's Who book for their leadership in academics, athletics and community activities and services. Less than 2 per cent of the junior and senior class students nationwide are accorded this recognition.

Reid has been a 4-H member nine years, a member of the Junior Leadership Club, served as president of the Junior Fair Board, received the Rotary Club's "Service above Self" award and several awards in Future Farmers of America. He is now serving as the state FFA reporter. He returned recently from the national FFA convention in Kansas City.

In addition to having his biography published, Reid will compete for one of the $1,000 scholarships offered by the publishers and will be invited to participate in the company's annual "Survey of High Achievers" later.

Army announces new two-year enlistment plan

The United States Army has just announced a new two-year enlistment option.

The option offers either training in a skill of the applicant's choosing, or assignment in Europe following successful completion of required training in a skill selected by the Army. The option includes training in over 120 occupational areas and is open to male and female applicants.

Maj. Gen. John Q. Henion, commander of the U.S. Army Recruiting Command, said the new option "reflects an exciting opportunity for young men and women to experience a valuable addition to their lives and at the same time render an important national service.

"Our research indicates there are a good many young men and women in this country who would enlist in the Volunteer Army if they could arrange a two-year tour as an initial enlistment," he said. "Many feel that three years is just too large a commitment. They regard two years as an ideal length of time in which to do some traveling and thinking and pick up some valuable learning."

Additional information on the Volunteer Army's new option is available from SSG William Bradshaw, Army representative in this area, at 474-8525, 116 E. Main St., Circleville.

Coal conversion project pushed

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— Old Ben Coal Corp. is seeking support for a $73 million project to test the commercial feasibility of a process for converting coal to a low sulfur fuel.

DeWitt W. Buchanan Jr., president of Old Ben, said Monday the tests would be conducted at a plant to be built adjacent to the Standard Oil Co. (Ohio) refinery at Toledo. Old Ben is a Sohio subsidiary.

Buchanan said 15 or more companies will be invited to participate in the project, which is expected to take five years.

GI benefit cut pushed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the House Veterans' Affairs Committee says he wants to trim from 13.6 per cent to 8 per cent a proposed increase in educational benefits for veterans under the GI bill.

Rep. William Jennings Bryan Dorn, D-S.C., said an 8 per cent boost would be more reasonable and would probably escape a possible veto.

The bill to increase benefits 13.6 per cent was drafted by a House subcommittee after an independent study concluded that Vietnam-era veterans receive fewer relative benefits than their World War II predecessors.

The legislation, with the full 13.6 per cent hike, would raise monthly payments to single veterans attending school from $225 to $250 per month, with proportional increases to other veterans.

Pinkerton, Rt. 3, Greenfield, has returned to his home port of Norfolk, Va., aboard the heavy cruiser USS Newport News, after a 51-day northern European cruise. He participated in the NATO fleet training exercise, Swift Move, in the North Atlantic.

A 1971 McClain High School graduate, he joined the Navy in August 1972.

Anne's wedding gifts displayed

LONDON (AP) — Princess Anne's 2,000 wedding gifts include diamonds, fur, lace and satin garters and a horse.

All of them except for the horse, a 3-year-old chestnut gelding, went on display to the general public Monday for the price of 72 cents a head.

Queen Elizabeth II gave her daughter diamond earrings and a gold stalactite brooch set with diamonds. For Capt. Mark Phillips, the princess' husband, there was a gold pocket watch.

There were also vanilla toffee candy; goblets, egg cups, drinking bowls and crystal in every size and shape; books by the dozen and saddles, horse blankets and riding gear along with water colors, oils and etchings of every horse in the equine Who's Who.

Stamps In The News

AP Newsfeatures

By SYD KRONISH

Although the U.S. Postal Service has not received the official green light from the Postal Rate Commission, it has printed millions of new stamps ready for use when the new rates take temporary effect Jan. 5.

Of course, if something goes awry (very unlikely) in preventing the increase, the green light will turn into a red face.

The first of these items to be released is the 13-cent domestic airmail stamp. Other new issues in varying denominations will become available during the next couple of months in line with the highter rates, as mentioned previously in this column.

The design of the new airmail is an airmail envelope in simulated flight. The envelope is white against a red background. The "13-cents" is seen midway down to the left while across the bottom appears "U.S. Airmail."

Next week we will talk about the new 10-center for regular first-class postage to replace the 8-cent rate now in effect.

U.S. COLLECTORS have some consolation to know that that purchases of the Boston Tea Party stamps at the Philatelic Sales Unit, both across-the-counter and mail-order sales, are now limited to four sheets per customer.

The limitation was imposed to make these stamps more readily available to a larger number of collectors and to assure their availability for a longer period of time.

The Boston Tea Party block of stamps has proved to be one of the most popular ever issued by the U.S. Postal Service.

PHILATELISTS who specialize in the topic "Sports on Stamps" will welcome the second edition of "Sports & Recreation Check List" by Robert M. Bruce, soon to be published by the American Topical Assn. This 48-page book contains stamps for all adult competitive sports, Olympic issues and recreation features.

Competitive sports includes such subjects as aquatic (diving, sailing, swimming, water skiing), ball (baseball, basketball, football, soccer, tennis), combative (archery, boxing, fencing, judo), racing (auto, bicycle, horse, motorcycle), track and field, winter sports, ancient games, gymnastics and even parachuting.

PAKISTAN has issued a new stamp to mark the 10th anniversary of the World Food Program set up by the United Nations. This program during the last decade has committed millions of dollars in food aid to nearly 550 projects in 88 countries.

It has also provided some $122 million in relief for the victims of natural and manmade disasters in 74 countries.

Pakistan is honoring this anniversary because it has been one of the major recipients of such aid. The most recent aid to Pakistan helped mitigate the effects of the Indo-Pakistan war in 1971.

The stamp depicts a worker in the fields reaping a crop. To the left is the inscription "World Food Program" beneath which is "Ten Years in the Service of Development." The WFP emblem is at the lower left.

TUNISIA'S latest stamp hails the Boy Scouts International, according to the World Wide Philatelic Agency. The new adhesive shows the famous scout emblem of the fleur de lis imposed on mass flags.

This stamp, as well as all others mentioned in this column, is available at your local stamp dealer or stamp department.

STAMP COLLECTING is a wonderful hobby for young or old. If you have any extra stamps, why not take them to the veterans hospital near you and help start a stamp club there, if they don't have one already.

TWO STAMPS definitely on the U.S. agenda for 1974 will commemorate the 75th anniversary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the 200th anniversary of the First Continental Congress.

Octaneratings confuse drivers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Following directions in the owners' manuals can cost car owners $1 or more a tank at the gasoline pump.

The reason is the new octane ratings posted on gasoline pumps at the order of the Cost of Living Council.

The owners' manuals for at least the early models of 1974 American cars universally recommend a gasoline of 91 "research-octane" or better.

The white circular stickers on gas pumps generally offer a choice between gasolines with octanes of 87 or 90 or 95. What the owner of any American car built since 1972 wants is 87.

Octane measures the antiknock properties of a gasoline. Using a gasoline with too low an octane can damage the car's engine. Using a gasoline with too high an octane is a waste of money.

But all octanes are not alike.

Any owner's manual printed prior to this year couches its recommendation in terms of research octane, which is based on antiknock properties under mild operating conditions.

Another type of octane — motor octane — measures the antiknock properties under more severe conditions.

When the government first proposed requiring octane posting, the oil companies complained that the traditional measure, research octane, wasn't a fair measure. The companies didn't much like motor octane alone, either.

So the government compromised. It took the research octane rating, added the motor rating, divided the sum by two and ordered the number pasted on gasoline pumps.

Holiday mail skeds advanced

Washington C.H. Postmaster Richard Witherspoon declares that deadlines for Christmas mailing have been advanced one to two weeks on instructions by Postmaster General E.T. Klassen and that the new schedule is now in effect.

Because of the energy crisis, he said, Klassen urges Americans to post their domestic and foreign Christmas mail one to two weeks earlier than the Postal Service originally recommended.

The new deadline for posting domestic first class Christmas mail is Dec. 8 rather than Dec. 15, as previously announced. Domestic surface parcels, except those for Alaska and Hawaii, should be mailed by Dec. 3, instead of Dec. 10.

Airmail parcels and letters within the United States (except Alaska and Hawaii) should now be posted no later than Dec. 15, rather than Dec. 21.

"THE SERIOUSNESS of the fuel shortage to the Postal Service is underlined," Klassen said, "by the fact that in addition to the fuel consumed by commercial air carriers, we require approximately 350 million gallons of fuel traveling 2.25 billion miles to deliver the 90 billion pieces of mail that flow through the system each year. Our requirement for the month of December alone is 45 million gallons."

"Although roughly half of our Christmas mail remains within a 150-mile radius of senders, the Christmas season is a time of particularly large volumes of long-distance mail, Klassen said.

"So far, reductions in airline flights have not interfered with our ability to meet service standards since alternate flights have been available," he said.

WITHIN the contiguous 48 states, the Postal Service promises that at least 95 per cent of all airmail letters will be delivered in no more than two days, Klassen said.

The Postmaster General has also requested that long-haul truck operators under contract to the Postal Service promises that at least 95 per cent of all airmail letters will be delivered in no more than two days, Klassen said.

The Postmaster General has also requested that long-haul truck operators under contract to the Postal Service observe the 50-mile-an-hour speed limit asked by President Nixon.

Revised international and military mail-early dates are:

NOV. 23 — International surface greeting cards to Canada and Mexico;

NOV. 24 — Airmail greetings and parcels to Armed Forces in Canada, Greenland, Labrador Newfoundland, the Congo, Liberia and the Azores;

International air parcels to Africa, the Near East and the Far East;

NOV. 27 — Airmail greetings and parcels to Armed Forces in Belgium, Denmark, England Finland, France, Germany, Greece, Italy, Norway, Netherlands, Portugal and Spain; International Air parcels to Europe, South and Central America;

NOV. 29 — International air parcels to Canada and Mexico; International air greeting cards to Africa, the Near East and the Far East;

DEC. 2 — International air greetings to Europe, Central and South America;

DEC. 4 — International air greetings to Canada and Mexico.

CAMERA Angles

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

Our family headline albums received enthusiastic attention recently from visitors, so let me correct an oversight in not telling you sooner how to combine your personal photos with historic world happenings.

Newspaper headlines and news magazine reports tell the story of what's taking place in the world while you're taking family pictures. Usually, if you're conscientious and have pride in picture taking, the photos will be assembled in an album and the appeal is solely as images.

My idea has been to combine the photos with newsmaking events that were taking place as you were pressing the camera button. In a headline album, therefore, the events and the dates become part of the album along with the personal pictures.

You must, of course, put aside a noteworthy newspaper front page or a news magazine story at the time you take photos. The front page or news story when pasted down in the album will date the photos effectively not only as to when it was taken but in the perspective of what was occurring in the world at the same time.

WITH the passing of time, these headline albums become more interesting and valuable. For instance, let's look at the first headline album I started in 1941 when our first daughter was born. The pages turn and fall open at Dec. 8. A snapshot shows that seven-months-old Susan faced a minor crisis with food. . .there was more showing on her face than went inside.

On the facing page, a two-line newspaper headline shouted news that was about to affect the nation's food habits, and worse: "1500 DEAD IN HAWAII — CONGRESS VOTES WAR."

Through the years, that photo of Susan packs more meaning when you see it in relation to the moment in history when it was snapped.

Historic events are still shaping today's headlines and frontpage stories. Save them now for possible eventual use when you take pictures. If you travel or go abroad, save the local or foreign front pages to pinpoint the locale.

In actual use, depending on the size of the album, only the top half of the page will be needed.

HISTORIC NEWSPAPER HEADLINES of 1941 and '42 make family albums more meaningful when the personal photos are seen in relationship to the dramatic events taking place in the world. Here's Susan Desfor, 8, looking at her own baby pictures in the family headline albums.

SOMETIMES it is preferable to copy the newspaper front page to make a smaller print. Extreme contrast film makes the best copies. Copy prints, when fixed and washed properly, can last a lot longer than the original newsprint page which yellows in the normal course of years.

I found a library-type scrapbook album with a book-like binding most suitable for such a continuing project. It measures $9\frac{1}{4}$ x $11\frac{3}{4}$ inches and has a hard, art-type gray-green paper which takes ink captions and adhesives well.

Every second page is perforated and removed to allow space for prints and thereby lessen the problem of an overbulging book when finished.

We've used rubber cement to make a clean flat job of mounting prints and newspapers. It should be spread thinly on the back of the prints and on the album page. . . left to dry for a few moments. . . before print and page are brought together.

Mark pencil guidelines in advance for precise positions because rubber cement grabs hold of anything else rubber cemented like a magnet and balks at shifting its position.

ONE METHOD of assuring proper placement is to cover the cemented-and-dry album page with a sheet of blank paper leaving only one edge of the picture position free. Place the print or newspaper to match that edge.

When it does, press the edge in place. . . then withdraw the blank paper slowly and at the same time press down the rest of the photo or newspaper.

Rubber cement has advantages and disadvantages. It can be applied quickly and easily, freely overlapping the picture position. When the print is in place, the excess can be removed easily . . . it rubs off. You can make a rubber cement "picker upper" by rolling together dried excess cement drippings on a dispenser jar.

It removes excess cement on any part of photos or pages without affecting their surface. However, any excess rubber cement on the newspaper page reading matter or any soft surface paper can lead to trouble. Trying to remove it can also remove part of the surface.

RUBBER CEMENT also affects some types of paper in a matter of time. In five or 10 or perhaps more years, it may dry out and prints may peel away.

It may also discolor some types of magazine print paper leaving a brownish stain. My original headline albums show some of the brownish discoloration -- but they are more than 30 years old! Some of my photo prints are also stained, indicating they were not properly fixed and washed either.

For archival permanence, thorough fixing and washing of prints are essential, and special photo adhesives or contact cement are recommended by Kodak specialists.

In operation, the actual newspaper front pages are spread across two album pages at a slight angle and cut to fit top and bottom. Selected photos are added to the front page, of suitable size and placement so as not to interfere with the front page news. Other photos of the same series can follow on succeeding pages.

Other types and suggestions about family albums will be next week's column topic.

Medical insurance claims should be filed in November

CHILLICOTHE — Medicare beneficiaries are urged to file all medical insurance claims for services received from Oct. 1, 1971, through Sept. 30, 1972, before the deadline of Dec. 31, Harry B. Bieber, district Social Security manager at Chillicothe says.

He suggests that mailing such claims in November is preferable to avoid the Christmas mail rush.

Under the Medicare law, claims for services provided within the Oct. 71 - Sept. 72 period cannot be reimbursed when received after Dec. 31, 1973.

Bieber also explained that a carry-over rule applicable to the medical insurance part of Medicare also allows many claims for services performed in the final three months of each calendar year to count toward the $60 annual deductible for that year as well as the following year.

Even though a Medicare patient hasn't met his deductible near the end of a year he should send in all of his bills, especially those for the final three months. Thus his record is updated so that prompt service can be rendered on subsequent claims.

Bieber invited Medicare beneficiaries to contact the Social Security Office at 606 Central Center, Chillicothe if they need assistance in completing claims. This especially applies to those people receiving Social Security disability payments who become covered under Medicare beginning in July 1973.

All claims should be mailed to Nationwide-Medicare, P.O. Box 57, Columbus, Ohio 43216, promptly to avoid the Christmas mail rush.

Buffalo roam Western Plains

By TOM SIEBERT

MURDO, S.C. (AP) — Hunted nearly to oblivion 100 years ago by sportsmen, the shaggy-headed American buffalo is flourishing again on the western plains — this time under the watchful eyes of ranchers and park rangers.

It is estimated there were 60 million buffalo in America when Columbus sailed in 1492, and that in 1850 at least 20 million still roamed the plains in great herds.

By the turn of the century, however, the dusty brownish-black bison had nearly joined blue-coated cavalry charges and Indian teepee villages as extinct Old West folklore.

An attempt at a headcount in 1889 put the total number of bulls, cows and calves in the United States at 551. At Yellowstone National Park, Wyo., home for the last free-roaming herd in the nation, only 22 buffalo were found in a census taken in 1900.

The National Buffalo Association says its records now show 15,000 bison belong to members in 39 states, another 5,000 or so are owned by other individuals and zoos and about 5,000 are in federal refuges.

ARCHEOLOGISTS in Wyoming have found centuries-old buffalo jumps, graveyards beneath cliffs where the animals were driven over the edge by Indians armed with little more than cunning in their search for food. Crippled animals that couldn't get away were killed with stone-tipped spears.

The "ciboleros" of New Mexico hunted the buffalo from horseback with heavy 12-foot-long lances tipped with steel, and carried away wagon loads of meat for drying.

But these hunts were for food rather than sport, and left the herds virtually undiminished until the onslaught of hunters with guns in the 19th century.

Now buffalo are more likely to be herded with all-terrain vehicles, pickup trucks and helicopters than with horses. And when a herd needs thinning, they are as likely to be sold to breeders as led to the slaughter pens.

Roy Houch, president of the seven-year-old National Buffalo Association, has about 3,300 buffalo at his ranch at Fort Pierre, S.D. A cattle rancher, he started with 12 buffalo in 1959, because he "always kind of admired them."

Fellow South Dakotan Don Hight has about 2,000 head on his 35,000-acre ranch just south of Murdo, and there is another large herd at Custer State Park, S.D.

THE ONLY OTHER herd over a couple of hundred animals is at Gillette, Wyo., where the California-based Durham Meat Co. has 2,200 head on a 50,000-acre spread.

Houch, who runs his Triple U Enterprises with two sons, is in the process of constructing his own plant for slaughtering.

"For us it's been a very profitable venture," he said. "The return is about 25 per cent higher than cattle. You have a higher investment in stronger fences and corrals, but you have quite a saving on labor and feed once you are established."

Buffalo meat, which Houck says is eaten "pretty near exclusively" at his ranch, has a slightly wild taste but is usually less fatty than beef. Ranchers also claim the muscle fiber is finer and hence easier to cook and say the meat is high in protein and polyunsaturates.

Houck markets most of his animals through restaurants and several supermarket chains, which sell buffalo meat as a gourmet item. Prices run about a third higher than beef.

ONE of the big advantages of raising bison over cattle is their durability in poor weather, says Jack Errington, manager of the Durham company. "In winter they'll forage for themselves — you don't have to baby them."

But the self-managing virtues of buffalo also have a negative side, their independence. "The animals like to fight," said ranch foreman Art Busskohl, "and if one runs because he gets afraid of something, the others may follow in a stampede."

Problems with people trying to get too close to buffalo are about the only difficulties faced by rangers tending the herd of 750 that roam the 3,400 square miles of Yellowstone National Park, said Ranger Edmund Bucknall.

The animals' belligerence, when coupled with tourists who crowd too close trying to get pictures or trying to pet the wild buffalo, has cost one man's life and some injuries over the years, said Bucknall.

"People get in a ring around them, and whoever is standing in the way it takes to get out gets hurt."

The buffalo at Yellowstone have only one predator to worry about — the grizzly bears — and even they will rarely take on a mature bison in a fight, said Bucknall.

Church opens ad campaign for recruits to priesthood

NEW YORK (AP) — "Father John O'Leary. If he's not in church, he's probably in jail," the advertisement declared in big type.

The newspaper and magazine ad, describing the work of a priest who counsels prisoners, is part of a $100,000 advertising campaign being launched by the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of New York to help find recruits for its shrinking priesthood.

The advertising effort is believed to be the first of such scope by any diocese in the nation. Its theme: "The New York priest. God knows what he does for a living."

"I'm sure that God does know it, but we're anxious for everyone else to know it," Terence Cardinal Cooke, archbishop of New York, said at a news conference Monday.

The cardinal said the archdiocese had been faced with a shortage of priests for years.

The Rev. George Thompson, director of vocations for the archdiocese, said there currently were 950 priests, compared with 1,000 to 1,100 during the late 1960s.

"Many parishes which used to have three or four priests now have two or three," Father Thompson said.

The 13-week advertising campaign is being financed through private fund-raising and aided by lay volunteers who work in various fields of communications.

A lay group of professional admen has developed a series of five ads telling about Father O'Leary along with a parish priest, a slum priest, a black priest and a monsignor.

The Father O'Leary advertisement says his work with prisoners at the Manhattan House of Detention, commonly known as The Tombs, is "the kind of job you do for love, not for money."

"But there's so much more work to do in the New York Archdiocese — and too few priests," the ad continues. "Could you do what John O'Leary does? Have you ever thought about it? There's a phone number where you can reach him. Just dial P-R-I-E-S-T-S (774-3787) ... He'll be happy to talk to you about his vocation. And yours too."

Neon signs are made of gas-filled tubes.

Camper, recreation vehicle show slated

COLUMBUS — Announcement was made Tuesday of the first exclusively camping and recreational vehicle show to be held in this area. Named the All America Camping and Recreational Vehicle Show it is scheduled for a nine-day run at the Ohio Expositions Center Jan. 5 - 13, 1974.

The show is produced by the Ohio Mobile Home and Recreational Vehicle Dealers' Association, a statewide trade organization composed of travel vehicle dealers, suppliers, campground proprietors and thousands of trailer-owning associate members. The 25 Central Ohio recreational vehicle dealer members are cooperating to provide the mid-winter showing of more than 300 new model camping vehicles, representing dozens of national manufacturers of travel and camping equipment.

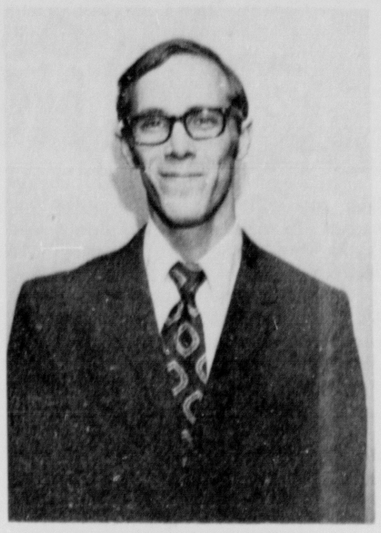
"Those who already are camping enthusiasts and thousands more who are contemplating the purchase of recreational vehicle and camping equipment will surely want to visit this show," said Victor Sabo and Louis Huffman, co-chairmen of the event.

IN ADDITION to displays of motor homes, mini-homes, travel trailers and pickup campers, the show will feature a supplier's section offering the latest in accessory products. There will be dozens of campground and trailer oriented resort booths from which experts will dispense up-to-date "where-to-go and what-to-do there" information.

According to Executive Director Gene L. Keener of the state trade association, the All America Camping and Recreational Vehicle Show will provide the largest, most representative exhibit of its kind in the area and the only all-dealer show in the Columbus vicinity of this particular type equipment.

Exhibits will fill the Fairgrounds' multi-purpose building's five-acre enclosure providing comfortable viewing of camping equipment and related supplies. The showing will be held over two weekends and five weekdays in between. Special family-type entertainment and camping equipment demonstrations will augment the show's daily sessions.

The warm chinook wind of southern Alberta, Canada, can cause the temperature to rise as much as 80 degrees in a single day.



NEW MANAGER — Phillip W. Cox has been named as the new manager at Scott's variety store in the Washington Square Shopping Center. Cox, 31, formerly was a co-manager with the TG&Y family center in London, Ky., until coming to Washington C.H. Nov. 1. Cox, who replaces Ken Whiteman at the Scott's store here, formerly was also associated with the F.W. Woolworth Co. chain. He and his wife, Barbara, and son, Jeffrey, reside at 140 Adams Dr., just off Ohio 41-S.

Food stamps OKd

GREENFIELD — Myron Carman, Rt. 1, Greenfield, has been authorized by the U.S. Department of Agriculture to accept food stamps for eggs, poultry and garden produce.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

THURSDAY, NOV. 22

ARIES
(March 21 to April 20)
Your planets in fine configuration. Seek top-flight investments for your money, time and talents. A rewarding day if you play your cards right.

TAURUS
(April 21 to May 21)
Don't be too quick to arrive at conclusions and, even after some thought, review again. Misinterpretation of certain situations could prove costly.

GEMINI
(May 22 to June 21)
Don't be disappointed if a planned trip is called off. It could be for the best. Evening social activities promise to be enlivening.

CANCER
(June 22 to July 23)
A few "surprises" likely — some which will please, others which may not. Take the bad with the good, in your usual philosophic manner.

LEO
(July 24 to Aug. 23)
Financial matters governed by generous influences. You can now pull off a deal which once seemed hopeless.

VIRGO
(Aug 24 to Sept. 23)
Something you hear may cause you to suspect some backstage maneuvering, but don't let it lessen your self-confidence. Keep going as you planned and ignore rumors.

LIBRA
(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)
Stellar influences continue to favor creative interests and stimulate your ingenuity. Also, a good day for seeking favors — especially in mid-morning.

SCORPIO
(Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)
You may be given some new responsibilities. Don't give way to anxiety. Take each matter in turn, handling essentials first. The rest will fall into place.

SAGITTARIUS
(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)
Expenn energies wisely. There's a tendency now to overtax yourself. Your talent for carrying out assignments against big odds can be cleverly used.

CAPRICORN
(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)
Be alert to schemers and those offering dubious propositions. Don't allow yourself to be "taken in" by rosy promises, no matter how convincing the promoter may be.

AQUARIUS
(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)
Don't disregard little warning signals. Keep your imagination controlled in work and business deals, in all ares. There's a tendency now to run out of bounds.

PISCES
(Feb. 20 to March 20)
As with Capricorn, you, too, may encounter the deceptive and the unscrupulous. Be alert, and don't forsake principles.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with great physical vitality, and mental vigor, too. You often surprise yourself, as well as others, at the power thrust of which you are capable. A stalwart soul, you can also be adamant and inflexible at times. In emergencies, you act swiftly and accurately. Shun tendencies toward overindulgence in pleasures, excitement and gambling since, once the native of Scorpio takes to the "primrose path," it is almost impossible for him to return to the mainstream of an orderly life. Don't waste your potentialities, which are many — outstandingly in the theater, literature, music, aviation and statesmanship.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 23

ARIES
(March 21 to April 20)
Curb your innate aggressiveness now. Use more subtle tactics to get what you want. Benefits CAN be attained, but all will depend on your approach.

TAURUS
(April 21 to May 21)
Good news! Some unexpected largesse will tide you over a difficult spot, money-wise. Romance favored, too.

GEMINI
(May 22 to June 21)
You may find yourself drawn in two directions at once — as the Geminian so often is. Key to solution: The "easy" road is not necessarily the best one.

CANCER
(June 22 to July 23)
Be prepared to cope with strangers, odd situations. Pinpoint objectives; be selective about ways and means. Step up momentum where possible.

LEO
(July 23 to Aug. 23)
Makes sure you have checked all facts and factors before making agreements or commitments. But do not quibble foolishly and lose out.

VIRGO
(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)
Heed danger signals as well as attractions. Not many, but one or two could prove troublesome if you are not alert.

LIBRA
(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)
Much activity and movement indicated. What appeared to be status quo is actually in the process of change. Be prepared to improvise.

SCORPIO
(Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)
Especially favored now: professional endeavors, opportunities to increase prestige. You may be given added responsibility but, with it, there's increased potential.

SAGITTARIUS
(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)
Caution should be day's keynote. Let others take the initiative. Retain your quiet, efficient manner and remain in the background as much as possible.

CAPRICORN
(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)
You now have greater freedom of choice and movement than you have had in some time; can also expect some invaluable help from a member of the opposite sex.

AQUARIUS
(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)
You may be offered an unusual proposition. Investigate with a view to long-range benefits, and consider whether or not they suit YOUR standards. Some misleading influences.

PISCES
(Feb. 209 to March 20)
An idea which comes to you in the a.m. has good financial potentials. But don't make your final decision for 24 hours or you may have to revise.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with unusual executive ability, and have a penchant for introducing the unusual to add novelty and increase public interest in a product or endeavor. Highly principled yourself, you bring out the best in others, and your logic and reasoning powers are respected by all. You are energetic; endowed with a quick wit, a ready smile and tremendous courage. Many professions are open to you, but you could especially shine in the law or journalism. In the former case, you would almost inevitably wind up as a jurist, diplomat or statesman.

Magical world for some on staid Staten Island

NEW YORK (AP) — Study witchcraft on staid, tidy Staten Island? No better place, says Dr. Carlyle Haaland, an assistant professor of religious studies, who taught a course this year on the occult at the islands Wagner College.

"In reality, it is well-educated, middle-class people who have nice homes and doctorates — people you wouldn't classify as cultural dropouts — who are very much active in such areas," Haaland said.

Haaland explained that in America there is flourishing a counter-culture that provides people with a second, mystical lifestyle.

"They live schizophrenic lives," he said. "They work their 9-to-5 jobs but come home to a magical world, the one they live for."

Your Income Tax

EDITOR'S NOTE: This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q. Is it true that a person who is eligible to exclude sick pay from his income must always attach to his return a supporting statement showing computation of sick pay, nature of the illness, etc.?

A. No. A taxpayer excluding sick pay is not required to attach a supporting statement to his return as long as the employer reports the employe's excludible sick pay in a separate block on a W-2 form, keeps appropriate records, assumes full responsibility for the accuracy of sick pay figures furnished employees and keeps these figures available for IRS inspection.

Q. How is a partnership treated for income tax purposes?

A. A partnership pays no income tax. However, it must file an information return on Form 1065. This shows the results of the partnership's operations for its tax year and the items of income, gain, loss, deduction, or credit affecting its partners' individual income tax returns.

A partner must include as income on Schedule E of his federal income tax return his distributive share of partnership earnings, gains, losses, deductions, or credits, regardless of his actual withdrawals.

Q. My teen-age son has a part-time job, but I still give him a weekly spending allowance of $5. Can I include the allowance in total support I furnished for him when computing whether or not I can claim him as a dependent?

A. Yes. Total support includes funds spent for a dependent's allowance, as well as money spent for food, shelter, clothing, education, medical and dental care, transportation, and similar necessities.

Remember, you must furnish more than one half of your son's total support in order to claim him as a dependent.

Q. My Army Reserve unit meets two Thursday evenings and one Sunday each month. Can I deduct my mileage to and from these meetings?

A. If you work on weekdays, you may deduct the cost of getting from your place of work to the armory for a weekday meeting.

A different rule applies for weekend drills. If the meetings are held within the general area of your tax home, you may not deduct the cost of getting from home to a weekend drill.

ON THE HOUSE

BY ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Apartment dwellers have always been the chief victims of noise that passes through walls, ceilings and floors, but modern machines have created clatter within private homes.

Power tools in the home workshop, electric dishwashers, vacuum cleaners, automatic can openers and garbage disposals are just some of the machines that create unpleasant sounds.

There are many ways in which such noises can be controlled, but the basic principle remains the same: the way to decrease the annoyance of sounds is to do something about them at the source.

For instance, if the table saw wherring away in the basement is bothering the people in the room above the workshop, the place to control that sound is the basement, not in the room in which the noise is heard.

AN ACCOUSTICAL tile ceiling will do much toward absorbing the sound of the saw, far more than anything that might be done in the room upstairs. In the same way, a room which generates a lot of noise — such as the kitchen — should be sound-conditioned as much as possible so that the noise is absorbed while it is still in the room.

If Junior's hi-fi equipment is driving everyone else in the house slightly batty, the plan should be to keep the sound within the room rather than attempting to keep it out of the other rooms. Such things as rugs and draperies will absorb much of the sound, as will acoustical material of any kind.

When there is a sound of any kind, some of the sound waves hit your ears directly. Those that hit the floor, ceiling, walls and furniture continue to bounce around the room if the surfaces are hard.

But each time the waves hit a soft, absorbent material, some of them are pulled in and stop reverberating. That's one of the reasons kitchens are often noisy. Most of the surfaces there are hard and thus nonabsorbent.

You can't do too much about noises that come from outside the house, but you can do something. Simply shutting a window when a neighbor starts a power lawn mover keeps out much of the sound.

That's why air-conditioned houses usually are so much quieter than others; the windows are closed all or most of the time. Double-glass windows and thick rows of shrubs help to deflect and absorb outside noises.

If you are having a house built, you should give some attention to the installation of walls built especially to absorb sound, if not between all the rooms then where there is likely to be a problem.

One of several ways in which this is done is through the use of double rows of staggered studs, with insulation between.

Gold mining class opened by college

PRESCOTT, Ariz. (AP) — Gold mining in the foothills around this central Arizona community isn't what it once was, but some of its effects have rubbed off on Yavapai College.

The school offers a noncredit class in gold mining.

"It's due to the location of our institution and a commitment to preserve some of the tradition of Western heritage," says Del P. Higham, dean of student services.

Classwork, he says, primarily involves studying the mineral and mining history. But at the end of the course, students actually go out and pan for gold.

Q. — I want to install asphalt shingles on the outside walls of our house. I have a pretty good idea of how to do this, but the one thing I would like to know is whether they can be applied over the wood siding now on the house.

A. — Yes, provided the old siding is carefully gone over to see that it is securely attached everywhere. The one difficulty you may find is in cutting asphalt shingles. There are several ways to do this, but most of them require some skill and lots of practice. You may be better off renting an asphalt shingle cutter, which does the job easily and neatly.

Q. — We have an old birch table with a finish on it that looks like varnish. My wife wants me to take off the old finish and give the table a limed-oak effect that she says she saw on some furniture in a department store. How is this done?

A. — I could tell you, but it wouldn't do any good with the kind of table you have. The finish she is talking about is called limed oak. As the term implies, it is used principally on oak or, at least, on a wood with open pores. The limed effect is produced by filling the pores with white paint. On a wood with closed pores, it simply won't work.

Q. — Our blacktop driveway has some holes in it. The rest of the driveway is in good condition. Can I repair it myself with one of the blacktop patching materials I see advertised or does it require a special skill?

A. — You can do it yourself. Use a good quality product and follow the instructions carefully. I have found that, after you complete the patch, it's a good idea to sprinkle sand over it, then run your car over it once or twice to pack it down. The sand will prevent the patching material from sticking to the auto tires.

Engineering field opening to women

STAUNTON, Va. (AP) — An economist has predicted that the next profession in which women's participation will actively increase is the field of engineering.

Dr. John B. Parrish, former regional director of the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics and a former economist with the National War Labor Board, told students at Mary Baldwin College:

"Engineering is no longer a nuts and bolts profession, conjuring up images of loneliness and oddballs for women."

Dr. Parrish is now professor of economics in the College of Commerce at the University of Illinois.

The Weeders Guide

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

There were hundreds of thousands of visitors to Lisse, Holland, last spring, looking at the hundreds of varieties of flowering bulbs in the famed, 400-acre Keukenhof.

They had a chance to vote for their favorites and we thought you might like to know those that won the popularity contest — and try them.

Eleven of the bulbs currently cultivated by Holland's experts are included in the "best of 1973," or International Bulb Selections. They could become your "best of 1974." The results were reviewed by a panel of world gardening experts. Eight winners were tulips, one a hyacinth one a narcissus and one a crocus.

HERE they are:

Double Late Tulip Bonanza, carmine red, edged yellow.

Darwin Hybrid Golden Apeldoorn, yellow.

Cottage Tulip Burgundy Lake, wine-red with crystal-like fringes.

Lily-flowered Tulip West Point, yellow.

Parrot Tulip Texas Flame, buttercup yellow, flamed carmine red, base green.

Gregii Oriental Beauty, vermilion red.

Fosteriana Tulip Candela, yellow, large oblong flower.

Hyacinth Blue Jacket, dark blue, purple striped.

Small-cupped Narcissus Barrett Browning, white, orange-red cup.

Crocus Victor Hugo, violet.

Kaufmanniana Tulip Giuseppe Verdi, carmine-edged yellow, leaves mottled.

Bring Plants Indoors

Before heavy frost comes, dig up your annual plants — some of them at least — and bring them inside.

Put them in clay pots with a saucer or put the clay pot inside an attractive container if you prefer. Dig up the plants carefully. A six-inch pot should be big enough for many, including wax begonias and geraniums.

NARCISSUS
BARRETT BROWNING

Prune the plants back one-half to three-fourths their original size, cutting stems off just above a node or bud. Give them some fertilizer and water thoroughly when they need it. Pinch tops back occasionally to keep the plant in good shape.

Among other plants that should do well on a windowsill are coleus, impatiens, chives, lead plant, rosemary, English ivy, vinca. Geraniums need at least windowsill light. Don't try alyssum or petunias.

And try growing Thumbelina Zinnias and Lemon Drop Marigolds from seed indoors if you have lots of light.

2 giant ships slated for Lakes

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— The American Ship Building Co. plans a major expansion at its Lorain yards in preparation for building two giant bulk carriers under a $70 million contract with Pickands Mather & Co.

The contract, announced Monday as one of the largest ship building contracts ever let on the Great Lakes, calls for construction of two 1,000-foot self unloading ships, each with a capacity of 59,000 gross tons of iron ore pellets or 52,000 tons of coal, making them the biggest on the Lakes.

They are scheduled to go into Pickands Mather's Interlake Steamship fleet in 1975 and 1976.

Energy crisis reaction holds key to U. S. future

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The question no longer is whether or not there is an energy shortage. There is. The controversy now, at least among economists, concerns our reaction to the shortage.

The answer is a critical one because the assumption made dictates the action advocated. It is here that the pros, who generally agree that the country will soon be flirting with recession, go their separate ways.

Walter Heller, former Kennedy administration economic adviser and now a University of Minnesota professor, disagrees with Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz, who believes the public is over-reacting.

"Over-reacting? Indeed not," said Heller. "The energy shortage could actually convert a mild economic expansion into something that looks like a recession."

Milton Friedman of the University of Chicago, an advocate of free markets, a Republican and a forecaster of recession even before the Mideast oil embargo, believes the nation has "enormously exaggerated" the shortage.

Total crude oil consumption costs $40 billion a year, he explained. The anticipated shortfall of 10 per cent reduces that by $4 billion, or just fourtenths of 1 per cent of the nation's gross national product.

And yet, he adds, "the stock market has been saying a reduction of fourtenths of 1 per cent over the next two or three years reduces the value of American enterprise by 1 per cent. It makes no sense."

Friedman believes Washington has produced some of the exaggerated mood, "because of the silly, foolish, arbitrary things they're contemplating." He referred to rationing, taxing and the like.

"Simply allow prices to rise. Get Washington off the back of the economy. A 10 to 15 per cent price rise will eliminate the shortage as a serious problem," he said. It will, he said, be an incentive to produce, an incentive to conserve.

Paul Samuelson, the Nobel laureate at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, maintains that if there is a shortage of energy its availability should be restricted, but not in ways that would reduce incentives.

One technique he believes should at least be considered is ration tickets that could be sold legally in a "white" rather than black market. That is, an individual who chose not to pay high prices could sell his tickets to someone who urgently needed and was willing to pay for them.

He would consider combining this technique with price increases for the producer and a retail tax, the proceeds going to public transit and research into the liquefication and gasification of coal.

Leif Olsen, vice president and economist of First National City Bank in New York, believes the situation is exaggerated, although he too foresees a recession if the oil boycott continues more than six months.

It is a severe problem, he concedes, but he says some estimates of the consequences, such as 8 per cent unemployment, "are just not real."

"In order to produce 8 per cent unemployment in the second quarter of 1974," he said, "you'd have to have an annual rate of decline of 14 to 18 per cent in the first two quarters." Nothing like that has happened in decades.

Albert Sindlinger, the consumer opinion pollster, claims that despite what some administration officials might believe, "the people are discounting what they see in the press. People were prepared for this."

Sindlinger's continuous surveys of consumer opinion support his present view. "I expected the energy crisis would really depress consumer confidence," he said. "I expected a fantastic decline, but we got an increase."

NEW YORK (AP) — Interviews with leading economists suggest that the immediate impact of the Mideast oil embargo will be to slow the economy more sharply than had been anticipated and perhaps pitch it into recession.

But as many of the economists point out, the early effects might not be felt equally throughout the country. Shortages of gasoline and heating oil, and factory closings and layoffs, are expected to appear in pockets.

In some areas these shortages already are evident. They will become more common in the next few weeks, especially as heating oil becomes scarce along the Eastern seaboard, which depends heavily on imports.

Factories and workers are expected to be affected soon, especially in industries that rely heavily on petrochemicals. For such industries the problem is expected to be not so much a shortage of fuel but of raw materials.

"Already a very severe shortage of petrochemicals is developing," said Alan Greenspan of Townsend-Greenspan, Inc., a consulting firm.

To Greenspan this suggests "a large number of plastics, synthetic fibers and other products—an almost unbelievable number of such items—will be moving into short supply, with resulting job losses."

Estimating the job loss in advance is difficult. One consulting economist said almost all his clients have had energy task forces for the past year but that most are still asking rather than answering questions.

The confusion is evident in the airline industry. While some executives feel that cancelling some flights might result in permanent economies, others are calling the disruption of schedules devastating.

Otto Eckstein, former Johnson administration adviser and now head of Data Resources, Inc., a company that operates an incredibly complex econometric model, or mathematical matrix of the economy, foresees a sharp rise in joblessness.

After feeding the latest energy data into the model late last week, Eckstein now estimates unemployment will rise from 4.6 per cent to about 5.5 per cent in the second quarter next year, when the impact of the shortage will be greatest.

However, the jobless increase probably won't stop there. Eckstein projects a peak of 5.8 per cent in the second half of 1974, a delayed effect of the damage done earlier by a lack of energy and raw materials.

While these figures bear the imprint of computer efficiency, some observers are cautiously watching the psychological mood, maintaining that the emotional impact on people can have destructive consequences also.

What happens, for instance, when the main topic of conversation day after day becomes the cold home, insufficient gasoline for the car, the threat of a layoff? Will negative attitudes reinforce each other?

Another questionable area involves the ability of industries to adjust. Greenspan forecasts that utilities which switched to oil will seek to bring back coal within weeks, but will fail in the effort.

"They have severed ties with the coal producers," he explained. Moreover, "there aren't enough railroad hoppers and pulverizing equipment. All the peripheral machinery is dislocated."

Consumers who might not be affected by either the lack of heat or jobs almost certainly will feel the consequences of rising prices.

It is generally agreed that heating oil and gasoline prices will rise, the latter to as much as $1 a gallon in the view of several economists, and probably never again will qualify as relatively inexpensive.

But prices of a vast array of other products, including food, will also be pushed up because of their dependence upon energy in processing and transportation.

Eckstein, who had forecast 6.2 per cent inflation, has now raised his estimate to more than 7 per cent. The jump might be as much as 8 or 9 per cent early in the year, he said, falling off in the second half.

THE GOOD PROVIDER — This is a moment that many of us would like to live over again. Although 2-year-old David Thomas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Thomas, 626 S. Fayette St., may not realize the full significance of Thanksgiving Day, he's well aware of his responsibility for that dressed turkey he's towing in his wagon. Not everyone can go home again, but David can — and the anticipation of a big dinner with the family provides a real thrill in a little boy's life.

Kissinger sees Israeli security as prime need

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger has warned there can be no peace if Israel's security is endangered.

Speaking Tuesday night at a dinner for Abba Eban, the Israeli foreign minister, Kissinger said the United States and Israel have finally achieved "the direct negotiations that was their goal."

Kissinger was scheduled to brief senators today on the outlook for peace in the Middle East.

Eban, who sees Kissinger late this afternoon, said "I think we should try very hard to find points of disagreement but I do not think we shall find any." The foreign minister expressed gratitude for arms during the Yom Kippur war for deterring the Russians and for bringing about a cease-fire. He said he was looking forward to negotiations and "the adventure of looking for peace."

Kissinger was not expected to attend the dinner, held at the residence of Ambassador Simcha Dinitz. But in a brief appearance, he told the guests, including Sens. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., and Jacob K. Javits, RN.Y., that "there will be no peace in the world if something happens to endanger the security of Israel."

Kissinger told the Senate Foreign Relations committee Tuesday that prospects are favorable for a start of Arab-Israeli peace talks next month.

His reference to "direct negotiations" at the dinner was a pleasing note for the Israelis. They have insisted for years that a Middle East settlement must be built on face-to-face bargaining with the Arabs. But the Arabs have resisted dealing directly with representatives of the Jewish state.

Senators at Tuesday's closed-door meeting publicly applauded Kissinger's Middle East mediation effort, but were convinced that difficult problems remain to be solved and that progress will at best be slow.

Living costs up sharply

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer prices rose sharply last month following September's slowdown, owing partly to the energy crisis and higher prices for fuel oil and gasoline, the government said today.

The Department of Labor reported that the cost of living climbed eight-tenths of one per cent in October and pushed consumer prices up 7.9 per cent above a year ago. It marked the largest jump in any 12-month period since the 8.7 per cent inflationary rate recorded in the June 1950-51 period at the start of the Korean War.

In addition to sharply higher prices for gasoline and fuel oil, rising costs for clothing, mortgage interest rates and health insurance contributed significantly to the October rise in prices, the government said.

Knows of no more scandals

Nixon plans disclosures

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — President Nixon has promised Republican governors he will dispel the Watergate shadow on their political futures and has apologized for any trouble he has caused them.

The President also told a closed session of the winter meeting of the Republican Governors Association that he knows of no other scandals that could add to their embarrassment.

"The President looked at us around the room and said, 'I'm sorry if I have added to your burden,'" Tennessee Gov. Winfield Dunn said after the governors had listened for almost two hours to Nixon's Watergate defense Tuesday.

Governors said on leaving the closed meeting that Nixon made the strongest promises yet for full disclosure of all the facts he has about the problems that began when burglars were arrested inside Democratic party headquarters on June 17, 1972.

"He indicated a number of papers will be issued clearly responding to the questions which have been raised," Dunn said. He said those questions included the President's personal finances, the ITT affair and the milk-price case.

"Every question we asked was answered in full," Missouri Gov. Christopher S. Bond said. "And he indicated an additional four-or five-point program to continue answering, in the courts, in open news sessions, through documents he expects to release and by fuller answers to the most asked questions."

Nixon also declared that, so far as he knows, no further unpleasant revelations are likely to embarrass those who stand by him.

"He said if there are, he is not aware of them," Dunn said. "If there is any information yet to be revealed, it's information he does not have."

The session, the President's third Southern stop in four days, was similar to a series he held last week at the White House with congressional Republicans to explain his side of the Watergate controversy and ask for support.

Oregon Gov. Tom McCall, who has called for Nixon to save GOP candidates from disaster next year by clearing up Watergate before the elections, said the governors were encouraged by the meeting.

"It was a free-wheeling session of questions and answers," said California Gov. Ronald Reagan. "The President couldn't have been more frank."

The speech and governors' meeting completed a campaign of public appearances which began in Orlando, Fla., Saturday night with a televised news conference before The Associated Press Managing Editors Association and included a stop Sunday in Macon, Ga., to dedicate a law school.

Earlier Tuesday, Republican party chairman George Bush told the governors Nixon's appearances and meetings with GOP office holders and officials had turned the tide on Watergate.

Atom bombers brought home from Far East

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon has pulled more than 100 B52 bombers back from Guam to the United States, restoring most of them to their original nuclear striking force mission after the end of U.S. bombing in Indochina.

Defense sources say the move, which started in July, accelerated sharply last month during the Mideast crisis which brought the threat of a U.S.-Soviet confrontation.

Nothing has been said publicly, but sources report that about 85 of the giant Air Force jet bombers were rushed home from Guam when U.S. military units were placed on alert around the world.

Counting smaller withdrawals earlier, this leaves 25 B52s on Guam and another 50 in Thailand.

American B52 strength in the Pacific-Southeast Asia area now is down to a little more than one-third of the 205 longrange bombers which took part in the last major bombing campaign against North Vietnam.

The final B52 strike was flown against Communist-led insurgents in Cambodia shortly before the congressionally ordered halt in all U.S. military operations in Indochina last Aug. 15.

The Air Force reportedly wanted to fly the B52s back to the United States as rapidly as possible so the heavy bombers could be returned to their strategic nuclear mission.

But the White House has said to have vetoed a rapid reduction of B52 strength in the Pacific-Indochina area.

Senate panel OKs Social Security hike

WASHINGTON (AP) — An 11 per cent cost-of-living increase for 30 million Social Security recipients has moved a step closer to congressional passage with Senate Finance Committee approval of the measure.

The Senate is expected to pass the bill within two weeks. Committee Chairman Russell B. Long, D-La., said there is no doubt the legislation will be sent to President Nixon before the 1973 session ends.

The bill also would boost Social Security taxes to finance the increase. The wage base, the maximum amount of annual earnings subject to the payroll levy, would go up to $13,200 in 1974 compared to the $10,800 ceiling for 1973.

Tax rate of 5.85 per cent, paid each by the worker and employer, would not be changed in 1974.

The committee bi[illegible] put the increased benefits [illegible] in two steps — 7 per cent o[illegible]ent and 4 per cent additional next [illegible]ne.

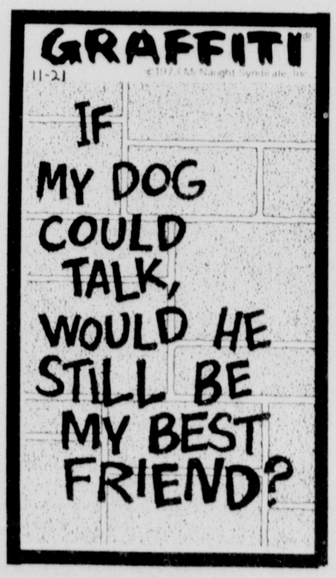
State revenue tops estimates

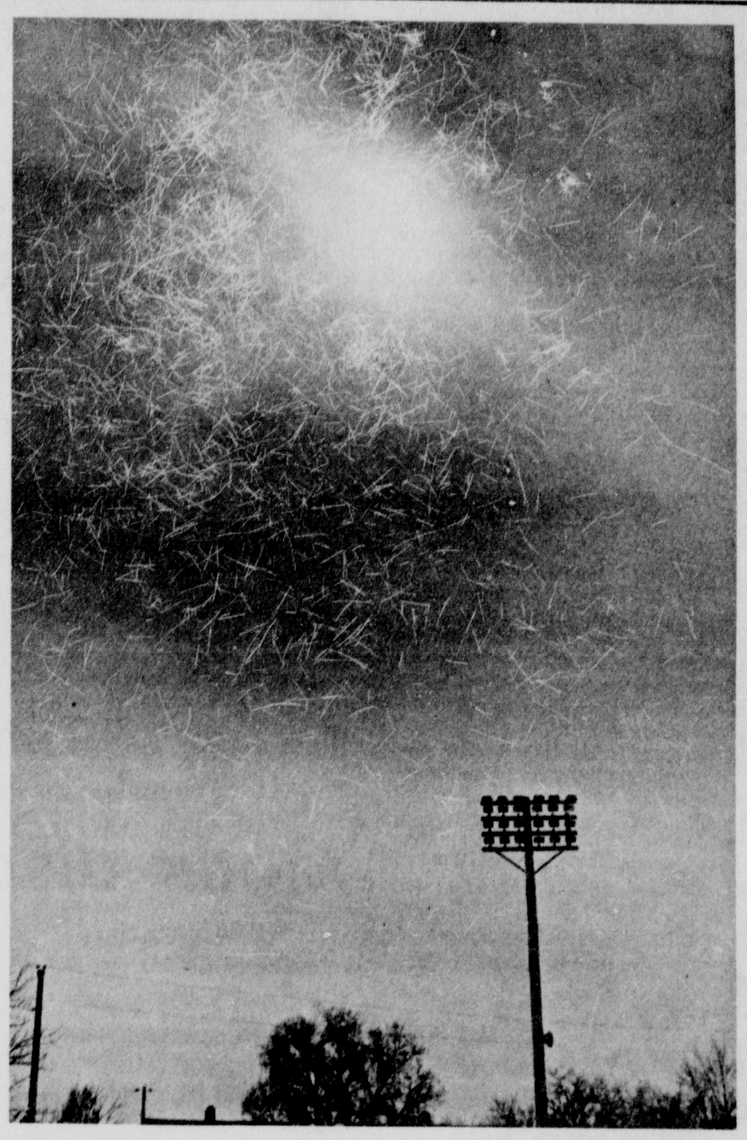
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Ohio's tax commissioner says he's not ready to change his agency's estimate of state income for the current fiscal period, even though actual revenues are running ahead of estimates.

Robert Kosydar said Tuesday an economic boom which his agency had thought would soften about the middle of September actually ran into October.

Then along came the energy crisis, he said, and there's no way to predict its impact.

A comparison of estimates with actual revenues shows income from eight sources about $63 million ahead of predictions.





THE EXPLOSION—Trick photography by Mark Thellmann, of The Record-Herald, provides a realistic scene of a UFO explosion in mid-air over Gardner Park Stadium where 30 Washington Senior High School students were involved in a soccer game.

If disaster should strike...

By MARK THELLMANN

A blinding flash of light burst in the sky and was followed by a static crackling and an exploding thunderclap.

Shrapnel rained down upon the ground making light thuds and then all was quiet until the screams started, the moaning sound of pain, the weeping the begging for help. . .

Thirty Washington Senior High students, who a moment earlier, had been involved in a soccer game, the girls challenging the boys, lay in puddles of their own blood on the playing field.

Shock victims, their faces a pale gray, wandered dreamily, searching for the reality which had just been blown far from their realm of comprehension.

A pretty blond-haired girl crawled around on the ground, whining like a puppy, searching for her right arm. It was nowhere to be seen.

A young boy lay on his side, disembowelled.

FATE HAD BEEN in an ironic mood at 1:45 p.m. Tuesday when the disaster occurred. The boy, who a second earlier, had attempted to kick a goal, now found himself twisted around the horizonal bar of the goal post. He uncoiled, fell to the ground and lost consciousness.

Radiation burns victims, their skin glowing red and raw, could only fix their mouths in a silent scream.

Two of the students lay dead.

Sandy Wisecup, who had driven from her home in Williamsport to see her Aunt Mary in Washington C.H., had been making a right turn off Main Street onto Circle Avenue which runs past the Gardner Park playing field, when the explosion sounded.

She questioned in her mind whether or not a tire had blown, but continued driving - until she caught a glimpse of the mangled bodies.

She stopped her car, took a closer look and ran to a neighboring house to notify police.

At the same time, Mr. Gary Shaffer, physical education instructor who had been watching the game from the stands, was also going for help. He was in shock, but unhurt.

EXACTLY four minutes later, police cars with red lights flashing and sirens blaring, pulled onto the field. Ambulances and the Fire Department were soon to follow.

Police blocked Main Street and Circle Avenue to public use in an effort

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Skylab 3's astronauts are concentrating on medical tests and preparations for a Thanksgiving day space walk.

With their orbiting home shipshape, Gerald P. Carr, William R. Pogue and Edward G. Gibson were able to settle down to research work that will occupy them the remainder of their record space journey.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Allen Sherman, 49, who rocketed to fame as a comedian in the early 1960s, died Tuesday of respiratory failure. A producer-writer, Sherman rose to prominence with his first recording, "Hello Mudder," in which he portrayed the mythical experiences of a youth at summer camp.

to give incoming and outgoing ambulances a clear path.

At the receiving end, sheriff's deputies were directing traffic in front of Fayette Memorial Hospital on Columbus Avenue.

Their instructions were to let no unauthorized persons into the hospital area. Parents were directed to Eastside Elementary School to await verification as to whether or not their children had participated in that fateful soccer game.

As the minutes wore on, the cries and screams diminished. At 2:15 p.m., the last victim, a hysterical blond-haired girl with a torn blouse, was led by two policemen to a waiting ambulance. It sped off and Gardner Park was engulfed in silence.

Reports from all over the surrounding area came in and stated a UFO had been spotted. Many had seen the blinding flash of light and heard the explosion and then the unidentified "blip" on the radar screens at Lockbourne Air Force Base just disappeared.

Although there was almost total disintegration, the few pieces of shrapnel which survived were taken to laboratories for analysis in hopes a clue would be found, explaining the visiting spacecraft which did so much harm.

THE ABOVE was this reporter's rendition of the "MOCK" disaster Tuesday afternoon, set up for the benefit of the Police Department, the Sheriff's Department, the Fire Department, the hospital staff, the media and the public, just in case Washington C.H. is ever confronted with a mass disaster.

Dr. Philip E. Binzel was chairman of the program and Mrs. Roy Coe, director of the school of practical nursing, supervised the make-up and victims at the disaster scene. She was assisted by Mrs. Byron Stinson who husband provided the make-up and props from the 907th tactnical Air Hospital at Lockbourne Air Force Base.

Thirty Washington Senior High School students were cast as victims.

The "UFO explosion theme" was suggested by this reporter of the Record Herald.

Robert L. Kunz, administrator of Fayette Memorial Hospital commented at the end of the drill, "I am considerably pleased with the way it came off. We discovered some "bugs" which was our original purpose in doing this, and now we'll have time to work them out - which is the most important thing."

A critique session will soon be scheduled to discuss the drill.

Lottery law takes effect

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A new law creating a state lottery became effective today, but it will be awhile before the first tickets go on sale.

The measure creates a state Lottery Commission, to be named by Gov. John Gilligan, and empowers the commission to implement and supervise the lottery. Appointments to the commission must be approved by the Senate.

Rep. Thomas Fries, D-35 Dayton, the main sponsor of the constitutional amendment approved by Ohio voters last May, noted that 45 per cent of the lottery's proceeds will be earmarked for prizes.

The remainder, after costs, will go into the state's general fund to help pay for Ohio's new bonus for Vietnam War era veterans.

Estimates of the lottery's gross yield have been placed at more than $100 million a year.

Freezing rain, snow lash U.S.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Snow and freezing rain lashed a wide area today as a Thanksgiving eve storm sweeping the midcontinent brought freezing temperatures as far south as northern Texas.

The snow and ice stretched from north-central Kansas to the Dakotas and Minnesota. Gusty winds and drifting snow blew through the mountains of western Oregon and the Sierras to Montana.

Freeze warnings were issued for parts of central and western Texas and Oklahoma. Six inches of snow piled up at Grand Island, Neb.

Locally heavy rains drenched the lower Mississippi Valley and thundershowers dampened areas from the central Gulf coast to southern Illinois and the lower Ohio Valley.

Almost 2 inches of rain washed Jackson, Tenn., and more than an inch soaked Memphis, Tenn.; Paducah, Ky., and Montgomery, Ala.

Gale warnings were issued for the western Great Lakes.

Tornadoes ripped through De Queen, Ark., Tuesday damaging or destroying 30 mobile homes. Later in the day, numerous twisters were sighted in Arkansas, Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana.

Several persons were treated for minor injuries after the Arkansas tornado. Tornadoes that churned across nine Oklahoma communities Monday night left five dead and 60 injured.

A new storm moving onto the Pacific Northwest coast brought gale warnings from northern California to Washington.

Skies were fair over Southern California and from the southern Plateau to the southern Plains and over most of Florida and the Northeast.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 4 at Dickinson, N.D., to 79 at Key West, Fla.

A cold front moving eastward across Ohio Wednesday afternoon and night will end showers expected to be scattered across the state part of the day. Fair weather is scheduled for the Thanksgiving Day holiday Thursday.

The showers moved eastward across the state Tuesday night and the National Weather Service said they can be expected to continue for a short time, along with fresh southerly breezes, until the cold front takes effect.

The air following the front is drier, but not very cold for this time of year, so mild conditions will continue for the remainder of the week. Temperatures this afternoon will be in the upper 50s and lower 60s, dropping tonight to near 40, with partly cloudy skies by Thursday morning.

The fair weather expected Thursday will have afternoon temperatures in the 50s north, and in the low 60s in southern Ohio, or some 5 to 10 degrees above normal for late November.

Fair and mild Friday. Chance of showers Saturday, clearing and cooler Sunday. Highs Friday from the mid 50s to low 60s, dropping to upper 40s and low 50s Sunday. Lows in the 40s or low 50s.

Recounts fail to overturn vote results

Two members of the Jasper Township Board of Trustees and all New Holland village councilmen held their respective offices following two recounts held Tuesday night by the Fayette County Board of Elections.

No changes were reproted in the New Holland Council race after the recount of votes in the West Holland Precinct of Fayette County.

Miss Vicki L. Sheets, who had lost her bid for a Council seat by only two votes, filed the request for a recount in the West Holland Precinct. No recount was held in Pickaway County for other New Holland precincts since electric voting machines are used in that county.

Russell L. Jacobs, Robert Frazier, Josef Louis and Ivan C. Hyer were elected to the four vacant Council seats. Miss Sheets filed the recount request after receiving 117 votes compared with 119 for Hyer.

Johnny Dale Blair and James Pierson held their seats on the Jasper Township Board of Trustees despite the recount, which was filed by Arnett W. Kelley, of Milledgeville.

Blair edged Kelley by one vote (138-137) in the Nov. 6 general election, but the recount disclosed six more votes for Blair and only one more for Kelley. Blair had 144 votes after the recount and Kelley picked up one. Pierson was the top vote-getter at the election with 247 votes and he also picked up one more vote following the recount.

Blair gained the six votes in two of the four precincts which voted on the board of trustee candidates. He gained one in Milledgeville and five in the Selden precinct. Kelley and Pierson each gained one vote in the Plymouth precinct.

Members of the Fayette County Board of Elections are Milbourne Barney, Richard Kimmet, Mrs. Charlene Cunningham and Dwight Bell.

Economist says U.S. 'land of shortages'

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — A New York economist says the United States is no longer the land of plenty, but "is the developing land of shortages."

Dr. Pierre A. Rinfred told 1,000 northern Ohio industrialists and business leaders Tuesday that Americans can avoid a recession next year only by economizing on energy in every way possible.

"Economy and energy go together," he said, addressing Central National Bank's 12th annual economic forecast luncheon.

"Without an increase of 2 per cent in available energy in 1974, this country is going into a recession."

Rinfret, head of a financial and investment consulting firm, said a recession would be accompanied by an increase in unemployment.

"We have to grow 3½ per cent a year in industrial production to put our increased labor force to work," he continued. "In 1974 our unemployment force could approximate 7 to 8 per cent."

He said the energy crisis had been developing for some time but no one would face it.

"Even before the energy crisis became public, even before the people would believe it, it was apparent that the American economy would weaken in 1974," Rinfret continued.

He said that two years ago President Nixon sent the first message on energy ever sent to Congress, "but for two years Congress has ignored that message."

"There were 68,000 oil wells drilled in this country in 1958 but there will be only 12,000 this year because Congress decided the depletion allowance should be eliminated from oil exploration," he said.

Rinfret said Americans have been wasting 6 per cent of the country's energy resources every year.

"We are blowing energy," he continued. "We are building buildings in which windows can't be opened. They have to have air conditioning or heat all year."

He predicted that revitalized American production would come out of the energy situation.

"The energy crisis is an opportunity for industry to make people understand what it has been saying for 20 years—that economic expansion is necessary to the growth of the country," he added.

Rinfret said at a news conference after the luncheon that industrial expansion had been stopped "because of the environmental consideration.

"I'm all for improving the environment," he continued, "but it should be put more in balance with product expansion."

He said that more coal should be used, pointing out that it is the country's most abundant resource.

"We are facing a no-growth economy because of the energy crisis and with a no-growth economy we will have unemployment," Rinfret said.

He said he did not believe the Nixon administration wanted gasoline rationing and would consider such a move "only as the last resort. It doesn't want any more controls on the system."

Army holds key to Greek power

ATHENS (AP) — President George Papadopoulos' use of tanks and troops to quell student-sparked rioting demonstrated the dominant role the army still plays in the affairs of Greece.

One previous precedent was set in 1967 when the army toppled the parliamentary democracy, bringing the then-Col. Papadopoulos to power. Observers say only a countercoup by the army could dislodge him. And there are no signs of that happening.

"They were scared this time so they called in the troops," said a politican who was prominent before the coup. "It was a sign of panic."

One theory circulating here says Papadopoulos brought in the army during the riots last week partly for fear of losing control of it if he let it stand idle during the disturbances. But other views hold that if the strongman president hadn't moved to crush the protests, the rioters would have had time to marshal more support for bringing down the government.

Students were prominent among the rioters. But George Mavros, an ex-Cabinet minister who was put under house arrest Tuesday night, said it was the additional support the students gained that led to the stiff reaction by the government.

Mavros was arrested along with another former cabinet minister John Zigdis and Panayotis Canellopoulos, 71, the premier of the government that Papadapoulos toppled. The government rounded up 46 more dissidents in the capital, bringing the number in custody to 250, and said all schools of higher learning would be closed until Dec. 10.

Students had staged numerous protests earlier this year, beginning with purely academic grievances, but stood alone and were silenced by arrests and a government decree drafting them into the army.

New outbursts arose after Nov. 4, when clashes took place between police and mourners attending a memorial service for the popular George Papandreou, the former liberal premier. The sentencing of five persons in connection with the disturbances led to a four-day sit-in at the Athens Polytechnic Institute.

Police investigate larceny complaints

A 12-year-old Washington C.H. girl was charged by police Tuesday with "larceny by trick."

The girl had gone door-to-door collecting donations in orders to buy flowers for her deceased aunt," officers said.

One of the donors reported the incident at 3:50 p.m. and the girl was apprehended with $2.79 of the donation money on her person.

A Dayton Power and Light Co. service truck was rifled sometime between 5 p.m. Tuesday and 7:58 a.m. Wednesday while it was parked in the DP&L parking lot at 101 East St.

Police were told a two-way radio microphone, two speakers, a bullhorn, 100 feet of nylon tape and a "dip needle" for locating underground curb boxes had been taken.

Special prosecutor law balked

WASHINGTON (AP) — A closely divided Senate Judiciary Committee is trying to resolve differences over legislation to provide for an independent special Watergate prosecutor.

Some members said they may wind up today by sending rival measures to the Senate without recommendation.

One measure, sponsored by 55 senators, provides for appointment of a special prosecutor by the U.S. District Court here.

Others, differing in details, provide for appointment by the president, subject to Senate confirmation, and would bar dismissal except for specific causes.

The House Judiciary Committee already has approved a bill for a court-appointed prosecutor, but its chances of being passed by the House are regarded as highly uncertain.

Demands for legislation arose after the firing, on President Nixon's orders, of Archibald Cox on Oct. 20 as the special prosecutor.

Since then Leon Jaworski, a Houston, Tex., trial lawyer and a Democrat, has been appointed by Acting Atty. Gen. Robert H. Bork as Cox's successor.

Jaworski told the Senate Judiciary Committee Tuesday that all of the investigations started by Cox have been carried on "without missing a beat."

One of the chief arguments raised against providing for a court-appointed prosecutor is that such legislation is of doubtful constitutionality and would delay and confuse the on-going investigation.

Sponsors of rival measures for Senate confirmation of the prosecutor said they assumed that under such legislation the president would nominate Jaworski.

During Jaworski's testimony before the Judiciary Committee Tuesday, the questions seemed to be based on the assumption that he would be continuing in the job.

"I am acting completely independently," Jaworski said. He testified he would not have accepted appointment without assurances that no restraints would be placed on his independence.

And he said he feels he has a binding charter that the President cannot fire him except with the consensus of the congressional leaders of both parties.

Jaworski also revealed that he has received White House assurances that he can listen to tapes and inspect documents to pass on claims of national security.

Jaworski said that none of his requests to the White House for documents has been turned down. However, none of the material has yet been furnished, he said.

He said Buzhardt and Haig had told him there were staff problems in getting the documents together but had given no indication he would not get them.

However, he said he had written a letter Monday asking for them by a certain date. And if they are not forthcoming, he said, he will not hesitate to take court action to obtain the evidence he wants.

Nuclear energy safeguards

The energy crisis has given impetus to arguments for a hammer-and-tongs effort to greatly increase the production of nuclear power. The idea has appeal at a time when available fossil fuel supplies are dwindling. However, it would be foolish to embark on a big nuclear plant construction program without adequate protection of the public interest.

Much doubt exists as to the adequacy of safeguards under present Atomic Energy Commission rules. It has even been suggested that for the nation to commit itself to heavy reliance on nuclear energy would be potentially disastrous.

The merits of such concerns are hard to assess. Even a layman who has done some reading on the subject may find it hard to form a judgment. Thus it would be helpful to have the benefit of an independent expert study of the AEC's guidelines and performance.

This is the thrust of legislation just introduced by Rep. Hamilton Fish Jr. of New York. He proposes "a comprehensive investigation by the National Academy of Sciences, which would then report its findings and recommendations back to Congress within one year." The bill provides that during this period the AEC would not be allowed to issue any new construction permits.

The scope of the inquiry, Fish told his colleagues in the House, would include the following: licensing procedures, criteria for choosing nuclear plant sites, plant security and design, AEC monitoring of plant operations, the level of "routine radioactive emissions" now permitted, nuclear plants' environmental effects, the risk of accident, public-protection plans in case of accident.

Some might argue that the contemplated one-year delay in issuance of new construction permits would run contrary to the national interest. Our view is that rushing into a massive construction program without a careful review of safety considerations might in the long run do vastly more harm.

A WORD EDGEWISE . . . by John P. Roche

Dante missed one

Dante in his "Inferno" displayed remarkable imagination in describing the various tortures of the damned, but being a man of his time he missed the malevolent delights of what must be the lowest circle in Hell: Accompanying a youngster who is preparing to take the test for a drover's license.

For reasons hidden in her psyche, our daughter never displayed any interest in driving. She would climb on her bike and ride up to 350 miles; she would take a collection of ropes and miscellaneous hardware and go off rock-climbing.

One day on Martha's Vineyard I watched her swim about four miles to vent her aggressions against a sailboat that persisted in overturning. But as far as driving a car — no interest.

SUDDENLY this summer we realized that if — as she wished — she was going to attend the university as a day student, driving was an absolute necessity. She enrolled in a course at a driving school, fulfilled the state requirements, drove around in a special car with dual controls.

Great! However, she needed more practice before taking her test, especially in the car she is going to drive and my wife cheerfully volunteered my services. So, pipe grimly clenched in my mouth, I climbed into the "death seat," attached every belt I could find, and accompanied her on her trial runs. (I secretly inquired whether an air-bag could be installed in a 1968 Valiant, but got only looks of contemptuous disdain.)

Now before we go any further I should say that in objective terms she is a very careful, well-coordinated driver. The problem is my reaction to anybody else's driving. This I inherited from my own basic training back in 1939 when my father was commanded by my mother to prepare me for the test. We went out on back streets in the car and it was perfectly clear that he didn't think I was competent to ride a scooter.

Moreover, on the road he was a complete paranoid. His fundamental conviction was that every other car on the road was out to get you. Thus if you came within four feet of a vehicle coming down the other side of the road, he would yell, "Get over to the right, you dumb cluck." (Or words to that effect.)

Indeed, years later, as we were driving to my wedding with me at the wheel, I realized that he was sitting there next to me with his foot on an imaginary brake. Whenever I came within a hundred yards of the car in front of me, he would start to pump.

He made me so nervous I pulled over to the side and said, "You drive." Getting married was nerve-wracking enough.

DAD WAS, in short, the original "defensive driver" and in fairness it might be noted that his training took: in the subsequent years I have never been at fault in an accident or (and here one should make the sign of the Cross) been ticketed for a moving traffic violation. However, as preparation for riding with a driver in flight-training his instruction was perfectly horrendous.

Well, to make a long story short, we have been out practicing now for about a month. Our daughter, who is quite perceptive, spotted my hang-up early on and goes out of her way to be reassuring.

We haven't had anything resembling a near-miss and my mind tells me "Relax." Yet there I sit, foot on an imaginary pedal, hands clutched to a nonexistent wheel, meditating on Dante and the unavailability of air-bags.

Wouldn't "Abandon hope, all ye who enter here" be an appropriate summary of parenthood?

THESE DAYS . . . by John Chamberlain

Puritanical generation coming up?

There's a real generation gap in the making. It's not between the young and the middle-aged; it's between the 17-year-olds and their elder brothers and sisters who are now in college.

At Princeton University, for example, the mood of the Sixties is still dominant; I have had to cancel a Yale game festivity with an old Princeton friend because he can't bear to shuffle past the tattered blue-jeaned co-eds and kick the beer cans out of his way to get to a seat in Princeton's Palmer Stadium.

A publication called Prospect, put out by the Concerned Alumni of Princeton, notes that 37 out of 40 speakers invited to Princeton in 1973 were "left of center." The three speakers representing the conservative side were columnists William Buckley and Ralph de Toledano, obvious "tokenists," and White House staffer Peter Flanigan.

AT THE OTHER extreme were Congressman Father Drinan of Massachusetts, Angela Davis, Alger Hiss, Communist Party leader Gus Hall, Stokely Carmichael, former Congressman Allard Lowenstein, Jill Johnston (billed as a "radical lesbian"), Ralph Abernathy of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, and Gerard Chaliland, speaking on Third World revolutions.

Talk about the Fairness Doctrine! It's something when Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas or Leonard Woodcock of the United Automobile Workers represents the Princeton idea of a middle-of-the-road lecturer.

One can make a rather safe prediction, however, that the current crop of Ivy League juniors and seniors who demand Leftist raw meat and easy sex morals represent a rapidly dwindling minority.

In eavesdropping on my son's junior high school classmates a couple of years ago I was struck by their Puritanism. At first I thought this must be a normal pre-adolescent characteristic that would shortly give way to something different. But now comes the annual survey of high school leaders put out by Who's Who Among American High School Students of Northfield, Ill.

A tabulation of responses from 26,000 "high achievers" among the junior and senior high school classes of 1972-73 would seem to prove that the young are now rejecting all the values — or lack of values — of the rebellious Sixties. Sexual promiscuity is frowned upon; the pot culture is derided; family life is "in" and the urge to cop out by fleeing to a commune is quiescent.

Let's begin with the home life of the 17-year-old. Sixty-five per cent of those questioned say their relations with their parents are "happy and close most of the time." Twenty-nine per cent say their home life is "just satisfactory." Only 5 per cent profess to being "unhappy most of the time," and a mere one per cent declined to answer. Thirty-six per cent said they could communicate "easily" with their parents, and 47 per cent gave an "about average" answer to the communication question.

THE DRUG CULTURE, according to the survey, seems to be vanishing from most places. Seventy-two per cent of the students have never smoked marijuana, 60 per cent do not approve the use of the stuff, and 54 per cent do not even think it should be legalized. As for hard drugs, the disapproval votes are in the 980 per cent area.

Yet 82 per cent said they could easily purchase even the hardest of drugs "in or near your high school." The overwhelming rejection of the drug culture, then, is almost entirely voluntary. Oddly enough, it is in the private schools of the Northeast that the marijuana cult seems to be making its last stand.

In the high schools the vaunted sex revolution just ain't there. Eighty-three per cent of the students favor "traditional marriage as practiced by most people today." Sixty-two per cent are against "legalized trial marriage," 58 per cent do not condemn couples living together but add that they "would not participate" in such a practice themselves.

The high school students don't love Richard Nixon, but even after the Watergate disclosures only 4 per cent want to see the President impeached. An incredible 50 per cent of the students rated Nixon's overall performance in office as "satisfactory." Eighty-eight per cent approve the Nixon foreign policy, as symbolized by the China trip.

Memo to my Princeton friend: let's renew our Yale game reunions in 1975. The "new" young will be taking over the campus by then.

The annual catch of Canada's fishing industry amounts to approximately 2.5 billion pounds, with a market value of more than $340 million.

"I LIVE WITH AN ENERGY CRISIS."

Ohio Perspective

Election procedure muddled

By ROBERT E. MILLER
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio may elect a 19-day U.S. Senator next year. It depends on a couple of "ifs."

Will state law be changed before election?

Will an interim appointee get his name on the ballot twice and win both a short and a long term?

The situation stems from President Nixon's nomination of incumbent U.S. Sen. William B. Saxbe, R-Ohio, as U.S. Attorney General.

If the Senate confirms Saxbe, Gov. John J. Gilligan will have the job of naming a successor for an interim term that expires by state law on Dec. 15, 1974.

Saxbe's present term expires Jan. 3, 1975. A new six-year term beginning on that date will go to the winner of the November, 1974, general election.

Gilligan's appointee would be out of office Dec. 14, 1974. The newly elected senator wouldn't take office until Jan. 3, 1975, leaving a senatorless gap.

If Saxbe's interim successor also wanted to run for the 19-day term, Dec. 14-Jan. 3, he would have to win nomination in a special primary called by Gilligan prior to the general election, then have his name on the November ballot for both terms and win both.

Brown said it is risky for a candidate to have his name on the ballot two times.

"The voter may say, 'I've already voted for him,' " said Brown. "It could mean that he might win the short term and lose the big one."

If the candidate won both, of course, it would give him the obvious advantage of Senate seniority over other freshmen being sworn into the Senate for the first time in 1975.

The problem has arisen before in recent state history. In 1966 then acting state Auditor Roger Cloud went for and won a full four-year term while former Republican state Rep. Archer Reilly of Columbus won the short term and kept the auditor's office in Republican hands during the interm.

If Brown has his way the problem won't come up next year. He said he planned to offer the legislature a bill that would do away with the short term provision and let the interim appointee serve until Jan. 3.

Brown pointed out that the U.S. Constitution leaves it up to the states to decide how to fill their congressional vancancies.

Jaworski gets boost

WASHINGTON (AP) — Acting Atty. Gen. Robert H. Bork issued a regulation Tuesday designed to strengthen the investigation by special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski.

The regulation orders that Jaworski's jurisdiction will not be limited without the approval of eight congressional leaders.

The Justice Department regulation amends previously issued rules which require a consensus of eight leaders of Congress before President Nixon could fire Jaworski.

The additional regulation says, "The jurisdiction of the special prosecutor will not be limited without the President's first consulting with such members of Congress and ascertaining that their consensus is in accord with his proposed action."

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Son's a wrong number — mother tells him so

DEAR ABBY: My 15-year-old son has built a bedroom in our garage. He asked me if he could install an extension phone out there as a friend of his had done. I told him I thought it was illegal and he should not do it.

I returned from a brief trip to find that he installed a phone in his room. (He bought the instrument from a radio shack store.)

Also, he has two road signs mounted on his wall. He said one was given to him by a friend, and the other he picked out of a gutter after having seen it there for a year. (I believe him.)

I think the phone should be removed from our son's room unless he is willing to have it installed by the phone company and pay monthly charges. I also believe the road signs should be taken down, since they were county property. What do you think?

A MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: The same principle is involved in both instances. Bypassing the phone company is taking a free ride on their monthly service, even though the instrument was purchased elsewhere. Keeping road signs that belong to the county is also dishonest. I'm with you, mother.

DEAR READERS: If you are not accustomed to saying grace before each meal, but would like to offer a thinksgiving prayer at your table on this Thanksgiving Day, mine is yours for the reading. And here it is:

O, heavenly Father,
We thank Thee for the food
And remember the hungry.
We thank Thee for health
And remember the sick.
We thank Thee for friends
And remember the friendless
We thank Thee for freedom
And remember the enslaved.
May these remembrances stir us to service
That Thy gifts to us may be used for others.
Amen.

(Have a wonderful Thanksgiving, Love, Abby)

DEAR ABBY: I work in a hospital, and I wish you would please devote a little space in your column to the way people should conduct themselves when visiting a patient in the hospital. Recently a patient was admitted with a serious heart condition.

The patient's sister entered, hysterical and in tears. She threw herself upon the patient (who was wired and bottled on both sides) and screamed: "Thank God you're alive. I thought you'd be dead by the time I got back!"

Then the patient's husband said to his ailing wife: "When I told So and So you were rushed to the hospital with a heart attack, she said: "She'll never make it!"

This kind of talk at the bedside of a patient is uncalled for, and detrimental to the welfare of the patient. Please ask people to think before they speak, even though they are emotionally upset.

The Church Street United Methodist Church in Knoxville, Tenn., was the setting for the marriage of Miss Cheryl Lynn Loudermilk and Edward George Heath.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Joseph Loudermilk of Knoxville, and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Graham Heath, 6 Royal Court.

The Rev. Robert Wilcox performed the double ring ceremony at 6 p.m. Nov. 10 before an altar enhanced with shrimp flowers, greenery, and candelabra. Mrs. Frank Braden, vocalist, presented several nuptial selections.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of imported organza and peau d'ange lace with high neckline, feminine lace bodice and long fitted sleeves. The full circular silhouette, appliqued with peau d'ange lace completed the traditional look of elegance. Her veil, a camelot cap, held her imported organza chapel length mantilla Alencon lace and English illusion. She carried a cascade of white roses, carnations and ivy.

Miss Donna Sue Jones of Taullahoma, Tenn., was maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Miss Melanie Heath, sister of the groom, and Miss Kim Carroll of Harrogate, Tenn.

The attendants wore long sleeved gowns of mint green crepe with emerald green velvet trimming the lay-back collars and cuffs. Their headpieces were of emerald green velvet. They carried mint green carnations and white carnations with green ivy nosegays.

The bride's mother chose for her daughter's wedding a turquoise gown, and the groom's mother wore a rose colored gown. Both mothers wore white orchid corsages.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents following the wedding.

The couple is now residing at Rt. 1, Lenoir City, Tenn., following a wedding trip to Disneyworld and Miami Beach, Fla. They are spending the Thanksgiving holidays with the groom's parents and other relatives.

Serve tarts Thanksgiving

BY CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

An inexpensive way to entertain during the Thanksgiving weekend, either in the afternoon or evening, is to ask friends to come for coffee and cake. For the "cake" we suggest Holiday Tartlets — a happy combination of pastry, jam and sponge cake. These tartlets have a lot to recommend them. They're made with everyday ingredients. They're ideal finger-good so no forks are needed. They're attractive and satisfying.

To make life easy, you may want to use paper cups and plates for such a party. There are many designs to choose from; one of the newest is an all-over blue and white calico pattern that comes in cups, plates and bowls; it is available in supermarkets and variety stores and is one of the best looking paper-service designs we've seen.

HOLIDAY TARTLETS

Tartlet pastry, recipe follows
1 cup plus 2 tablespoons strawberry or raspberry jam
1-3rd cup sifted cake flour
⅛ teaspoon cream of tartar
1-16th teaspoon salt
2 eggs
1-3rd cup sugar
½ teaspoon vanilla

Prepare pastry; with your hands roll it into eighteen 1¼-inch balls. Press evenly into ungreased muffin-pan cups (each 2½ by 1¼ inches). Chill 10 minutes. Spoon 1 tablespoon jam into each pastry shell.

On wax paper or in a small bowl sift together the flour, cream of tartar and salt.

Separate eggs, putting whites in medium bowl of electric mixer and yolks in small bowl. Beat egg whites until soft peaks form; gradually beat in sugar and continue beating until stiff peaks form. Without washing beater, beat yolks until thick and ivory color; beat in vanilla; fold into egg whites. Gradually sift flour mixture over egg mixture, folding it in as you do so. Spoon a heaping tablespoon of the batter over the jam in each pastry shell.

Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven until lightly browned — 20 to 25 minutes. Cool 5 minutes on wire racks, then remove tartlets by inserting a table knife between pastry and pan and lifting enough to be able to remove with fingers. Cool completely on racks. Store in a tightly covered tin box.

Makes 18.

TARTLET PASTRY

½ cup butter or margarine
¼ cup sugar
1 egg
2 cups flour, stir to aerate before measuring.

Cream butter and sugar; beat in egg. Add flour and stir until blended. Form into a ball with hands.

Club plans to attend 'open house'

The Busy Bee Garden Club of Jeffersonville met in the home of Mrs. Rowena Cummins. Mrs. Ruth Sheeley, president, opened the meeting with the poem, "Regal Autumn."

Several items were brought for the Community Outreach program, and cards were signed for the shut-ins.

The club will go to Duff's at Wilmington Nov. 27 for a luncheon and then to Swindlers 'open house' afterwards.

Roll call was answered by 10 members naming 'formal gardens.' Don Creamer showed slides of Williamsburg and other gardens he visited. The poem "Prayer of Thanksgiving" was read by Mrs. Sheeley for the closing.

Auxiliary plans party

Fifteen were present for the meeting of the Burnett-Ducey VFW Auxiliary 4964 meeting, when the group met in the VFW Hall, W. Elm St. Mrs. Clark Rumer conducted the meeting and Mrs. James Puckett, chaplain, gave the opening prayer.

The group voted to participate in the Christmas parade, and some Auxiliary members and Post members will ride in the parade on Dec. 1.

Plans were made for the annual Christmas party for 6:30 p.m. Dec. 17 for all members and their immediate families. A $1.00 gift exchange will be a feature, and members will bring gifts for their own children. The meat will be provided and members will bring a salad, vegetable or dessert.

The shut-ins will be remembered with flowers, and a Christmas basket will be given to the veterans families who are disabled.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Maurice Farmer and Mrs. Esther Hyer. Mrs. Margaret Clickner was winner of the door prize.

Hostesses for the Dec. 3 meeting will be Mrs. Ambers Conley and Mrs. Walter Wilson.

Stitch and Chat Club adds members

Members of the Stitch and Chat Club of Jeffersonville met in the Lion's Club Room for the monthly carry-in noon luncheon. Following this, Mrs. Joe Ferguson presided at the meeting, when 16 members answered roll call. Mrs. Earl Sweeney read the September minutes, and gave an interesting account of the trip the club enjoyed in October to the Piqua Historic State Memorial Park. She also told of the boat cruise on the Erie Canal, taken by the 41 members and guests.

Members voted to make 'ditty bags' for the project, to be sent to the VA Hospital, Chillicothe.

Thank you notes were read for the lap robes friends had received. Two new members, Mrs. Nathan Ervin and Mrs. M.C. Creamer, were welcomed to the group.

Christmas gifts for the veterans at Chillicothe are to be left with Mrs. Ferguson by Dec. 1.

Hostesses for the luncheon were Mrs. Thelma Cline, Mrs. Lois Campbell and Mrs. Pauline Hoppes.

Mrs. Ferguson will be hostess to the club carry in luncheon Dec. 14 at noon, with a gift exchange. Hostesses assisting her will be Mrs. Agnes Ford and Mrs. Marie Thompson.

PERSONALS

Dr. and Mrs. J.G. Jordan, 170 Carolyn Rd., attended a conference on 'Evangelism' in Taft Auditorium, Cincinnati, this past week. Once again, Mrs. Jordan chatted with Mrs. Helen Steiner Rice, poet and authoress, who resides in the Sheraton-Gibson Hotel, where the Jordans were guests.

Willing Workers announce new officers

The Willing Workers Class of the Madison Mills United Methodist Church met for a meeting in the church annex, which was gaily decorated with a Thanksgiving theme. Mrs. John Melvin gave devotions and John Stamer conducted the business session.

The following officers were presented by the nominating committee: President, Tom Miller; vice president, Roger Dorn; secretary, Mrs. Gary Hidy; treasurer, Mrs. Roger Dorn; and news reporter, Mrs. Melvin. Serving on the devotional committee will be Mrs. Dwight Reid, Mrs. John Stamer and Mrs. Alvin Johnson; flower and card chairman is Mrs. Max Schlichter. These officers will assume their duties Jan. 1, 1974.

The nominating committee consisted of John Melvin, John Delay and Alvin Johnson.

Class members discussed the possibility of providing a Thanksgiving basket for a family in the community. Members voted to aid a family whose need had been presented. Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Stamer will deliver the basket. Members may leave the food items with Mrs. Johnson or Mrs. Stamer. The class also voted to make a cash donation toward the purchase of Christmas decorations for the church.

It was announced that the Christmas meeting at the church will be held Dec. 9 with a carry-in dinner at 6 p.m., and a 50 cent gift exchange for the children. Hosts will be Mr. and Mrs. Reid, Mr. and Mrs. Delay and Mr. and Mrs. Schlichter.

Introducing . . .

By NANCY BENTLEY

This week the Miami Tracer is proud to introduce Mr. William Sowash. Mr. Sowash spent most of his life in Mansfield before he and his wife Mrs. Sandra Sowash (also a teacher at Miami Trace) moved to this community.

He attended and graduated from Mansfield High School. After high school he went to a branch of Ohio State University in Mansfield. In the two years that he was there he was a member of the Circle K Club, the basketball team, and on the student government. While on the student government he helped write the constitution for the university. He also organized a Bicycle and Archery Club. Then he moved to the main campus of Ohio State for two and half more years of study. His major in the four and a half year span was Social Studies Education.

Now Mr. Sowash is teaching World History, World Geography, and Psychology. He enjoys camping, all types of sports, and being an assistant scout master.

When asked of his opinion of Miami Trace he had this to say, "Because of the friendliness of the people and the fact that Miami Trace is similar to the high school I graduated from, I feel quite at home here."

State oil, gas drilling figures are incorrect

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A report issued Oct. 31 announcing drilling of oil and gas wells in the state had increased by nearly 56 per cent was in error, the Ohio Department of Natural Resources says. The agency said 19 per cent is a more accurate figure.

A department spokesman blamed the erroneous report on "incorrect well drilling information provided ...by an independent drilling scout report."

4-H Round-Up

How well do you eat?

By JEANNIE ANDERSON
4-H Assistant

Everyone has to eat to live. How well you eat - not necessarily how much you eat - affects your life.

4-H programs in nutrition begin at an early age when youngsters learn about the basic kinds of food which will help them enjoy life more. . . help them study, work, and play with vim, vigor and vitality.

As in all 4-H projects, youngsters learn by doing to choose the right foods, to plan meals, to cook meats and vegetables, to bake and to serve meals. Both boys and girls often gather at the home of a 4-H leader to bake cookies or biscuits and to learn how you can make food taste better by cooking it porperly.

Malnutrition is not just a problem for people in low incomes. It is a universal problem simply because many people think that having plenty to eat - all rice or all meat is their only concern.

But for people in low income areas, the 4-H expanded nutrition program has special meaning, for often these families have little knowledge about how to use their limited resources for the best interest of the health of their families.

THROUGH THE WORK of nutrition experts with the help of 4-H members, many families are learning for the first time that they can have milk every day by using the powdered variety, that they can stretch a small budget by combining some meat or fish with noodles or rice and provide a delicisou meal for their families.

Another aspect is the home gardens that are becoming popular projects in many urban and suburban areas where 4-H members are growing fresh greens and vegetables.

Campers and hikers must learn not only about the basic foods but how they can pack and cook foods for trips that will be easily cooked or eaten cold, but which will still give them the basic nutrients necessary if they are going to enjoy the out-of-doors.

The 4-H food and nutrition projects are designed to teach girls and boys the know-how of nutrition and cookery in an interesting and real-life way so that each project meeting will be a real value to the members.

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Young artisans will help revive the spirit of '76 when the United States celebrates its 200th birthday.

Their interest in early American crafts — quilting, weaving, silversmithing, pewtering, stencilling and so on — will help make the Centennial an authentic experience, predicts Tom Glennon, president of The Hitchcock Chair Co. of Riverton, Conn., where some youthful artists work and others are to be encouraged to run their own handicraft businesses. The original chair company closed down in 1863 and was revived in 1946.

The hordes of young people interested in crafts should allay fears of antiquarians that other traditional crafts, architectual and the like, are dying out. Youthful craftsmen are interested in everything, he said in an interview here.

"In fact they are helping us do things we haven't been able to do before," Glennon insists. "They are reproducing, freehand and stencil, Currier and Ives scenes, and our limited edition series that depict Mt. Vernon, Monticello, the Adams House and Philadelphia scenes. Their artistic embellishments make manufactures articles look handcrafted."

IN ADDITION to furniture refinishing and decorating, young workers weave rush seats as they were woven more than a century ago. They also steambend wood, paint tavern signs and so on.

"They are happiest doing their thing and we are going to help them run their own business. We've bought a section of town and are putting in eight or ten shops. Our plan is to subsidize young people in various crafts."

Many other chair companies predated the original Hitchcock Company and perhaps some 50 companies were mass-producing fancy chairs between 1810 and 1860 at the height of their popularity, but present-day nostalgia has been built around the revived company because it is turning out chairs in the old way.

The original factory was decaying when Glennon's father-in-law, John Kenney, bought it and the trademark 27 years ago, refurbished it and planned it as a part-time enterprise while he ran his shoe store in Hartford. But it was soon going full steam and now turns out some 3,000 chairs a week and some 100 different items.

Although the original company was among the first to mass-produce Boston-type rocking chairs, it is best known for its dark, gold-striped chairs with decorated rails. Other companies make such chairs using the name generically.

THIS YEAR more than 40,000 tourists visited the company's museum — a former church where Hitchcock was married in 1830 — to view the original chairs that are on display. Only those signed and made between 1926 and 1940 are considered "real Hitchcocks" Glennon insists.

Youthful employes were encouraged even in Hitchcock's day. In 1832 a help wanted advertisement he placed read, "two or three young men, 16 to 20 years of age, of industrious habits who will abstain from the use of ardent spirits can have steady employment."

Today many employes are husband and wife teams — some are Czechoslovakian and Hungarian refugees who established colonies near the factory. One girl, a furniture stripper, has been in slave labor camps under both Germans and Russians, Glennon said. Older workers who have grown with the company assume the supervisory jobs.

Maple and birch used in furniture production have been imported from South America in recent years while the United States was behind in logging, but now woods are available here, says Glennon, himself a former logger.

He joined the company after a five-year stint in the Navy, and after seven years assumed the presidency four years ago, when Kenney retired.

Reclamation costs bared

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — An engineering study of abandoned strip-mined areas in southeastern Ohio has determined it would take 95 years and cost $283 million to reclaim the land.

The report by Skelly & Loy of Columbus for the Ohio Board of Unreclaimed Strip Mine Lands, said more than 368,000 have been strip mined, 24,000 acres of which still are being mined.

The report will be examined by the state agency before any action is recommended.

The energy crisis could affect the time it will take to reclaim the mined lands, the report noted.

But the consultants recommended that efforts begin immediately in portions of Gallia, Jackson, Vinton and Meigs counties.

Also participating in the study were the Batelle Memorial Institute, Arthur Young & Co. of Toledo and the school of landscape architecture at Ohio State University.

Scientists estimated that the river at Niagara Falls has eaten its way upstream about seven miles in 25,000 years.

Rotary seeks youths for study abroad

The Washington C.H. Rotary Club is seeking young men and women in the Fayette County area as candidates for Rotary Foundation educational awards for study abroad in 1975-76.

Phil Grover, Rotary president, said the Foundation offers four types of educational awards including Graduate Fellowships, for those who have received a bachelor's degree or equivalent and are between the ages of 20 and 28; Undergraduate Scholarships, for those with a minimum of two years of university level work and are the ages of 18 to 24; Technical Training Awards, for those with a secondary education and at least two years' working experience and are the ages of 21 to 35; Awards to Teachers of the Handicapped, for those who have been engaged as full-time teachers of the mentally, physically or educationally handicapped for at least two years at the time of application and are the ages of 25 to 50.

Each award includes round-trip transportation, educational and living expenses for one academic year and funds for intensive language training, if necessary, Grover said.

The Foundation started its programs of sending young adults abroad for study in 1947, and since that time, the Foundation has awarded more than $17.5 million for its various programs and more than 6,000 young men and women have gone to countries other than their own for a year of study. As a non-profit organization, the Rotary Foundation is supported by voluntary contributions from Rotarians, Rotary clubs and friends of Rotary in 150 different countries.

Further information about the Foundation programs may be obtained by contacting Dan Wolford, chairman of the Rotary Foundation committee, or Grover.

Redman president announces changes

DALLAS, Tex. — Redman Industries, Inc. announces that it has signed an agreement with Lincoln Property Co. to assume the property management responsibilities for more than 14,000 multi-family garden apartments units. This agreement, effective Jan. 1, 1974, calls for Lincoln company to assume all the property management activities that are presently being performed by Redman Development Corp. Lee Posey, president of Redman Industries said, "This is an additional step in our ultimate disengagement from the real estate development field." Posey also announced that a subsidiary, Redman Building Products, had agreed in principle to sell its kitchen cabinet manufacturing operation to the Triangle Pacific Corp., a New York based company. This agreement is subject to approval by the boards of directors of the respective companies.

The company indicted that October revenues were $26,122,600 which represents an expected 7 per cent decline from the previous October's record high revenues of $28,104,200.

Discussing the mobile home aspect of the company's business, Posey said: "Our mobile home subsidiary has already shipped over 37,000 homes this calendar year compared to 36,937 for all of last year.

Miami Trace to continue junior high study

The Fayette County Board of Education Tuesday night reviewed the results of the proposed new junior high school bond issue which appeared on the November ballot and established a date for a follow-up study on the matter.

The board also took care of a number of miscellaneous and routine matters including adopting policies to conserve energy in the county's schools during the crisis. (See separate story).

Members of the board of education will meet with the Miami Trace School Study Committee and those persons who publicly endorsed the proposed bond issue at 8 p.m. Monday, Dec. 3, in the high school cafeteria to consider action since the issue was defeated by school district residents by a 1,736 to 1,531 vote. It was indicated that nearly 200 invitations will be sent out for the meeting.

THE BOARD took care of a number of personnel-related matters. They included the employment of Mrs. Dorothy Newman and Mrs. Eleanor Funk as assistants for child care services in the Adult Basic Education program; Randy Spangler as a custodian for Wayne School effective Nov. 13; Mrs. Lila Engle for extra duty assignment as GAA advisor and intramural advisor; Mrs. Sandra Sowash for high school girls basketball and softball programs; Glen Jacobson as assistant wrestling coach, and Mrs. Molly Gillespie as an assistant cook at MTHS.

In other personnel matters, the board established a procedure for the release of Charles Warner from custodial work at Wayne School; approved a request submitted by Harry Campbell, bus driver, for a leave of absence through November and December while he recuperates from an illness; granted a leave of absence to Mr. and Mrs. William Sowash, high school teachers. Dec. 17-29; granted Assistant Superintendent Steve Yambor the authority to employ additional custodians, if necessary, to replace bus drivers who held dual positions; authorized the administration to make corrections in the salaries of bus drivers where discrepancies have been noted; agreed to seek written authority from employes from those wishing deductions from their pay for membership in professional groups, and granted the superintendent authority to place a high school teacher on a half-day schedule.

IN OTHER matters:

The board agreed to issue a written statement to Ford Motor Co., concerning two new school buses which have not been used since the district has not been able to replace defective parts in the brake systems;

Requested the services of a learning disability consultant from the Highland County Board of Education for the 1973-74 school year at no cost to the district;

Authorized $2,000 for repair of windows in Madison Mills, Wilson and Olive elementary schools;

Heard reports from Curtis E. Fleisher, high school principal, concerning the establishment of a memorial fund for the late Delmar Mowery, and suggested improved security of the high school building;

Reviewed the monthly lunchroom report in addition to the monthly activity accounts and district financial statement and approved routine payment of bills;

Considered candidates for filling the athletic director vacancy at the high school and granted the superintendent authority to appoint a new athletic director before the next board meeting;

Released a Washington Junior High School student from the district on a tuition basis in order that he may continue classes in city schools; and

Granted Superintendent Foster and Yambor permission to attend the Southwest District Superintendents meeting Dec. 5 in Wilmington, and Mrs. Martha Fleming, board clerk, to attend an unemployment compensation seminar Dec. 10 in Columbus.

Fuel conservation policies adopted

Policies for conserving energy during the current fuel crisis were adopted Tuesday night by the Fayette County Board of Education.

Superintendent Guy M. Foster said the position and developments are subject to change, and a guideline that applies in one school building may not necessarily been enforced to the same degree in another.

Presently, Foster said, it appears that with conservation measures adopted uniformly by all, that for the time being each school should make a conscientious effort to review policies and adopt guidelines that could help ease the fuel shortage situation.

The board, in light of the energy crisis, Tuesday night refused a request submitted by Ohio Baptists to rent the cafeteria at Jeffersonville School to hold church services on Sundays, but agreed to consider the request when the weather is warmer. The board issued energy conservation guidelines in three areas:

HEATING

Lower temperature settings (68 degrees in classrooms and 60 degrees in gymnasiums and hallways), lower all thermostat control settings to 60 degrees on weekends and other times when buildings are not in use, effective consideration of outside temperatures and use heating equipment efficiently.

LIGHTING

Turning off lights since the total electrical power used in an average school may be reduced significantly if all lights are turned off when a room is not being occupied, and modifying lighting practices such as eliminating the use of lights in Christmas displays.

TRANSPORTATION

Effective maintenance of school buses; changing transportation policies reducing the number of pickup points, encouraging high school students to ride buses, form car pools or walk to school; reduce or eliminate field trips, consider the use of one bus to the vocational school until the number of riders is increased; eliminate some convenience pickups, stops or shuttle runs and review the driver education program.

Policeman cited; hit school bus

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio (AP)— A Middletown policeman was charged with failure to yield and faces departmental discipline after his cruiser struck a school bus broadside Tuesday.

Pt. Steve Downey, the driver, and Ptl. Ronald Reifsnider were treated for minor injuries afterward. Also injured were the bus driver and one of the 41 students aboard, police said.

Police said Downey drove through a stop sign, hit the bus and knocked its 50-gallon gasoline tank into the street. The gas did not ignite, however.

"It was a human error," said Sgt. Lloyd Bremer. "He didn't see the stop sign."

Gilligan eyes energy power

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. John Gilligan plannned to announce today he will ask the Ohio General Assembly for powers to meet the energy crisis.

Gilligan told a reporter in Zanesville Tuesday night that legislation is needed because he has no constitutional authority to act.

Among the powers he said he will request are authority to allocate scarce fuels, set highway speed limits and close schools.

Gilligan complained that the "governors of this nation can't get any real factual information as to how bad the energy crisis really is.

"Each day we hear conflicting reports coming out of Washington and we don't know who to believe," he said.

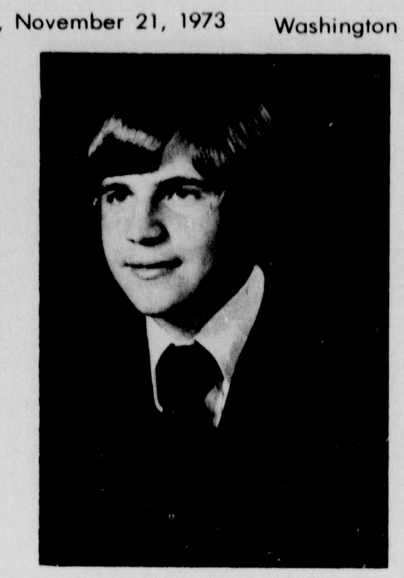
"If we don't get the real story from Washington pretty soon we're going to have an economic catastrophy that you wouldn't believe."

PUCO said weak

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Public Utilities Commission of Ohio has neither the information nor the muscle to deal with the energy crisis, former PUCO Chairman Henry W. Eckart says.

Eckhart said Tuesday the legislature should grant the PUCO subpoena powers and approve a $400,000 emergency appropriation to deal with energy problems.

"At the least we need an inventory of the state's fuel resources.



DISTRICT OFFICER — David Mustine, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mustine, 609 Charlotte Court and a junior at Washington Senior High School, was elected district vice president at the West Virginia-Ohio Leadership Conference for Hi-Y and Tri-Hi-Y Clubs held at Jackson's Mill state 4-H camp near Weston, W. Va. He will assist in the establishment of programs and goals in the West Virginia-Ohio district. Mustine is chairman of the WSHS Hi-Y Club's program committee and a member of the Youth in Government committee. The WSHS club sent 10 delegates to the annual conference.

Metzenbaum has lead ?

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Ohio Democratic Chairman William A. Lavelle believes members of his party prefer Howard Metzenbaum of Cleveland as the successor to GOP Sen. William B. Saxbe.

He told a news conference Tuesday that in his opinion, most would pick the Cleveland millionaire over former astronaut John H. Glenn and "it wouldn't even be close."

Lavelle stressed that this was his personal belief and added that the appointment of a successor, if a vacancy occurs, is "purely" up to Democratic Gov. John J. Gilligan.

But Lavelle said, "If you were to ask 100 Democrats, the name of Howard Metzenbaum would come up most often, I believe, if there were a vacancy today."

Metzenbaum's name has been mentioned along with that of Glenn for Saxbe's unexpired term which runs until January 1975. Gilligan has not commented publicly. He will wait until a vacancy actually exists, he said.

However, some Democratic spokesmen have said they believe Metzenbaum would be Gilligan's choice, especially in the wake of charges by Glenn that the governor and Lavelle "stacked" a 1974 Democratic screening committee in favor of Metzenbaum. They had wanted him to run for lieutenant governor, Glenn said.

Meanwhile, Lavelle reported Tuesday that a total of 27 potential statewide candidates for 1974 have expressed a desire to appear before the special candidates committee which meets Dec. 1-2.

He did not give names or numbers for the various offices.

The state chairman did disclose that State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson, 81, has not requested to appear before the committee, giving credence to reports he plans to retire.

Foundation program outlined for Rotary

The Rotary International Foundation program, a charitable foundation which offers four types of educational awards, was detailed for members of the Washington C.H. Rotary Club at their noon luncheon Tuesday in the Country Club.

Bob Richards, past president of the Dayton Rotary Club, explained that the Foundation offers scholarships for students to study abroad. The Graduate Fellowships are the most used and 3,569 students study abroad each year under this branch of the program. The second is the Undergraduate Scholarships which involves 365 students per year. The newest is a scholarship for Teachers of Handicapped Children. Twenty-five teachers are involved in the fourth segment.

The Foundation program started in 1917 when one club gave$26.50 as an initial contrubution. In 1947 when Paul Harris, founder of the Rotary Club died, gifts were given in his memory and the program began to bloom. Nearly $4 million were given to the Foundation program last year.

Each member of the Washington C.H. club gives $10 toward the program when he joins. The Washington C.H. Rotary Club is known as a "200 per cent club" since each member has given $20.

IT IS estimated that in the 1973-74 school year more than $11 million will be spent on the Foundation program. Rotarians and their families are not elegible for the program's benefits.

Richards urged local Rotarians to become more involved in terms of contributions to the Foundation program which he termed "one of the most comprehensive scholarship programs in the nation."

Dan Wolford, chairman of the Rotary Foundation committee here, arranged the program. During the business meeting, conducted by President Phil Grover, final plans were made for the club's bus trip to the Dinner Theatre, near London. The trip will be Thursday, Nov. 29.

Mark Johnson, of WSHS, and Alan Fennig, of MTHS, were student guests. Other guests were Carl Bolton, Bill Matheson and Bob Herold, of Cor Tec, Inc., and John Bottom with Bill Williams, Tom Mark with Charles Mustine and Leonard Watts, Roger Hodem and Craig Calhoun with Laurence Dumford.

Visiting Rotarians were Darrell French and Walter Garman, both of Wilmington.

Dividend declared

ZANESVILLE, Ohio (AP)— Gov. John Gilligan Tuesday presented checks totaling $18,500 to the Muskingum County Juvenile Court for a program designed to improve local probational services. Another grant of $5,500 will be made next July 1.

Dear Church Member:

If I were writing this to ask you to sign a petition against smutty films, I am sure I could count on your complete and immediate cooperation.

But I'm not asking for that. I'm asking for the vote for decency that really counts -- your support at the box office of a truly remarkable film, "THE GOSPEL ROAD." It opens TONIGHT at the FAYETTE CINEMA, for one big week.

Jesus, as played by the Academy Award nominee Robert Elfstrom, who also directs the film, is REAL -- a strong, sunburned man with visible emotions. He strides out across Judean hills as if he's going somewhere. He gets down on his knees an the beach and builds sand towers with 4-year olds. He blesses them with a happy hug, not a somber gesture. And, he weeps. . . and laughs.

The surprisingly effective background of Country and Western songs by Johnny Cash, Kris Kristofferson and others blends beautifully into symphonic backgrounds and is perfectly suited to the action. The narration by Johnny Cash gives a reverence that is quite a contrast with other films now showing around the country.

Not only do I personally recommend it, I am urging your church to support it by group participation. You can phone 335-0230 for special group rates.

Unlike some religious films that play in rented theaters for a limited run, this is a regular feature film whose run in our city will depend on its "box office." It deserves the chance to tell its story. It deserves your support.

Sincerely,

Harry P. Chakeres

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Hemorrhoids Not Hereditary

It seems as if every member of our family develops hemorrhoids when they get past the age of 40. Some required surgery.

It occurred to me that there might be some plan of action to prevent this from happening to our three teen-age children.

Mrs. H. G., N.H.

Dear Mrs. G.:

Your idea is truly the essence of good preventive medicine. There are some sensible means of preventing the formation and progress of hemorrhoids.

First, let me assure you that there is little likelihood of a hereditary tendency toward this condition. Rather do I believe that the dietary habits and general care of bowel functioning are more significant.

Hemorrhoids are simply enlarged veins that normally surround the rectal opening. They are referred to as "internal hemorrhoidal veins" and "external hemorrhoidal veins."

When there is increased pressure on these veins because of constipation, varicosity develops.

There varicose veins are hemorrhoids. When left untreated, they develop secondary complications. Inflammation, infection, and clots form within them.

When the veins break, bleeding occurs.

Poor bowel habits undoubtedly play a most important role in the cause of hemorrhoids, or "piles," as they are commonly called.

Constant dependence on laxatives may be an added factor.

Diets that do not contain enough bulk, or "roughage," will also contribute to this condition.

Many doctors stress the importance of drinking at least six glasses of water a day as the most effective laxative.

When the earliest evidence of hemorrhoids appear, prompt treatment by your doctor, regulation of diet, avoiding straining at stool, proper exercise, and reduction of weight are important factors in preventing their progress.

Are there any dangers to the use of a sun lamp to keep a summer tan?

Miss R.McM., Ark.

Dear Miss McM.:

There is a great temptation to maintain the healthy tanned look acquired over the summer months.

However, readers should be reminded that many skin experts advise against too much exposure to direct sunlight.

In the light of this warning, special attention must be paid to the concentrated ultra-violet rays that emanate from a sun lamp.

These rays have the same effect as overexposure to the hot midday sun. When used without moderation, severe burns can result, rather than a persistent tan.

For those who do use a sun lamp, it is of special importance that the eyes be protected. It is imperative, too, that the time of exposure should be gradually increased to a safe maximum.

A special warning is essential. Many people tend to fall asleep under the sun lamp. A timing device with a warning bell is an important safety precaution.

Coal safety rules won't be relaxed

WASHINGTON (AP) — United Mine Workers President Arnold Miller says the union will never agree to a relaxation of mine safety standards to increase coal production.

Some mine operators, he said in a statement, "are shamelessly trying to exploit public fears of domestic fuel shortages in order to convince Congress that unless safety standards are relaxed, coal production cannot be increased to meet the present energy crisis."

He said the UMW's answer to claims was "never."

Porno peddler's business mixed

By JAMES STEVENSON
Associated Press Writer

MIDDLEFIELD, Ohio (AP) — The late autumn day was warm, and the visitors to the rural flea market drifted lazily from table to table.

Over in one corner of the grounds, 52-year-old Earl Smith sat glumly on a camp stool beside a table of racy paperbacks. In the van behind the table were more books, magazines and films.

Business wasn't very good. The overall-clad farmers and their wives only glanced at the "Adults Only" sign on their way to other tables of trinkets, produce and antiques.

"I never do very well here," Smith (not his real name) said dourly. He gestured at the crowds, some bearded and black-dressed Amish among them. "What can you expect?"

Smith became a wandering pornography peddler several years ago. He sometimes hits two or three flea markets in northeastern Ohio in a single afternoon. He'd been a salesman, children's apparel and he wanted off the road.

So he started a small shop in Cleveland, but a robbery closed it and a divorce left him flat. "A long, sad story," he said. So he went back on the road.

"I made more money" with children's clothing, he said. But the hours were long and hard, and "there's no pressure here. It's a life where you make a living and that's it."

It's also a business that will last, he said. "Don't believe everything you hear about the Supreme Court. This is a sport that's got a permanent audience."

The best evidence of that, he said, is his clientele — "the better educated, higher class people." And that was the reason business was so bad in Middlefield, he added.

"These people aren't sophisticated enough to appreciate pornography," he said.

Two black-bonneted Amish women walked up to a table of used paperbacks and magazines off to one side of the hard core material. They looked up and saw the "Adults Only" sign, looked away and walked on.

"I sold a couple of books to an Amish woman here once," Smith said. "But it only happened once."

He really hadn't intended to be in Middlefield at all that day. "The bad thing was, I set up this morning along Canal Road in Cleveland," he said. "And I was heading for a $300 day. Maybe my best ever."

Then the police moved in and broke up the flea market. They made the peddlers disperse. "A bomb scare, they said," he added.

"So I came out here." He sighed and lit another cigarette. "I never do very well here."

Opening lead - jack of spades.

In duplicate bridge, an overtrick that would be insignificant in rubber bridge will often make the difference between an excellent score and a poor one. In this deal from a sectional tournament, declarer, by very good play, made five spades while others were making only four with the same cards.

South won the trump lead with the ace and cashed the king. There was some danger of going down in four if the diamonds were divided 4-1 and the ace of hearts was offside, but when South played the A-K of diamonds and both opponents followed suit, ten tricks became certain.

Declarer's next problem — with the contract now assured — was to look for a safe way of making eleven tricks. Leading a club to the jack could not be countenanced because East might win with the king and return a heart to put the contract in jeopardy.

The safer method of playing a club to the ace and returning the queen — planning to discard a heart if East followed low — obviously would not guarantee eleven tricks, though it would of course preserve ten.

Declarer found a third and far better method of play when he cashed the ace of clubs at trick five, played a diamond to the queen and then put West on lead with a trump. Now it did not matter where the ace of hearts or king of clubs were located.

West was on lead and had to return a heart or a club, either of which would hand declarer his eleventh trick. So South, in this highly ingenious manner, achieved a top score by being the only declarer to make an overtrick.

Famous works of art to be shown in Detroit

DETROIT (AP) — Some 450 works of art from the final years of the Medici family's reign in Florence will be assembled here for the first time next spring in an exhibition jointly sponsored by the Detroit Institute of Arts and the city of Florence. The exhibition, called "Twilight of the Medici 1670-1743," will open in Detroit March 27 and will move from there to Florence's Palazzo Strozzi where it will open June 25.

The Detroit museum is gathering paintings, sculptures, drawings, tapestries and pieces of furniture and jewelry from more than 100 locations in Western Europe, India and North America. Some 150 pieces will come from such famous Florentine museums as the Uffizi, Bargello and Palazzo Pitti. Most of the works of art will be making their first appearances in the U.S.

Paintings by G.A. Pellegrini and sculptures by G.B. Foggini and Massimiliano Soldani have been committed for the exhibition. A feature of the show will be the first display in this country of the gem-studded figurines called "the jewels of the Electress Palantine" which were created for Anna Maria Luisa de'Medici whose death in 1743 marked the end of the Medici dynasty.

MT cage season starts on Friday

Determination and ability main assets of MT Panthers

The Miami Trace varsity basketball teams opens its season this weekend with two games on tap. Friday the Panthers host Columbus Watterson and Saturday Miami Trace travels to Springfield Northeastern. Both games have a starting time of 8 p.m.

Miami Trace would certainly like to start out the 1973-74 varsity basketball schedule like it finished last year.

AFTER A lackluster beginning the Panthers ended the season in a flourish by winning 11 games in a row. The Panthers tied for the top spot in the South Central Ohio League with Circleville, won the Class AAA Southeastern District tournament only to lose in the regionals to powerhouse Columbus South.

New head coach Dale Creamer, who coached the Miami Trace reserve team for the last three years, has five letterman returning with two being starters last year.

Both guard spots were left open due to graduation, but Creamer feels that the players this year can fill the empty shoes.

Senior pivotman Dave Persinger, 6-foot-4, and Randy Reiber, 6-foot-2, are the two returning starters from last year's SCOL co-champion team. Other returning letterman are Steve Mowery, Jeff King and hot shot Dave Steinhauser.

Steinhauser, who stands 6-foot-1, should fill one of the missing links in the guard positions. The talented sharpshooter has good quickness and handles the ball with smoothness.

Mowery and King didn't see much action last year, but are expected to contribute a substantial amount of support this season.

Creamer also has Phil Skinner and Mark Spears to help fill in at the vacated guard positions.

The forward spots will be manned by Reiber, Jim Glass, hustling Jay Mossbarger and Robin Zurface.

Junior Randy Rhonemus will backup Persinger at the pivot position. Rhonemus played six reserve games last year before he became ill and sat out the remainder of the season. The lanky 6-foot-6 center should be a strong replacement for Creamer's Panthers.

THE PANTHERS possess only average quickness and height but have a good cast of shooters to start defending their SCOL co-championship.

Creamer feels that the varsity must out block its opponents [illegible] to stay in the SCOL race. With only average height and speed, the Panthers, must rely on determination and ability to keep with the winning ways made famous by Miami Trace basketball teams.

Miami Trace's offense should work off the fast break with intermittent offensive sets being employed by the Panthers.

Creamer said that the Panthers should become known as a pressing defensive team around the SCOL. Miami Trace has always been known to utilize the press, but Creamer says that this year's team will employ it much more.

Both games this weekend will be preceded by a Miami Trace reserve game starting at 6:30 p.m.

Rose 'Most Valuable'

NEW YORK (AP) — Pete Rose, the Cincinnati Reds' irrepressible left fielder, was named the National League's Most Valuable Player for 1973 today by the Baseball Writers Association of America.

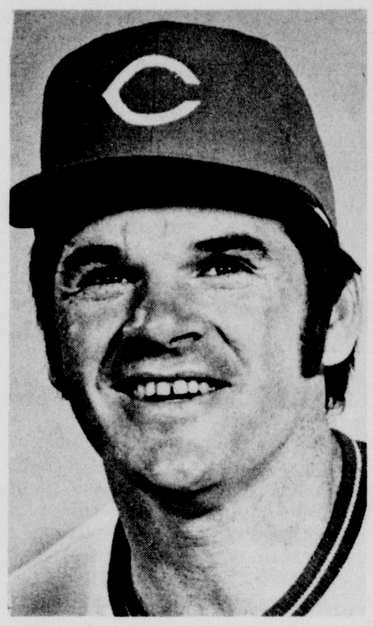
Nicknamed "Charley Hustle" for his all-out, aggressive baseball style, the Reds' dynamic player won the MVP prize in a close battle with Pittsburgh Pirates slugger Willie Stargell.

Rose, who hit .338 this year in leading the National League in batting for the third time in his career, received 12 votes for first place and a total of 274 points.

Stargell, the league leader in home runs with 44 and runs batted in with 119, collected 10 first-place votes and 250 points.

It was the tightest MVP NL race since 1969, when Willie McCovey of the San Francisco Giants edged Tom Seaver of the New York Mets by 22 points.

Rose and Stargell were the only players named on all 24 ballots cast by the BBWAA committee, which consisted of two writers from each league city.



PETE ROSE

Two other players who each received one first-place vote finished third and fourth in the balloting—San Francisco outfielder Bobby Bonds and Cincinnati second baseman Joe Morgan. Bonds collected 174 points, and Morgan, one of four Reds in the top 10, collected 102 points.

Montreal relief ace Mike Marshall who finished second to Seaver in this year's Cy Young Award voting, completed the top five with 93 points.

Others in the top 10 were Lou Brock of the St. Louis Cardinals, with 65 points; Cincinnati's Tony Perez, 59; Seaver, 57; Ken Singleton of the Montreal Expos, 52, and Cincinnati's Johnny Bench, 41, last year's MVP.

For Rose, the glossy MVP award is the culmination of a long-time ambition.

"It's great to be No. 1," Rose said. "It's the biggest honor yet. I'm thrilled and happy."

Rose wasn't completely surprised, though.

"I thought I had a shot at it, although I wouldn't have felt bad if Stargell had won it. Homers always talk," said Rose. "But I had a great year. It's the most consistent year I've had. And I'm very appreciative to my teammates for it."

Forecaster says:

Michigan over Bucks!

NEW YORK (AP) — Call Ohio State-Michigan "a hammer and anvil type of game," as Ohio State assistant coach Esco Sarkkinen does.

Call Alabama-Louisiana State "the next step in our plans for a national championship," like 'Bama's Bear Bryant.

Call Nebraska-Oklahoma "the big shootout," like Oklahoma's Barry Switzer, or "a head knocker," like Nebraska's Tom Osborne.

Call them what you will, but those three classic games are just part of a wild and wonderful three-day Thanksgiving feast with all the trimmings that will complete the college football bowl lineup and knock at least two teams out of the national championship picture.

They'll all be seen on national television, along with Air Force-Notre Dame and UCLA Southern California. That's nine of the nation's Top Ten — sorry about that Air Force — and the 10 TV teams have a combined 84-6-3 record for a .919 percentage.

On Thursday, it's Air Force at fifth-ranked Notre Dame, followed by second-ranked Alabama at No. 7 LSU. Friday, it's Nebraska at Oklahoma. Saturday, it's Ohio State at Michigan and UCLA-USC. Sunday, it's something to soothe those bloodshot TV eyes.

Ohio State at Michigan: "There's a lot of bananas hanging on this one for both teams," says Sarkkinen, who has been a coach or player in this series almost every year since 1937. "There are no favorites, no underdogs in this one."

Ohio State Head Coach Woody Hayes says, "You can check the statistics and still come up with some questions."

The biggest question is — how can either team lose? But the winner has gone to the Rose Bowl five straight years, and five straight years the winner has been the home team. The pick ... Michigan 16-14.

Alabama at Louisiana State: By winning, Alabama can become the eighth team in history to record 500 victories. That's just one reason why this game, according to Bryant, "is more important to us than bowls are, right now. It's the next step in our plans for a Southeastern Conference championship and a national championship."

Alabama also can become the second team ever — Oklahoma in 1971 was the other — to rank in the all-time top 10 in both production (i.e., rushing, total offense and scoring) and explosiveness (i.e., yards per play). "On paper, I don't know why we're even going to play them," says LSU's Charlie McClendon. "But," he adds, "games aren't decided on paper." Upset Special of the Week ... LSU 24-21.

Nebraska at Oklahoma: Kansas State's Vince Gibson says flatly that Oklahoma will win. Missouri's Al Onofrio says, "probably Oklahoma."

Gibson is calling Oklahoma "a super football team." Says Osborne: "Vince uses that adjective rather loosely at times. He says we are not super and Oklahoma is super, so we have thought seriously about not going to the game." Good thinking, Tom. Oklahoma 28-21.

UCLA vs. Southern California: If you think sports writers are experts, be advised that at Monday's Southern California Football Writers' luncheon, 25 picked UCLA and 11 chose USC. "My gosh! You guys don't serve whisky out there, do you?" wondered UCLA's Pepper Rodgers. Southern Cal 31-28.

Air Force at Notre Dame: The Irish wouldn't mind seeing all those other games wind up in ties and this one end in a triumph for ... Notre Dame 35-7.

Pitt at Penn State: This one's for the bragging and recruiting rights in western Pennsylvania. It also matches sensational senior John Cappelletti of Penn State against fabulous freshman Tony Dorsett of Pitt. Penn State 31-10.

Texas at Texas A&M: "Their defense is just like their offense — there are no weak points," says A&M's Emory Bellard, for many years an aide to Darrell Royal at ... Texas 28-14.

Texas Tech at Arkansas: Red Raiders haven't beaten Arkansas since 1967. Tech that, Arkansas. Texas Tech 24-14.

Arizona at Arizona State: Winner gets the Fiesta Bowl. Loser gets a siesta. Arizona ... State 38-21.

Missouri at Kansas: These Big Eight rivals are tied for 19th in The Associated Press ratings. Something's gotta give. Missouri 20-14.

West Virginia at Syracuse: Old Ben Schwartzwalder's last game as Syracuse coach. Second Upset Special ... Syracuse 17-13.

Purdue at Indiana: Lee Corso has had "Beat Purdue" signs up since last spring. Putting our foot in the Old Oaken Bucket, here's a Third Upset Special ... Indiana 21-20.

Harvard at Yale: THE Game! THE winner? Harvard 21-14.

Miami again

Pro football picks

NEW YORK (AP) — America's football widows may stage their own special Thanksgiving celebration next Tuesday after the holiday weekend menu on television that begins Thursday with two National Football League games — plus two college battles — and ends Monday night.

It may take some dial-switching, but football fanatics can watch the Washington Redskins at Detroit starting at 12:15 p.m., EST, Thursday, then see as many as eight more games through Monday night.

It won't leave much time to carve the turkey, however.

Miami (9-1) at Dallas (7-3) — A tough one to figure particularly since Dallas is playing better than originally forecast. The Dolphins could have a slight letdown after clinching their third straight division title, but Miami has blanked its last two foes. So shall we say ... DOLPHINS 24, COWBOYS 20.

Washington (7-3) at Detroit (4-5-1) — Washington certainly hasn't been brilliant this season, but George Allen and his Over-The-Hill Gang know this is a crucial game. And they also know that the Lions basically are a better team than their record indicates. Would you believe ... REDSKINS 21, LIONS 17.

Pittsburgh (8-2) at Cleveland (6-3-1) — The first game this season between these AFC Central rivals ended with Pittsburgh ahead 30-6. The Browns would like to reverse the outcome this time and, in this week's Upset Special, let's say Coach Nick Skorich's wish will come true ... BROWNS 17, STEELERS 14.

St. Louis (3-6-1) at Cincinnati (6-4) — With some assistance from the team that bears his name, Paul Brown's Bengals, with a victory Sunday, could make it a dogfight in the AFC Central. The Cardinals should be most cooperative. BENGALS 31, CARDINALS 17.

Atlanta (7-3) at New York Jets (3-7) — General Grant took Richmond in the 19th century and Atlanta's field general, Robert M. Lee, will capture New York in the 20th, even if Joe Namath goes all the way. FALCONS 31, JETS 24.

Buffalo (5-5) at Baltimore (28) — Another interdivisional rematch, and there's no reason to expect the outcome won't be the same. In case you've forgotten, Buffalo won the first time 31-13. So ... O.J. 100-plus (yards, that is), and ... BILLS 31, COLTS 13.

Kansas City (6-3-1) at Denver (5-3-2) — The Chiefs barely squeaked by Denver 16-14 in Kansas City earlier this season. It's a key game for both teams, and Jan Stenerud's toe could make the difference, but Denver upset Pittsburgh last week and are spoiling to make it ... BRONCOS 21, CHIEFS 20.

Los Angeles (8-2) at New Orleans (4-6) — The Saints lost two in a row on the road, including 29-7 at Los Angeles. They pulled off four upsets earlier before the home fans but that's way over their quota of surprises for the year, so ... RAMS 31, SAINTS 21.

Southwest All-Stars selected

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Second-ranked Cincinnati Moeller dominated The Associated Press Ohio Southwestern District high school all-star football selections announced today.

Gerald Faust, who led Moeller to a 10-0-0 regular season record and the state's No. 2 rating, was named the area Class AAA Coach of the Year by a district panel of sports writers.

Joe Ertel, a 6-foot-1, 210-pound senior defensive tackle, was named the Southwestern District Class AAA Lineman of the Year and Tim McVay, Kettering Alter quarterback and son of University of Dayton Athletic Director John McVay, the No. 1 back.

The Class AA honors went to Jerry Daugherty, Cincinnati Reading's gravely ill coach; halfback Leon Murray of North College Hill and Doug Testerman, a Kings Mills linebacker. Reading was 10-0-0 during the season.

In Class A, Bob Hardley of Yellow Springs and Larrie Tisdale of Covington, who led their squads to unbeaten seasons, shared the coaching title. Marcus Johnson of Yellow Springs was the No. 1 back and Tom Staley, a Sidney Lehman tackle, the leading lineman among the small schools.

Bulls stop Trail Blazers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Although the season has only reached the one-quarter point, predictions in the Western Conference in the National Basketball Association are pointing to a torrid winter out west.

—"Anyone who says that the Los Angeles Lakers are a shooin, doesn't know what's going on in the NBA," said Chicago Coach Dick Motta after his Bulls outlasted the Trail Blazers Tuesday night 106-101.

—"This was a big game because this is the start of a make or break road trip for us," said Jeff Mullins, whose feed to Nate Thurmond helped Golden State squeeze by Milwaukee 108-105.

—"This is a reconstruction period for us," said Los Angeles Coach Bill Sharman after the Lakers were whipped by the Knicks 105-89.

In the rest of the NBA, Buffalo trounced Phoenix 127-100 and Philadelphia downed Kansas City-Omaha 109-103.

In the American Basketball Association, Indiana edged Utah 102-98 and Carolina tripped Denver 113-107.

Tangerine Bowl pits Florida, Miami

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — The University of Florida Gators, booed off their own field just a month ago after a 13-10 loss, have accepted a bid for the Tangerine Bowl against nationally ranked Miami of Ohio.

The football classic will be relocated for 1973 only from the 22,000-seat Tangerine Bowl in Orlando to the Gators' 62,000-seat Florida Field in Gainesville. The game is set for Dec. 22.

Vacation cottage prices rise

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

It isn't too soon to consider next year's vacation cottage. In fact it may be your only chance to get one in your favorite area. At the old price, that is. Or even something approximating it.

Time is running out for vacation cottage renters at many resorts. They are renting in a demand market that has orbited prices. Some owners do not even want to discuss next year's rentals. Many are waiting to see whether the traffic will bear another hike. Others want to rent now.

Even then one owner has a proviso in a lease for next year that gives her the opportunity to raise the rent even before you are in the cottage.

Many cottages are owned by second-home owners who are paying off the mortgage by renting the cottage until they retire to it. They need to get as much as they can out of their investment.

Others are owned by people who have brought up little places adjacent to their own homes, making them easier to supervise.

These places may have cost so little that the profits may quickly be put to use in updating the cottages with expensive decorating and modern appliances which will insure rent hikes as time goes on.

And they winterize them anticipating further income during cold weather.

WHAT CAN be done about the trend? Many families see only a gloomy outlook. They have been able to rough it for a pittance at a particular resort. But now such shacks are being turned into cottages and the cottages are becoming winter homes.

As one woman commented, "It isn't like a meat boycott with an entire neighborhood banding together to bring prices down. If you decide not to rent a particular place because it is too high, someone else will grab it."

Many people will invest in campers, turning them into vacation "shacks" that can be transported at will. There are still great expenses of open space with trees and water and other inducements to help make a vacation experience. But some members of the family might not enjoy it.

The vacation, after all, should appeal to all. Hiking, fishing, swimming might be fun — "But what do you do after that?" may be the complaint of teen-agers. They've got a point.

Another alternative to the expensive cottage might be a boat rental. Or one might buy a boat with the idea of selling it the following spring. A lucky investor might even make a profit on the sale or at least get his money plus vacation expenses out of it.

ONE PARENT tried the boat vacation this year, bringing the boat into little spots that interested the family. He had a built-in crew of his three teenage boys, so the boat looked great and salable when it was brought back to home port.

One must know how to handle a boat before one invests in one, and one should know the price is right if one must plan immediate resale. Then, too, some members of the family might not enjoy life on a boat.

But that might also have a pleasant solution. The poor sailors could join the family after they had anchored at an attractive vacation area.

It is something to think about this winter if you want to have a family vacation next summer.

It may be the only way.

Still good licks in fishing

By JIM DAUBEL
Written for Associated Press

Most fishermen have stowed their gear till next spring, and that is good enough reason to get in a few more licks before freeze-up.

The worst thing about November fishing is the inclement weather. The best thing about it may be the lack of pressure on those lakes that seem jammed with shore-to-shore boats when it's warmer.

In fall, warm clothing will beat the cold. Persistence and a few fishing tricks will overcome the apparent reluctance of fish to bite as water temperatures drop.

Actually, from October into November—depending on how cold it gets and when—most fish feed more than at any other time of year except spring.

That's when bass, pike and panfish gorge themselves to fatten up for the long winter ahead.

The secret of successful fall fishing is twofold: fish slow and, if possible, with live bait.

As waters cool, fish slow down. Bass that might chase a plug as far as you can case in warm weather are lazy now. They won't move far to feed and they won't move fast.

To coax them into hitting, cast a light spinner or plug that can be retrieved slowly without snagging on the bottom. Fish the shallows or around brush piles but don't hurry.

For variety, let a spinner or leadhead jig sink then twitch it off the bottom and repeat the action, making sure to jerk the lure only slightly and slowly.

Northern pike are more eager eaters in cold water than many other species. You'll find them in shallow water this time of year, especially around weeds or grass in the lake.

Large creek chubs are hard to beat as pike bait. Impale them through the back with a large hook tied to a heavy monofilament leader and float the weighted rig from a bobber. Let the baitfish explore the weeds, grass or other likely looking submerged cover.

A pike will often kill the minnow or mouth it momentarily before swallowing it so let him play with it for a time before setting the hook.

Fishing for crappie and other panfish can be rewarding this late. Lake Erie gives up some of its gattest jumbo perch in November and bluegills are hungry in inland lakes and farm ponds that are now easier to fish than in summer when choked with vegetation.

The best panfish baits are small minnows or ice flies tipped with maggots. Fish brush piles, vacant boat docks and other woody cover.

Ohio GM plants may be struck

DETROIT (AP) — Two Ohio plants could be struck if agreement isn't reached by Monday on a new contract between the General Motors Corp. and the International Union of Electrical Workers.

The IUE announced its contract with GM for more than 25,000 workers in four plants will be terminated Monday. The union has been working under an extension of a contract that expired Sept. 14.

The IUE negotiations involve workers at the Packard Electric plant in Warren, Ohio, and Delco plants in Dayton, Ohio; New Brunswick, N.J., and Rochester, N.Y.

Saxbe eligible, professor says

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — The bill proposed by the Nixon administration to make U.S. Sen. William B. Saxbe, R-Ohio, eligible for appointment as attorney general is permissable under the constitution, constitutional scholar Alexander Bickel said Tuesday.

The Yale law professor also said the constitutional provision which has become a controversy in Saxbe's nomination is not "really one of the foundation stones of the Republic."

The Senate Judiciary Committee turned over to the full Senate Tuesday the administration bill, effectively laying the constitutional decision at the feet of all the senators instead of just a committee.

Filmed warning of heart attacks available here

Three fictional characters each had a very real heart problem. None of them had ever had a sudden heart attack, but all had experienced "early warning sings".

That's what the new film, "Heart Attack: Early Warning Signs," is all about. The film emphasizes that the early symptoms may mean a heart attack and are a warning to get medical care as soon as possible.

Dr. Louis A. Black, a Kenton physician, narrates the film. He also reviews the symptoms of heart trouble and explains what a person should do if they are experienced.

A copy of the film has been purchased by the Fayette County Branch of the Heart Association and is available for showing at civic association meetings here in conjunction with a speaker—a physician, nurse or trained volunteer. Arrangements for showing the film to local groups may be made with Mrs. Thomas Rankin (335-0858), Ohio 41-N.

EACH YEAR during the holiday season thousands of people tour our store recalling the nostalgia and warmth of Christmases years ago. Here you may browse through layers of artificial snow and two floors of thousands of old time, made-with-care and pride, country store products. Pottery, earthenware, jewelry, china, sweet tooth candies, and lollypops, "Ribtickling" jokes, hand-dipped candles—rings— and things, rich fragrant soaps, stocking "stuffins," rafters of Early American woodenware and hand forged iron accessories, very new and very old beautiful furniture, famous wood and brass cleaners or finishes, authentic furniture hardware, 1974 calendar towels in scenes of Currier and Ives, beautiful old-fashion children's wheeled toys and bisque dolls, hand-crafted colonial pattern glassware, and lamps plus one of the largest selection to be found of restoration glass lamp shades, chimneys, electric, oil and any replacement parts. (Bring your lamps along for fitting. . .a perfect gift idea, too.)

If you have never been here before, we suggest you plan your visit early, before the Christmas rush begins. Weekdays are best. Plan on two hours — you can rest your weary feet on our potbelly stove. We hope you and your family find our old store that pleasant, comfortable, friendly, experience of a by-gone day. The season's best to you and yours from all of the store-keepers here at Peddler — The General Store. At the crossroads of Marysville, Ohio, 117 Main Street, N. (look for our rain barrel). Holiday hours: 9:00 to 9:00 weekdays, Sundays 12:30 to 9:00. Easy Old-Time no interest payment plans or use your modern charge cards. We also wholesale to other peddlers, dealers, and flea marketeers who have a vendors license. Discounts to employers or to organizations buying groups of merchandise. See you soon? It's easy to get here on St. Rt. 38, 28 miles north of London. Two fine restaurants within a block of store.

Snake in the grass worse than fierce dog

PORTALES, N.M. (AP) — Mailman Aubrey (Slick) Imoe of Portales was attacked by a snake as he made his rounds in the University Heights area.

SEASONAL HOPES — Mrs. Jane Mossbarger's third grade class at Eastside Elementary School decorated this bulletin board with the underlying theme of a "Thanksgiving Wish." Some of the wishes listed by the students were: a bike, a Honda, a gun holster, a new car for the family, a mini bike, a wish that my brother could come home from the Army, a wish to join the Navy, a wish for "100" in spelling (which was achieved). And one boy actually wished for a turkey on Thanksgiving Day!

Brown plans energy crisis proposals

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Lt. Gov. John W. Brown says a special task force he appointed last spring to study the energy problem will make "hard recommendations" by Dec. 15 instead of a previously-planned target date of Jan. 15.

As interim energy-saving steps, Brown recommended that Christmas Eve and New Year's Eve be designated holidays for state employes this year and all Ohioans voluntarily lower their automobile speeds.

Brown told newsmen Tuesday it is "apparent that the conservation of energy is the most immediate way to provide temporary relief in this critical energy situation."

He said his 32-member task force will conduct a special energy seminar in Columbus Dec. 11-12 and participants will include an official of the Office of Energy Planning of the U.S. Commerce Department.

Brown said the official will advise how to bring "substantial reductions" in energy use without having to lay off employes or cut production.

As for the immediate steps, Brown said state offices should be closed on the Mondays before Christmas and New Years', giving state emloyes two consecutive four-day-day weekend.

This would help save energy, he said, "by providing eight days of non-energy use within state office buildings and by setting a pattern for other governmental agencies to follow on a voluntary basis."

Brown noted that Gov. John Gilligan had ordered all state vehicles to reduce highway speeds to 60 miles per hour and suggested that all Ohioans drive 10 m.p.h. below posted limits to help save energy.

Ohio parochial aid statute faces legal test

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — A three-judge federal panel today was to hear opening arguments in a suit challenging the constitutionality of an Ohio statute that allows aid to parochial and private schools.

The suit was filed by the Ohio chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) against Martin Essex, state superintendent of public instruction.

The statute under attack allows the state to funnel about $86 million each year to private and parochial schools, according to the ACLU.

Hearing the arguments will be Judge John W. Peck of the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals; and U.S. District Court Judges Carl Rubin and Joseph Kinnery, both of Columbus.

Nation's harvest moving rapidly

WASHINGTON (AP) — Field work on the nation's farms has progressed rapidly in recent weeks as earlier rainy weather gave way to almost ideal conditions for harvesting the 1973 crop, the Agriculture Department says.

By Nov. 18, about 87 per cent of the nation's corn was harvested, compared with 55 per cent a year ago, the department said Tuesday in a weekly weather report.

In Iowa, about 86 per cent of the corn was harvested by Nov. 18, compared with 46 per cent in 1972 and a normal completion of 71 per cent on the date, the report said.

"Winter wheat planting was virtually over in Kansas and Oklahoma, and 97 per cent done in Texas," the report said. "Many areas in Nebraska, Kansas and the Texas panhandle need topsoil moisture."

Officials said surveys indicated the condition of the Kansas and Nebraska winter wheat crop was "mostly fair to good" by mid-November, although much of it was below normal in growth because of late planting this season.

"Heavy rains that again fell on much of the Northwest helped replenish surface and soil moisture lowered by months of drought," the report said.

"Rain or snow benefited most of Montana and Idaho. Most fields in Washington absorbed the moisture well with no runoff or erosion," the report said.

The soybean harvest was 89 per cent done by Nov. 18, compared with 68 per cent at the same time last year.

"Farmers in all of the Corn Belt states except Missouri and Kansas practically finished combining soybeans last week, about a week ahead of normal," the report said.

If milk costs too much, you might drink vinegar

RACINE, Wis. (AP) — If you think you are paying too much for milk, consider the alternative: vinegar.

According to a recent report in Wisconsin Agriculturist, a rural publication, vinegar is the only food that sells for less per gallon than milk.

Dick Halbach, a Wisconsin Agriculturist, a rural publication, vinegar is the only food that sells for less per gallon than milk.

Dick Halbach, a Wisconsin county agent, came to this conclusion after converting retail drink prices to gallons. Milk costs 94 cents a gallon; beer, $1.65; Coke, $1.48; orange drink, $1.16; tomato juice, $1.56, and prune juice, $2.
